CONFIDENTIAL 'RED BOOK' OUTLINES LIBERAL PLATFORM

Trudeau Places His Faith in 80 Promises

By PETER NEWMAN

Newman

OTTAWA — Liberal candidates across the country have received a confidential document listing 80 promises with which Pierre ("ask me no promises and I'll tell you no lies") Trudeau hopes to win a majority mandate on June 25. Bound in red leather. Couched in grandiose terms, the document is a dramatic attempt by the Liberals to counteract the image of Trudeau as the hero of a screaming cult of teen-agers and to portray him instead as a prime minister with a carefully thought out program for his country.

While further planks and the expansion of those listed below will be enunciated by the Liberal leader between now and election day, this is essentially the platform which forms the basis of the government's hopes for victory.

Meetings to draft this document began about a month ago under the chairmanship of Jim Davey, a Montreal management consultant who was a key figure in the Trudeau leadership campaign and is now employed in the prime minister's office.

The drafting committee which was recruited to write the actual document consisted of Lloyd Axworthy (as former executive assistant to John Turner who is now running against Stanley Knowles in Winnipeg North Centre), Bill Lee (the former executive assistant to Paul Hellyer who is now principal policy advisor and tour manager of the Trudeau campaign) and Dan Coates (research director of the National Liberal Federation of Canada).

Marc Lalonde, the prime minister's chief policy advisor, sat in on most of the sessions and Trudeau himself edited the final document.

Paul Hellyer headed the cabinet steering committee which studied the proposals before they were approved by the full cabinet. Key Liberals across the country were also consulted at every stage of the process.

The platform, which reads more like a speech from the Throne, includes few items which might call for major government expenditures. When contrasted with the Liberals' 1965 platform (which promised medicare, a war on poverty, technical training programs, help to farmers, more social security programs, and $100 millions in renewable scholarships) it's difficult to remember that this is the same party.

Probably the most interesting aspect of the 1968 Liberal platform is its omissions. There is not a word about agriculture, though the PM and two of his ministers are known to have had a long discussion on possible approaches, particularly to the wheat problem.

Apart from the government's already announced plans to make the federal administration more bilingual, there is nothing in the platform designed to appeal to Quebec.

The Canada development Corp., which won Trudeau's approval before the Liberal leadership convention, has significantly been omitted, as has every other item in previous Liberal platforms that might sound the least bit nationalistic.

The document is introduced by an emotional call to colors which reads in part: "Our people have come alive with pride in themselves and their nation. We indeed accomplished near miracles with Expo and our other centennial celebrations. And we are determined to keep our nation together and working toward the goals of a just society, with a prosperous economy in a united Canada, contributing to a peaceful world . . . All of us who will stand and work for the Liberal party in this election must dedicate ourselves to earning the mandate we need from the people to forge our new nation. United we can and will earn that mandate."

Including the policies on bilingualism and a changed foreign policy which the prime minister has already announced in some detail, there are some 80 planks in the Liberal platform, of which these are the main features:

To bring about "The just society" the Liberals pledge to incorporate a charter of human rights in the constitution and reform the processes of justice by naming more judges, revising expropriation methods, doing away with abuses of the bail system changing the juvenile delinquency laws, and modernizing the federal prisons system.

To help the city dwellers, the Lierals intend to establish a task force on urban issues, to promote urban research centres in universities, to curb land speculation, to attract more private money into housing, to use existing federal lands for revitalizing cities, to introduce a coordinated program of advancing the techniques of urban mass transportation, and to implement a major airport expansion plan.

For the consumer, a code is in the works that will ensure

Montreal Man Gets Heart of Woman

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's first heart transplant patient is awake and his condition "remains hopeful," Dr. Pierre Grondin reported today eight hours after the operation was completed.

Dr. Grondin, chief surgeon in the world's 18th heart transplant operation, told a press conference the patient, Albert Murphy, a 59-year-old French-Canadian butcher, is aware of what is going on around him and is able to obey commands.

Montreal Heart Institute, where the operation was performed, made available an official bulletin shortly after noon today which said:

"Mr. Murphy's progress remains satisfactory. However, the transplanted heart has some difficulties in maintaining an adequate blood pressure and requires the administration of supportive agents.

"The patient is fully conscious and the heart rate is stable. A respirator is still in use to assist pulmonary functions."

Another bulletin would be issued in six hours, a hospital spokesman said.

NOT WITHOUT DIFFICULTY

Dr. Grondin said the operation went smoothly but not without difficulty in maintaining the patient's blood pressure and circulation.

Dr. Grondin had been an observer, recently at a Houston heart transplant by Dr. Denton Cooley which was conducted according to techniques developed by Dr. Norman Shumway of New York in 1961.

Dr. Grondin indicated that heart transplant procedures now have been somewhat "standardized."

Earlier, Dr. Paul David, the institute's medical director, said Mr. Murphy's heart was beating at a "satisfying rhythm" following the operation, which began at 12:20 a.m.

Mr. Murphy, father of two from suburban Laval, received the heart of Mrs. Gerard Rondeau, 38, a mother of four.

Dr. David said the woman died of a "massive cerebral hemorrhage" after she had been transferred to the institute from Jean Talon Hospital Wednesday night.

Another institute spokesman said that Mr. Murphy is five feet, six inchs tall and weighs 124 pounds. "When well," the spokesman said, "he weighed about 175."

SUB-SHAPED OBJECT FOUND BY SEARCHERS

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The United States Navy reported today locating what it described as a metallic object the size of a submarine, off Virginia, but a top admiral said chances are almost "nil" it may be the Scorpion.

Vice-Admiral Arnold F. Schade, commander of the over-all search for the missing nuclear-powered Scorpion and its crew of 99, said the vast sea hunt which has been going on four full days has turned up nothing significant.

The metallic object was detected about 70 miles from Cape Henry, Va., and navy divers are trying to find it.

"It is not one of the registered and known hulls," Schade said.

The object is resting at about 180 feet down on a bearing of 065 degrees from Cape Henry.

PRESSURE ON IWA?

'Gov't Bending To Wishes Of Industry'

Argentina Transplant

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) — Argentina completed its first human heart transplant operation successfully today at a private clinic near Buenos Aires.

A surgical team, led by Dr. Miguel Bellizi, 42, took about four hours for the operation.

A spokesman at the Modelo Clinic identified the recipient as 47-year-old Enrique Serrano.

The donor, Emilio Tomasetti, was pronounced dead early today at the Ramos Mejia Hospital here and his body was hurried by ambulance to the Modelo Clinic for extraction of the heart.

But the sections of the government's new labor legislation which could stop a strike by the International Woodworkers of America have yet to be proclaimed by the cabinet.

Another dispute which could be referred by the cabinet to the mediation commission for a binding decision involves 61 hospitals and 4,100 registered nurses.

The nurses have turned down pay increases of between 21 and 27 per cent in an 18-month contract and the Registered Nurses Association of B.C. has asked the labor department to conduct a strike vote.

Section 18 of the legislation — not yet proclaimed by cabinet — gives the cabinet power to refer disputes to the mediation commission and order its finding binding where "it is necessary in order to protect the public interest and welfare."

Section 21 says that where such an order is made, and a strike or lockout is in effect, the action shall cease in 24 hours and work resume.

Where no strike or lockout is in effect, unions are not allowed to declare a strike, no employee shall strike, no company shall declare a lockout or lockout employees.

'GOV'T BENDING'

The only sections of Bill 33 which are law at the moment are those relating to the establishment of the mediation commission, whose membership was announced Thursday by Labor Minister Leslie Peterson.

The president of the Victoria IWA local, Murray Drew, said it "appears" the government is "bending to the wishes of the forest industry and trying to put pressure on the IWA membership."

"I wouldn't view it as a coincidence," he said.

"Why not make the appointments effective emmediately? And it (June 15) is on a Saturday of all times."

Mr. Peterson was en route from Vancouver to Victoria this morning and could not be reached for his comment.

Pupils, Faculty Demanded Move

BURNABY, (CP) — Dr. Patrick McTaggart-Cowan, president of Simon Fraser University, was asked today to take an indefinite leave of absence, said SFU Chancellor Dr. Gordon Shrum.

He said the university board of governors met today and asked Dr. McTaggart-Cowan to take the absence effective immediately.

Dr. Shrum said the board will appoint a temporary acting president.

See Earlier Page 17

Dr. McTaggart-Cowan declined to fire himself when he met student and faculty representatives but promised to take the demand to the board meeting today.

About 800 students went further than asking for the resignation, and drew up a list of demands including one that control of the university be turned over to faculty and students.

The group set a 1 p.m. deadline for indication the demands were to be met.

Dr. Shrum, co-chairman of the B.C. hydro, said the board did not have time to consider the demands other than that of the resignation.

He said Dr. McTaggart-Cowan asked him to make it clear to students the president was not backing down under any pressure. Dr. Shrum said the president is a "fighter and not a quitter."

French Workers Return to Jobs

PARIS (CP) — The wave of strikes in France seemed to be receding today under the counter-measures of President de Gaulle. The chief of state, following up his dissolution of the National Assembly, named a new government with Georges Pompidou back as premier.

Reports of a back-to-work movement flowed in from all parts of the country except the Riviera. These covered mostly small plants or partial resumption of activity in other fields.

However, Automobiles Peugeot S.A. announced it will resume work Tuesday at all its plants in the Paris area, in Mulhouse and Vesoul.

Other big key industries showed no signs of a break, but the solidarity of the strikers had been broken and the movement was toward normalcy. Union leaders said they were ready to reopen talks on wage increases for still-idle millions.

Military units which had been on manoeuvres returned to their bases and were reported on alert status.

In the cabinet shift, Maurice Couve de Murville became minister of finance and economic affairs. Michel Debre, outgoing finance minister, succeeded Couve de Murville as foreign minister.

Pierre Messmer was returned as defence minister and former premier Edgar Faure remains as minister of agriculture.

There were five notable changes. Christian Fouchet, interior minister, was dropped. So were Louis Joxe, justice minister; Georges Gorse, minister of information, and Francois Missoffe, minister for sports and youth affairs. Alain Peyrefitte, education minister, resigned last week.

VOTING STARTS JUNE 23

The first round of elections for a new National Assembly was set for June 23. The second round will take place June 30.

Rene Capitant, a left-wing Gaullist who criticized Pompidou and said he would vote against the government in the censure vote last week, was named justice minister. At the last minute, Capitant had resigned his seat as a deputy and did not vote the censure motion, which the government survived.

Raymond Marcellin, an independent Republican who had been minister for economic planning, was named interior minister with control over the police.

Couve de Murville had been foreign minister since de Gaulle returned to power 10 years ago —an all-time record for one man in the job. Debre had been finance minister since January, 1968. Couve de Murville was an inspector of finance before he moved into diplomacy.

IWA on Coast Backing Strike

Coastal locals of the International Woodworkers of America are voting strongly in favor of strike action in the current contract dispute with 113 timber companies.

Four locals with more than half the affected workers have reported results of the union-supervised strike vote. Over-all results are expected late today from all eight locals on Vancouver Island and the lower mainland.

Victoria local voted 87.1 per cent in favor of strike action while Duncan voted 94 per cent. On the mainland, the big Vancouver local voted 93 per cent and New Westminster was 94.1 per cent in favor.

Direct negotiations between the IWA and Forest Industrial Relations, which bargains for the companies, are expected to resume shortly. The current two-year contract runs out at midnight June 14.

The union has proposed a wage increase of 50 cents an hour in a one-year contract, double time for overtime, improvements in health and welfare, severance pay and a clause governing contracting out of work.

The companies are proposing establishment of arbitration boards to determine liability for illegal work stoppages, review of falling and bucking rates and extension of job evaluation to logging, sawmills and shingle mills. At present it covers only plywood.

EXPORT WATER —GEOGRAPHER

CALGARY (CP)—There appears to be little reason why Canada should not enter into long-term water-export contracts, a University of Alberta geographer told the Canadian Association of Geographers Thursday. Arleigh H. Laycock said sale of part of Canada's abundant water supply would pay for development of the large water resources that remain.

Mrs. Murphy, who had been at the institute since early Thursday afternoon, told The Canadian Press:

"I'm very happy, but tired."

She and members of the family had just finished a 10-minute conversation with Dr. Grondin.

Before leaving for home, she said her husband, who entered the institute Wednesday, had known for three days that he was one of three possible candidates for operation.

The institute spokesman said Mr. Murphy had suffered three strokes, the first in 1959.

Everyone was "optimistic" that the transplant operation would be a success.

Earlier today, Dr. David said in an interview:

"We prepared ourselves for many months for the operation and today was about the time we had expected to do it.

"According to blood tests, Murphy was best suited and he also needed it the most."

TWO TEAMS OPERATE

Two medical teams were involved in the operation. A team of 12 was with Mr. Murphy and one of nine with Mrs. Rondeau, who died just before the transplant operation after having lain for a time in a heart-lung machine.

Dr. David said that at the crucial moment of the heart transfer, both teams had to be perfectly timed.

Of the world's 17 previous heart transplant patients, seven still survive.

Mrs. Rondeau's kidneys went to Martha Zanna, 13, of Montreal, and Mrs. Giselle Grenier, 23, of Quebec City. Both were reported in satisfactory condition.

. . . 80 PROMISES IN GRIT PLATFORM

accurate labelling and packaging of goods and cut down misleading advertising and credit practices. There will also be an attempt to develop a federal-provincial scheme for automobile safety and the Liberals pledge themselves to re-introduce as soon as possible the last parliamentary session's bill to lower drug prices.

The government promises to establish a communications satellite system to be administered by a public private corporation, to extend television radio services to remote northern areas and to introduce immediate legislation which would allow the provinces to fulfill their constitutional responsibilities in educational broadcasting.

No new social welfare programs are offered but the Liberals intend to streamline the administration of existing schemes and to "aim new initiatives at selective forms of assistance, designed to fill in the gaps in our social services and to stimulate self-improvement for the economically deprived."

One of the most far-reaching planks deals with the reforms of Parliament. The Liberals promise to revise the rules and structures of the House of Commons, to provide more research assistance to MPs, to appoint a permanent speaker and to initiate, on an experimental basis, televised House or committee proceedings. A re-organization of the Senate is pledged as well as the revision of the functions and organization of the cabinet and the prime minister's office.

The platform reflects Pierre Trudeau's preoccupation with the constitution and as well as pledging continued negotiations toward a new British North American Act it hints at the possibility of provincial appointments to the Senate and the Supreme Court of Canada. The party also promises to "seek an early agreement with Quebec and Ontario, and the support of the other provinces, to establish a tripartite planning and development agency for the capital region."

CONSOLIDATE

In terms of raising government efficiency the Liberals promise to reorganize and consolidate the functions of departments which now have overlapping jurisdictions and to initiate a program that would foster greater freedom of movement between the civil service and private enterprise, unions, and farm associations.

To sponsor greater exports the Liberals intend to send a major trade and economic mission to Latin America and to mobilize special efforts which would expand trade with the nations of the Pacific area. There is also a promise to direct more government funds into research on the problems of environment, human resources, housing, natural resource development, northern development, water pollution, space telecommunications, transportation, transmission of energy and nuclear energy.

REVIEW ACTS

Several reforms in business laws are included, such as a review of the Combine's Investigation Act, a strengthening in the administration of the Bankruptcy Act, and the enactments of a federal Co-Operative Act and a federal Securities Act.

On resource development the Liberals come out for a basic inventory of our national resources, the introduction of a new water act and better programs for control and elimination of air and water pollution.

Eight items in the platform are devoted to Indians and Eskimos, including the revision of the Indian Act, the reintroduction of the Indian Claims Bill and settlement of outstanding commitments of treaty rights in the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

Senators To Debate

By The Associated Press

Senators Eugene J. McCarthy and Robert F. Kennedy, each trying to block the other's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, will meet face Saturday in televised debate.

Until he lost to McCarthy Tuesday in the Oregon primary, Kennedy had been ignoring his opponent's daily challenges to join him before the cameras.

Oregon boosted McCarthy's stock at Kennedy's expense and suddenly it made it harder to say no to a debate.

The ABC network announced Thursday the pair would meet on a one-hour telecast, entitled Issues and Answers: A Special Report, originating from San Francisco.

The Knife-Edge

THE INDOMITABLE QUALITY of le Grand Charles, which enabled him to fight on for years in exile when the Nazi flood overwhelmed his homeland, has reinforced him in the present crisis which threatens to sweep him from the French political scene. But this time General de Gaulle's adversaries are his own people, millions of whom, as students or workers, are in open rebellion against him and his government. He has defiantly refused to abdicate without a fight, and has staked his future on a general election and a referendum. The election will give the nation the opportunity to choose a new government, not a new president, but a clearly adverse result in the referendum on confidence in de Gaulle would see the aging General driven into retirement.

The President charges that the present situation has been precipitated by Communists who are imposing a dictatorship. The widespread labor uprising has indeed showed many of the text-book features of a Communist take-over, with workers seizing factories and setting up committees even in defiance of their own labor union officials. On the other hand the leftist elements charge General de Gaulle with dictatorship and predict that his voice will be silenced by the people.

The President has the power to rule by decree in case of a national emergency, and the current situation by most standards would fall into that classification. However, General de Gaulle declares that he will first submit the matter to the people. He may feel — and perhaps rightly so — that to exercise his supreme power of personal decree might precipitate even worse revolt and provide the last impetus toward national chaos.

Certain it is that France today is on a knife-edge of crisis, and it may have reached a point where even a democratically conducted national election cannot settle the insurrection. This is the crucial problem which must shortly be settled: if, indeed, the country does not go Communist in its voting, will the leftist minority accept the verdict of the non-Communist majority at the polls? In this crisis the possibility is that France's "strong man" could be driven into obscurity in the moment of need, not, as ten years ago, called out of it to rally his country.

Major Cuthbert Holmes Park? Yes

THE PROPOSED 59-ACRE PARK on the Trans-Canada Highway near the entrance to the city is an idea rather than a reality at this time. However, the support the plan has received from various sources gives promise of action. Works Minister W. N. Chant has indicated provincial government approval, Saanich's Mayor Curtis has accepted the idea enthusiastically, and B.C. Hydro, through Dr. Gordon Shrum, has shown encouraging interest. The suggestion that the park be named in memory of the late Major Cuthbert Holmes, long an earnest advocate of parks and recreation areas for Greater Victoria, adds particular interest to the project.

Mayor Curtis has noted the manner in which such a parkland could be dovetailed into plans for Colquitz Creek improvement, giving Greater Victoria another recreation area of imposing proportions.

There are formalities and technicalities which would have to be met to bring the scheme to fruition, but those pose no insurmountable difficulties.

Reaction to the proposal reflects current widespread appreciation of the need for more park space to meet the requirements of an expanding urban community. Our people, and interests concerned with land ownership, are showing commendable foresight in supporting such moves to assemble parkland while property is still available. This is another project which deserves every support.

Widening the Nuclear Pact

AN IMPORTANT AMENDMENT to the nuclear non-proliferation treaty now being debated in the United Nations General Assembly may meet the major objections voiced by a number of countries and assure the support of a strong majority of member nations for the pact. Endorsed by both the United States and the Soviet Union, the amendment significantly alters the treaty, making it not just an attempt to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons but initiating a halt to the nuclear arms race among the major powers. It also brings the treaty specifically under the objectives stated in the UN Charter concerning working for world peace, and emphasizes that nuclear fuel for peaceful purposes would be made freely available to non-nuclear weapons countries committed to the treaty.

In a significant speech prior to introduction of the amendment, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kutnetsov also indicated that his country would be prepared to reopen the question of limiting anti-ballistic missile systems as a part of disarmament measures, a possibility which has not been given much consideration for several years because of the escalation of the Vietnam war.

The one missing element in the non-proliferation treaty is still some form of American-Soviet guarantee that would end the possibility of nuclear blackmail being used by China against non-nuclear states. For India, particularly, this is still a sticking point, but it is not necessarily a barrier to acceptance of the treaty by most other UN members.

Guns and Bread

DR. JOSUE DE CASTRO, PROfessor at the University of Brazil and a former president of the United Nations' Food and Agricultural Organization, has passed a melancholy judgment on the world of 1968. He says that the developed countries last year spent on armament and defence the equivalent of the Gross National Product of the world's under-developed countries for the same period.

"We cannot," he comments, "call the affluent nations morally developed when they pour down the drain the production eked out by the less developed nations."

The one consoling thought he left from a speech at the University of Montreal on the Christian church and poverty was contained in his statement that a new era of awareness concerning international poverty is arising.

There is, however, a difference between awareness and action. It is one thing to know that we are spending on weapons as much as the less fortunate can amass in their struggle for subsistence. Now we know the story, what are we going to do about it? Work harder and be more generous so that we can create instruments of destruction or defence against other peoples' instruments of destruction, and at the same time do more to feed the hungry?

"... No hard feelings, though ..."

A Capital Sun Draws Quebec Talent

AT times in politics the wood is obscured by the trees. Some facts may be so obvious that few people pause to consider their significance. There has been much comment about the high calibre of the candidates of all parties presenting themselves for nomination in the province of Quebec. Although many of the names may be unfamiliar to persons elsewhere in the country, the biographical data is certainly impressive. Less noted is the plain meaning to be drawn from the emergence of all this talent. Evidently something has happened in Quebec which has created a new political reality and destroyed an assumption to which many people subscribed with apparent reason only a few short years ago.

Western

The assumption was that Quebecers could not care less about Ottawa. For men of ambition all roads led to the new action centre, Quebec City.

The trend began when Mr. Jean Lesage, a former federal minister, became premier of Quebec and included in his cabinet a number of former MPs. It accelerated as the quiet revolution focussed attention on the provincial capital. The new magnet attracted not only politicans but also civil servants. It drew not only Liberals but also Conservatives, especially after 1962 and later when Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership became unacceptable to the Quebec wing. Among those who abandoned the Ottawa field were Mr. Remi Paul, now the Quebec Speaker; Mr. Clement Vincent, now Quebec minister of agriculture; Mr. Leon Balcer, who ran unsuccessfully as a Liberal provincial candidate and Mr. Paul Martineau who became a member of the Prevost royal commission looking into aspects of criminal law in Quebec.

Monetary Magnet

It is possible that the rush was accelerated by the action of the Quebec legislature which increased members' indemnities to the Ottawa level.

The imperious behaviour of the Lesage government was reflected in public attitudes which brought bitter protests from Quebec federal members. By extremists they were characterized as "vendus." But it was not merely the separatists who treated them with condescension. One former minister, addressing a Montreal audience, exclaimed: "Ottawa is not a foreign government and yet, in Quebec, we've reached the point where we treat it worse than the government in Moscow."

This is no isolated example. Federal ministers at that time were commonly in the position of defending themselves. Thus the late Mr. Favreau delivered a speech in October 1964 which included this passage.

"But I accept less readily the accusation of betraying my fellow French Canadians — indeed, I reject it totally, because I am conscious of being, with my colleagues, in the first line of defence of French Canada. Thus I remind those, on the one hand, who reproach us with abandoning our homeland of Quebec that if in Quebec City we need dynamic men to ensure our long-term salvation, in Ottawa, we also need champions who are committed, and determined, to sweep aside obstacles likely to hinder French Canada's rebirth. Those who are absent, must it be said again, are always wrong; and you may be sure that Ottawa will not necessarily make us a gift of our rights if we sulk out of the discussion, our heads in the sand, like ostriches . . ."

Tide Turned

It seems in retrospect that the tide turned in 1965 when Mr. Pearson succeeded in enlisting the "three wise men" (Messrs. Marchand, Pelletier and Trudeau) for his federal cause. In any case it is now obviously in flood.

On the Liberal side, the most prominent leader to switch from the provincial to the federal field is Mr. Eric Kierans. His fight to purge the Quebec party of Levesque-style separatism is within recent memory. It is significant, however, that at one time he was a strong provincialist who had his own collisions with the federal authority.

On the Conservative side, the rush to board the Ottawa bus is a most interesting development because many of these candidates are nationalists whose aspirations might be expected to centre on Quebec City. They are not, apparently, held back by nagging thoughts that they are abandoning the homeland. They are commendably available for service despite the fact that in Quebec City they could earn the same pay for a great deal less work. Somehow they have been persuaded that Ottawa is where the action is.

Mr. Daniel Johnson's feud with Mr. Trudeau may in fact be rather costly. After all Mr. Faribault, a constitutional writer and respected businessman was supposed to be the premier's great catch. He is now deep in federal politics.

So is Mr. Julien Chouinard, who was deputy minister of justice; a luminary of the Quebec civil service recruited by Mr. Jean Lesage.

Then there is Mr. Yves Ryan, Mayor of Montreal North and brother of Mr. Claude Ryan, editor of Le Devoir and a leading exponent of moderate nationalism. He too has felt the pull of Ottawa.

The most reluctant and possibly the least nationalist of the group is Mr. Paul Martineau, a former federal minister. But he too has made his choice and is trying for a come-back in Pontiac.

In these circumstances it has become almost unnecessary for Mr. Trudeau to emphasize the role that Quebecers play in Ottawa. (There were in fact 11 in the Trudeau cabinet although one, Mr. John Turner, is now seeking election in an Ottawa constituency.) The political roads to the federal capital are now so crowded that his opponents have made the point for him. Why the rush if Quebecers could not care less what happens in Ottawa?

It is not surprising in this drastically altered situation that Mr. Levesque has seen fit to postpone the day of Quebec deliverance.

Letters

Sculptured

I feel moved to comment on your recent articles on Mr. Lionel Thomas. While I have every respect for Mr. Thomas as the professor of fine arts at the University of British Columbia, this is not the only prerequisite to make him a good artist, or as in this case, sculptor.

I have worked at the new museum site and have studied his most recent work. While I don't particularly care for it, the artistic value of the sculpture does not represent the major issue.

As I see it the press seems troubled with the acceptance of the sculpture and the method by which the contract was let.

Perhaps the members of the press should approach this issue from a different point of view. After all, accurate or not, "beauty is in the eye of the beholder," but we are all taxpayers. —J. E. Waters, 490 Viaduct Road, R.R. No. 3.

Senate "Hacks"

In an exclusive interview with the Canadian Press just before he resigned as Prime Minister, Lester B. Pearson gave his opinion of Canadian politics. Regarding the Senate he said, "I know that in the present Senate there are only two or three who were not active party workers when they were appointed. Non-partisan senatorships have been offered to two or three others and were turned down. I appointed many Liberals, I know, and by their appointment they became 'party hacks' at once to journalists, however distinguished and successful they may have been."

However, he does not deal with the reason why the journalists and the public consider them party hacks. When practically all appointments to the Senate are active party workers, many of them defeated candidates rejected by the voters, party organizers, bagmen, or other faithful servants of the party in power, how can the public think of them as anything but party servers and not chosen representatives of the people?

How can we imagine we are democratic when the Senate is dominated by one political party and the same party for the past 27 years and the prospect of another 30 or 40 years at the present rate of attrition?

If we really believe in government of the people, by the people and for the people, we can change that and in a short time too. We can ask all candidates in this coming election to declare how they stand on this issue and get their commitment to take action at the first session of the new parliament, either to abolish the Senate altogether, or to have it elected in numbers representative of our population, which should mean not more than half the present number. — H. McPhail, Vancouver.

'The New Politics' Nonsense Exposed

ALL the political cliches are wrong, as usual. Before the Oregon voting, the prediction was heard on all sides that Sen. Robert F. Kennedy would win all the primaries and thereby sew up the Democratic nomination. That one was dead wrong, and it would still have been wrong, even if Sen. Eugene McCarthy had not won the primary there. How wrong it was had been shown last Monday, when the Pennsylvania delegation caucussed and produced a large majority for Vice-President Hubert Humphrey. The caucus was scheduled for Monday because the Humphrey people expected a Kennedy victory in Oregon, and wanted to counter the victory's impact by showing their own strength in an impressive manner.

Alsop

The important thing was the the vice-president had so much strength in Pennsylvania, even when big Kennedy wins in both Oregon and California were almost universally anticipated in the political community. It meant that this strength of the vice-president in the decisive big states was never likely to be shaken by Kennedy's win-the-primaries strategy. And of course the vice-president is far less vulnerable to that strategy now.

By the same token, it is also dead wrong to say, as is now being said, that Senator Kennedy may have been stopped, and that Senator McCarthy has been transformed into a serious contender by McCarthy's victory in this WASPish state that might have been made to order for McCarthy.

The big race is still between Kennedy and Humphrey. It will continue to be between Kennedy and Humphrey unless Kennedy loses in California. And in that unlikely event, the vice-president will be the only real gainer.

In this sense, if Senator Kennedy responds wisely to his setback here in Oregon, the setback may actually be useful to him. In the senator's entourage, pre-Oregon, there had been a lot of silly talk about "the new politics," which should now come to an end.

Dead Wrong

The "new politics" seemed to mean that Robert F. Kennedy had to be the people's choice, almost by divine right, and that any other choice by the Democratic convention could only result from the sinister machinations of the "bosses." That, once again, was dead wrong, and for Kennedy himself it was dangerously wrong.

These wicked "bosses," in Pennsylvania for instance, are not in politics to frustrate the people's will, and despite the whispers in the Kennedy camp, they are not in the least subject to pressures from a president who is not in the running for re-election. They are in politics to win elections, and if they back Vice-President Humphrey, as they have done in Pennsylvania, they do so exclusively for the coldly practical reason that they think Humphrey will help them more than Kennedy in their own states.

It was downright alarming to see the unrealistic reaction in the Kennedy travelling caravan to the news of the Pennsylvania caucus. You felt that this was the way an 18th century Duke of Devonshire might have reacted to a tenant farmer's rising at the gates of Chatsworth. There was indignation, but there was no self-questioning.

Yet it was also downright moving to follow Kennedy through California, during the long, brilliant day before he came to Portland to hear the bad news. The crowds were vast, and they were loving—there is no other word.

Exhausted

The senator himself was visibly exhausted. Some of the things he said about Vietnam were pretty shrill, and they were certainly unhelpful to the pursuit of the "honorable settlement without surrender" that he says he wants in Vietnam. Some of his stump-speaking themes, such as be-king-to-the-redskins, were also unlikely to win many votes in Oxnard and Santa Barbara, despite their inherent worthiness

Yet through it all, in all this long, tumultuous day, there ran the far more basic theme of this man's true compassion, his deep engagement in the problems of our time, his passionate wish to tackle those problems for the sake of America. These qualities are the core of Robert Kennedy; and they are also his justification, so to say, for aspiring to the highest office.

Oregon will serve a useful purpose, if it only has the effect of stripping Kennedy down to this core of his—of stopping the nonsense about "the new politics," and persuading him he has to play the game according to the good old rules. The rules are simplicity itself. They merely require Kennedy to persuade a majority of the convention delegates and state leaders that he is the Democrat most likely to win the White House in November.

As matters stand, Kennedy will lose the game if he loses the California primary. But if he wins in California, and then goes on to contest the nomination by showing the country what he is like himself, instead of yielding to his street-fighters' impulse to use a knukle-duster on the opposition, he will still have a good chance of final victory.

Looking Back

From the Times, May 31, 1908.

The first strawberries from Gordon Head arrived in town today, brought by Mrs. S. Walker. Five boxes of first class fruit were brought in as an advance guard of what is said to be a splendid crop, which, with good weather should reach here next week where a good market awaits it.

Given good weather the Gordon Head crop, it is said, will be the largest crop ever sent in from there.

Is Time Running Out for Joey?

By MICHAEL GILLAN
The Globe and Mail

In Canada, as in many other democratic countries, the old-style politics, domination of government by one man who makes all the decisions, distributes all the patronage and always knows "what is best" for the people, is going out of favor. This may be the trend in Newfoundland, where Premier Smallwood has held undisputed sway for the past 20 years.

ST. JOHN'S—The federal election probably could not have been called at a worse time for the Liberal Party in Newfoundland.

Premier Joseph Smallwood, who has run the province like a kingdom for 20 years, appears to be losing his grip on the political system.

Tight money has hit the island. Some of Mr. Smallwood's grandiose development schemes are being severely questioned and the populace this year will pay about 20 per cent more in taxes of all kinds. Two ministers resigned recently, partly over his economic policies.

Fishermen are having difficulty marketing fresh and frozen varieties in North America. And the Conservative Party is undergoing a resurgence.

All this spells trouble for the federal Liberals because, on this island with a population of 500,000 the Liberal Party has been Joey Smallwood. There is little talk of Pierre Trudeau or Robert Stanfield; only Mr. Smallwood and whether one is for or against him.

In the past elections he has stumped the seven ridings haranguing the public that Liberal seats will mean more roads, wharves and other public works projects. This time, some Liberals say that the anti-Smallwood feeling is so high that party strategists have decided to try to keep him off the hustings.

The Liberals held all seven seats in the last federal Parliament, but some think the party might drop two or three. The Conservatives are confident of winning at least two — St. John's East and Bonavista - Trinity-Conception — and say that with luck they can win four or five.

There are many reasons for the apparent decline of the colorful Mr. Smallwood. Any leader is bound to lose popular support after 20 years, especially in an underdeveloped, underemployed province with a high cost of living.

'Farewell'

But during the past year Mr. Smallwood has helped the decline. Many think his win of 39 of 42 legislature seats in 1966 was really a "farewell" vote in expectation that he would finally carry out his oft-expressed plan to retire.

But he has hung on, much to the disappointment of some younger Liberals who would like to try for his job at a leadership convention.

Then a few months ago his son William landed on the front pages of newspapers in a child-custody case. This not only shortened Mr. Smallwood's temper but resulted in his including in his next Throne Speech a promise of legislation to prohibit the reporting of court cases involving divorce or family troubles.

Four months ago he was handed a foot-thick royal commission report on the province's economic prospects which amounted to a partial indictment of his administration's handling of almost every field of activity, including his pet economic development projects.

The report was not made public, but about two weeks ago a copy was obtained by a daily newspaper, the Evening Telegram of St. John's, and lengthy reports of the findings were published.

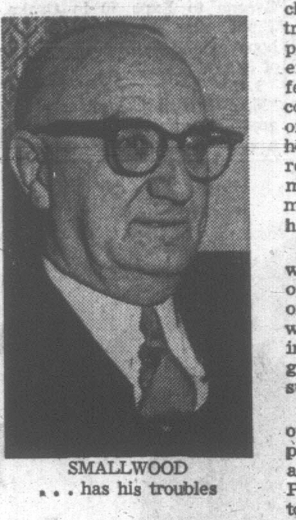
The commission found a total absence of any clear strategy for economic development, a fact it said handicapped all government programs.

Government services to mining, agriculture and resource development lagged far behind those of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. There was poor planning in the housing field and the only efficient transport systems were those provided by Air Canada and the provincially backed Eastern Provincial Airlines.

The government's statistical program was so bad, according to the report, that departmental activities were unrelated to any "known economic program of defined objectives."

The royal commission found itself approached by businessmen for advice because the government had no economists or statisticians.

The report found "relatively" few competent civil servants, partly because of the low repute of the government in the eyes of the faculty at Memorial University. And it said unemployment might rise as much as 32 per cent by 1971.



SMALLWOOD
. . . has his troubles

The findings were startling enough to interested islanders, but there was more to come. The province's public debt, which many thought to be between $100-million and $200-million, turned out to be $509-million.

The report forecast that by the end of fiscal 1971-72 this will have risen to $1.3-billion, and even more if the $90-million power transmission line from Churchill Falls to Newfoundland is — as is planned — built.

A major borrowing problem was foreseen by the commission. Without corrective measures, meaning cuts in expenditures, it estimates that in 1971-72 the province will have cash requirements of about $190-million, including $21-million in sinking fund requirements.

Tories Gloat

The Conservatives in the province are gloating over the report and charging that Mr. Smallwood has brought the island to the verge of bankruptcy. His retort is that Newfoundland is unable to attract capital the way wealthier provinces can and must spend more, take more risks and offer lucrative deals to U.S. and other entrepreneurs.

"We have to take risks here that in other provinces would appear crazy," said a close adviser to the premier last week. The hope is that over several years the gambles will pay off, or that the federal government will step in with more help. Otherwise the province will never challenge the unemployment problem the royal commission forecasts.

An example of the Smallwood technique is found in the way he brought four Holiday Inns to the province in 1966. The government paid the full $9-million cost of erecting the four inns to the specifications of Holiday Inn management.

Holiday Inns operate the inns, pay the loans if they make any money — and at the end of 25 years acquire the four buildings for $1 each.

Mr. Smallwood was criticized in the Legislature for the scheme, but he said the province would lose millions in tourist revenues if the accommodation were not available. He defended the financial arrangement on the grounds there were "good corporate reasons" for Holiday Inns not putting up any money.

Many Others

There have been many other schemes — including some with the well-known and controversial John Doyle — but the ones causing Mr. Smallwood trouble at the moment are his electric power subsidy policy and the financial arrangements for a refinery at Come-by-Chance.

One power subsidy involved the Electric Reduction Co. (ERCO) in which the government, without making any cost-benefit study, agreed to sell power at 2.5 mills although the cost of producing the power might amount to five mills.

The government raised $38-million to finance the project and a condition of the trustees of the companies that supplied the financing said the power must be sold at not less than cost. The trustees could have foreclosed but legislation was pushed through the Legislature to permit the subsidization of power.

When Health Minister John Crosbie resigned from the cabinet he centred his criticisms on Mr. Smallwood's economic policies and said he had severe reservations about so-called cheap power policies.

"The position seems to me to be that we do not have cheap hydro-electric power here in Newfoundland since it costs from 4½ to 5 mills to produce the power so that the cheap power offered to industry only becomes cheap to the purchaser because the government subsidizes the difference between the actual cost of the power and the rate of 2½ mills per kilowatt hour," he said in his letter of resignation, which was submitted at about the same moment Mr. Smallwood fired him.

"This policy, if continued without restriction and without the most careful analysis of the cost-benefit situation with respect to each proposed industry, can lead to far too great a burden on the treasury of Newfoundland."

The other controversy is over the government bill passed last week to establish a Crown corporation, the Provincial Refining Co. Ltd., to enable New York financier John Shaheen to participate in the construction of a $100-million industrial complex — including a refinery to make jet fuel — at Come-by-Chance.

Attractive

Mr. Crosbie and others thought the terms of the agreement were sufficiently attractive without Mr. Smallwood making the additional move he undertook recently. The government had agreed to back the project with a $30-million guaranteed bond issue.

The Crown corporation setup meant that corporation income taxes could be avoided. In return, the Shaheen interests were obligated to demonstrate before going into operation capital and sales contracts for oil.

Mr. Smallwood inserted a clause in the bill to take the agreement one step further; the cabinet would be authorized to grant the Shaheen group $5-million in interim financing if this was found necessary.

The two former ministers have expressed regret that they felt compelled to quit the cabinet during the federal election campaign and have pledged themselves to back federal Liberal candidates, But the Conservatives are making widespread use of their charges that Mr. Smallwood behaves like a dictator and has no time for colleagues who express dissenting views.

With these troubles surrounding the government, it is natural the Conservatives are euphoric. But the Liberals advise a wait-and-see attitude. They have a number of policy pronouncements to unfold before June 25, including a move to enhance Mr. Trudeau's image in the province.

Trudeau's Modern Politics Required a New Mandate

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA — What is really important in the election campaign has now emerged in full flower: the presentation of ideas and proposals by the party leaders for assessments and comparison by the voters.

Waring

In this nation-wide confrontation of minds, the thing that impresses me most is the broadness, depth and idealism of Prime Minister Trudeau's reasoning. When Judy La Marsh told me in January that Trudeau had the best mind in the cabinet, I equated the remark with "very bright guy"—because some in the Pearson cabinet were not all that bright. Now I realize she meant brilliant.

Moreover, Mr. Trudeau is revealing himself as more than a brilliant, if unorthodox, politician. He is disclosing beliefs that label him a humanitarian and philosopher above all else, and is asserting that he will use political powert, if he wins the election, to transfer these beliefs into action.

His philosophical approach is not an ivory tower outlook, for it is solidly buttressed by clear logic. He sees no "Quebec problem," but instead two broader problems. One is federal-provincial relations affecting all provinces. The other is English-French ethnic relations involving English-speaking and French-speaking citizens wherever they may live.

I see him as a pragmatic idealist. He would not stop the export of strategic materials to the U.S. to express disapproval of the Vietnam War, for that would not get at the real problem, which he identifies as "violence in the 20th century." And he considers nuclear weapons neither moral nor immoral: they are simply weapons like other weapons, only immensely more destructive. It is on this ground that he opposes nuclear proliferation, not on the false ground of morality, or even power bloc politics.

He is a democratic idealist, and that is good too. Most politicians submit reluctantly to trial by ballot. He sought it at the first opportunity, and I believe not entirely for opportunistic reasons. I am sure he recognized that his modern ideas call for a new mandate. And he ducks no issues. Why shouldn't he ask the voters to endorse his position in the foreign affairs controversy with Quebec? "Are they too dumb?" he asks his critics. "Are they unable to face reality?"

Trudeau is such an unpolitical politician that he practises telling the truth without evasion. He refuses to try to buy his way back into office with the plethora of promises customary in election campaigns. Instead of promising a new wharf here, a new federal building there, and the employment that goes with them, he promises to reduce tariffs so underdeveloped countries can sell their goods in Canada—in effect exporting Canadian employment to these countries. Foreign aid Trudeau-style could hurt our pay packets and pocketbooks—and he doesn't try to conceal the fact.

An oft repeated Trudeau theme is that Ottawa can't give more unless it takes more, and he does not intend to increase taxes. Moreover, he says he intends to balance the budget. Applying Trudeau's own logic, that means a cutoff at current levels in Ottawa's big spending role.

Offering himself only on the basis of his ideas, Trudeau creates an image of valuing truth, honor and self-respect more than the prime ministership.

Henry Clay put this image in words in 1850 when he said "I would rather be right than be president." Clay never became president.

Why Lobster Transplants To Pacific Are Difficult

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

A reader asks: "Why is it so difficult to introduce lobsters into British Columbia? I understand the federal government has planted lobsters on numbers of occasions in the past with no results and that many more are now being released in Useless Inlet on the west coast of Vancouver Island but that it may be ten years before the outcome is known."

The idea of introducing lobsters to the Pacific Coast is not new. As early as 1896 the first lot was released near Nanaimo and on a number of occasions since then others have been turned loose in various areas as far north as Prince Rupert. So far no attempt to establish the crustacean on this coast has been successful.

There is a persistent rumor that the reason the first planting failed is that the claws were not unpegged before release. While it is conceivable that a few animals may have been accidentally turned loose with this handicap, this could not have occurred in the vast majority of cases.

Carl

There is no problem in keeping the adults alive. They transport easily and have lived for several years on this coast both in captivity and in the wild state. Presumedly the difficulty arises at some other stage in their life history.

The problem of establishing such a complex animal as the Atlantic lobster in a new area is in itself extremely complex. Here we are dealing with a creature that through eons of time has become adapted to a set of highly specialized conditions as found on the Atlantic Coast of the continent north of Cape Cod. In their normal range lobsters live on rocky bottom where the temperatures vary little and where certain types of food organisms are available. Here also they are well able to cope with their normal predators.

In due course the females lay eggs which are carried attached to the swimmerets beneath the abdomen. In time these hatch into larvae which now live a free-swimming life in the sea during which they may be carried many miles by ocean currents. Eventually, after a series of moults they settle on the bottom and take up the more sedentary way of life of the adult.

When such creatures are transplanted to a foreign area they are confronted with a series of problems some of which may be insurmountable. Not only do the adults have to suddenly adapt themselves to different temperature and salinity conditions they also have to find new food sources and new places to live. They also have to contend with new and strange enemies such as our Pacific octopus, the wolf-eel, the harbor seal and our particular kind of mink against which they have no natural defense.

Coupled with these problems is the problem of restricted habitat. Most of our coastal areas have muddy bottoms quite unsuited to lobsters; the necessary rocky type of bottom is found only in a narrow strip along certain parts of our shore line and habitable places are already occupied by our native fauna.

Even if adult lobsters succed in getting a foot-hold in what must be an inhospitable environment there is still considerable chance that males and females will fail to find each other for mating. Then, even granting that fertile eggs are produced, the chances of larvae surviving conditions in a strange ocean and finally settling on a suitable habitat are indeed extremely remote.

The introduction of any foreign species into a new area is a risky business. Most often such efforts end in failure but occasionally the result is disastrous as when the alien form becomes a pest. There is little likelihood of lobsters becoming a nuisance but the advisibility of releasing them in British Columbia is being questioned by biologists including the writer, not only because usually some native species have to give space to the alien but also there is every chance of introducing disease organisms against which local species have little or no immunity. It seems far better to spend the time and money on improving our native forms than in trying to bring in foreign stock of doubtful value.

Espionage Is Nasty Work From Any Point of View

Reviewing "The Philby Conspiracy" for The Washington Post, Thomas W. Braden pronounced himself "aghast" at Philby's treachery.

Almost bereft of his senses by horror, he was at length forced "to face an abasing truth: that it is possible for a man to accept from those with whom he walks all that they can give in affection, well-being, education, trust and honor, and in return lie to them, steal from them, betray them, even murder them."

All true, but who is Braden to point the finger? He may not himself have stooped to being a double agent, but he stooped plenty when he worked for the CIA. To vary the Biblical saying, he sees the beam in his neighbor's eye but not the (somewhat smaller) beam in his own.

Without the slightest compunction, when he was working for the CIA Braden deceived the American people, in the matter of the foundations and other ostensibly worthy organizations which he covertly financed with CIA money. It was all in the name of national security, of course — which may cleanse Braden's conscience — but he can hardly hold himself up as a model of rectitude. It is hard to see why he gets so emotional about Philby, or about any other operator in the intelligence business, where some are sure to be found serving two masters or else serving one and deceiving the other.

By all the evidence at hand, the CIA is no more scrupulous than any other intellegence service in its operations. Remember Francis Gary Powers, the hillbilly who became a first-class flier and was downed in the Soviet Union while flying a U-2 photographic plane — thereby breaking up a scheduled Big Four Summit meeting and prolonging the cold war?

The Los Angeles Times recently carried a story about him which leaves us aghast, though not as aghast as Tom Braden because we do not pretend to be observe the world from so elevated a moral station.

At 38, Powers is working as a test pilot for Lockheed, which was his ostensible employer when he was flying for the CIA. His mishap occurred on May 1, 1960, and the Soviets gave him a 10-year sentence after a show trial in which Powers confessed all. In 1962, however, he was exchanged for the Soviet spy Rudlof Ivanovich Abel.

In 1963, he divorced his first wife and married an attractive CIA psychologist, with whom he lives (incognito, or at least not to be interviewed or even called on the telephone) in a $40,000 home in the foothills of the Verdugo Mountains.

But there is more to his story than that.

The U-2 in which Powers did his spying was equipped with a special destruct mechanism which, when actuated, was designed to blow up the plane, after allowing the pilot 70 seconds to eject and get far enough away to survive.

But there was some question about the length of the delay in the minds of some of the U-2 pilots, and that may have had something to do with the fact that Powers is alive and still flying, with the $50,000 back pay he received and the medal which the CIA awarded him in 1965 — very quietly.

The cover story which had been prepared in advance by the CIA did not assume a live pilot, or an unexploded aircraft. In his book, "The Real CIA," the former executive director of the CIA, Lyman B. Kirkpatrick, Jr., recalled sitting in Alan Dulles' office and listening to Dick Bissell "explain how it would have been impossible for the pilot to have survived the crash and therefore that the United States should stick to the cover story . . .

And in his memoirs, "Waging Peace," General Eisenhower refers to the self-destroying mechanisms and says he was told by CIA and the Joint Chiefs that "in the event of mishap . . . it would be impossible . . . for the Soviets to come in possession of the equipment intact—or unfortunately, of a live pilot."

Unfortunately — or fortunately? At any rate, Powers did not throw the destruct switch. He said that the forces exerted by the spinning plane were such that he could not reach the switch.

Suspicious persons (such as ourselves) might wonder whether the CIA had plotted to destroy plane and pilot in the one explosion. The author of the Los Angeles Times story wonders too. It is a fair surmise that the CIA did scheme to destroy one of its own agents in order to maintain its cover story.

This type of "intelligence" is a dirty business all around, Even in reference to a character like Philby, moral indignation can seem out of place.

When the Genetic Code Breaks

SPECTRUM
(British Science News Journal)

In all living cells there is a vital blueprint, the genetic material which determines its structure. But what happens if the blueprint becomes damaged? What guards the guardians?

New research, by Dr. John Lett and his colleagues at the Chester Beatty Research Institute's Laboratory in Surrey, has provided a possible answer.

They suggest that the long chains of DNA, nucleic acid, which carry the genetic code are circular. They form a track, around which travels a complex of working parts, a sort of molecular machine which has the job of duplicating the DNA. (In doing its job the genetic code has continually to be copied so that the copies can travel off to control the structure of new cells and new working parts.)

After duplicating the entire genetic code, the "machine" will have completed one circuit.

Its arrival back at the start of the circuit then automatically kicks off another enzyme complex on its way around the circle. This one is an inspector checking to see if there is anything wrong with the new DNA.

If it finds an error, then it cuts out the damaged piece, leaving a gap in the circle.

The gap is filled in and repaired by yet a third molecular machine, a repairing machine which is called in from elsewhere in the cell. Only when the necessary repairs have been completed all the way around the circle does the inspecting machine return to the start. In its turn, it then starts the duplicating machine on its way round the circle.

So replication is endlessly followed by checking and if necessary repair, so that no faulty piece of genetic code is ever duplicated and allowed to spread errors around the body.

TO COST $18 MILLION

Expanded Ferry Run For Digby Announced

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

YARMOUTH — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau announced here Thursday his government will provide a new ferry service between Digby and Saint John in New Brunswick costing an estimated $18,000,000.

Drawing a crowd of around 3,000, his evening meeting in Yarmouth Arena was the most enthusiastic and successful of his full day of barnstorming around Nova Scotia.

He stressed that his announcement of a new ferry was not a "mere election promise." He said "it is already in the works."

He was in New Brunswick and started the day's campaigning by "mainstreeting" in Newcastle and Chatham before flying to Moncton where he did more "mainstreeting" and delivered a speech in the Moncton Arena.

Tonight he is scheduled to fly to Newfoundland. He will tour that island province Saturday.

FREIGHT, PASSENGERS

On the ferry between Digby and Saint John it is estimated the two terminals will cost $10,000,000.

The Canadian Pacific Railway will build and operate the ferry vessel. It will be a freight-auto-passenger ferry replacing the existing auto-passenger ferry.

It was the second political plum the prime minister announced during his Thursday tour. Earlier he said he had decided to ask the Atlantic Development Board to consider proposals from new or expanding industries located in the Nova Scotia cities of Halifax and Dartmouth and the New Brunswick cities of Saint John and Fredericton. The board would be asked to look at proposals for assistance in these areas equivalent to that available from the area development agency.

ATTRACT INDUSTRY

He forecasts this will assist Halifax and Dartmouth in attracting industries. In the long run it would contribute to the over-all prosperity of the Maritime provinces.

He hammered hard on the theme wherever he went in the Maritimes that regional development was a top priority item for his government. He pointed out that the Atlantic Development Board is intended to stimulate economic growth and said it was a force to help alleviate regional disparity which he saw as a threat to national unity.

His rally in the Yarmouth Arena was by far the most successful of the day. He delivered a "sock it to them" speech and won frequent rounds of cheers and applause.

He also drew frequent boos from a small group of Creditistes and a larger group of Progressive Conservatives in the arena.

The great majority of the crowd cheered and applauded him as he suggested that those who were "booing" were disgruntled and unhappy Conservatives whose party had been preaching "economic gloom" in the campaign.

STANFIELD SIGNS

Wherever Mr. Trudeau went he encountered Stanfield banners and placards.

Speaking at Kentvillen in a ball park, Mr. Trudeau hit another favorite theme of his in his speeches—the need to keep the country united. He said there must be a close exchange between the people and its government. Television is a good medium for the people to see what is happening, he said, but stressed it is a "one-way street" because it did not give the reaction of the people.

What was needed to get that reaction, he said, is a political party like the Liberal party. It "feeds back" to the government the reaction of the people.

. . . FRANCE

Andre Malraux, an old de Gaulle confidant and one of France's most eminent writers and art historians, continues as minister of state for cultural affairs.

Maurice Schumann, who has been minister of state for scientific research and atomic and space affairs, was appointed minister of state for social affairs.

There are 23 ministers and six secretaries of state on the new cabinet list. The outgoing cabinet had 22 ministers and seven secretaries of state.

Two gasoline companies announced they were starting to deliver gasoline to Paris service stations. Activity in the Alsace region of eastern France was reported almost back to normal, except for the railways. Mail was delivered in Angouleme, in south-central France, for the first time in two weeks. Some workers were asking for police protection to thwart efforts of militant strikers to keep them off the job.

De Gaulle's appeal for support, coupled with his dissolution of the National Assembly and institution of temporary monetary controls to protect the value of the franc, sent hundreds of thousands of Frenchmen marching through Paris Thursday night in a massive demonstration in his behalf.

It was too early to tell the ultimate outcome, but lines were drawn after two weeks of chaos and tensions appeared eased.

The 77-year-old chief of state, rejecting leftist calls for his resignation, had said Thursday he would remain in office to combat an attempt by "totalitarian communism" to take over the strikebound nation. George Pompidou, his executive officer as head of the government, stayed on in the premiership.

TALKS TO PRESS

Georges Seguy, secretary-general of the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor, told a news conference he was not opposed to restarting negotiations if government and industrial leaders showed signs of making satisfactory concessions.

No mention was made of any political conditions—disappearance of the de Gaulle regime—that had become more and more insistent in union statements in recent days.

Seguy and other labor leaders worked out a agreement with Pompidou and industry chiefs early Monday that called for a 10-per-cent wage increase during the year and other benefits.

But the workers, who had started the massive strikes without any call from the top, refused to accept the settlement. They wanted more money and other concessions.

The Socialist Workers Force published a communique saying it hoped "the talks will go ahead actively in the sectors where they are started, and that they should be started again where they have been interrupted." The union said it was against all street demonstrations which, "in the present conditions, could only aggravate the situation."

HEED APPEAL

Yves Guena, minister of posts and telecommunications, asked postal workers to get back to their jobs and some were reported heeding the appeal. In Angouleme, mail was delivered for the first time in two weeks.

Reports of a back-to-work movement came from a number of small plants across the country.

Man Pays $35 Fine For Kicking Car

A 20-year-old man convicted of causing wilful damage was fined $35 Thursday.

Lorne Arthur, 1030 Dunford, pleaded not guilty to kicking the right side of a car belonging to Alfred Kunert, 425 Kelly, in an incident arising from an argument May 11 at Western Speedway.

Arthur said the kick actually missed the car in question.

Magistrate William Ostler remarked it seemed "inconceivable" someone could kick at a car and miss.

NOMINATED as first Negro judge west of the Mississippi is Cecil F. Poole, 53, U.S. attorney in San Francisco. He will likely fill the vacancy in the federal court in Oakland.

BENNETT PICKS A WINNER

'Minister Extraordinary'

World champion skier Nancy Greene will boost tourism for B.C. as a "minister extraordinary" this summer, Premier Bennett said Thursday.

Miss Greene was in Victoria to discuss her role—on a part-time basis—as a goodwill ambassador. She met with Premier Bennett, Attorney-General Peterson and Education Minister Brothers, who is MLA for her hometown, Rossland.

Premier Bennett said her duties will include giving "great leadership to the youth of B.C." and assignments in the field of tourism.

EXPO 70

Asked if he will send Miss Greene to Expo 70 in Osaka, Japan, the premier said: "I hope so . . . we think the world of her."

Later he introduced her as "Miss British Columbia" to a group of university students on a cross-Canada tour sponsored by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

NANCY
. . . "Miss B.C."

The premier led the all-male group with a rousing three cheers for the Olympic skier on the steps of the Legislative Buildings.

The premier told the students all the world is in trouble but the problems of B.C. are small in comparison.

He said Canada is a great nation and everyone is Canadian in this province—"there are no hyphenated Canadians here."

'SMALL ISSUE'

Asked if the French-English problem will divide the country, he said, "Never . . . it is a small issue magnified by some people."

The premier warned the students against becoming part of the cocktail-hippie society.

The students later met Mayor Hugh Stephen and had dinner at McPherson restaurant.

Earlier they toured the MacMillan and Bloedel logging operation at Copper Canyon, near Chemainus.

The students left for Vancouver Thursday night.

3 Candidates At Breakfast

Three major federal candidates in the Victoria riding addressed members of the Kiwanis Beaver Club at a breakfast meeting Thursday.

Liberal candidate David Groos and Conservative candidate Eric Charman spoke mainly on the Quebec problem while NDP candidate Dr. Harvey Richardson emphasized research and industrial development for Victoria and Canada.

"Ottawa will not negotiate its powers in favor of the ten provinces," said Mr. Groos, the riding's incumbent since 1963.

"The smokescreen which is hovering over this issue is clever," he said. "Let the provinces deal with foreign states in matters of their own jurisdiction and once this point is established then the provinces can nibble a bit more later on ... that has been the experience.

TWO CANADAS?

"This is separatism by stages ... slowly but surely leading to two Canadas."

Mr. Groos said if a state is to be listened to in international affairs it must speak with one voice ... not 10 ... however separate but equal the voices.

He quoted Prime Minister Trudeau as saying Canada had only one address in international affairs ... Ottawa.

"As a party we stand or fall by one single united country. We do not believe it is our duty to belabor Quebec or 'put Quebec in its place.'"

Mr. Charman discussed the stand taken previously by Conservative leader Robert Stanfield on the Quebec issue and quoted him as saying "foreign policy for Canada must be one and undivisible."

Mr. Charman cited his experience on the board of directors of the Canadian Junior Chamber of Commerce in dealing with such problems.

He recalled in 1963 when the Quebec Jaycees wanted a separate constitution for their organization, were refused, and pulled out of the national body to which they later returned.

Shifting from the Quebec issue Mr. Charman said the issue in the election should not be the two newly elected national leaders or their images but the sending of a strong efficient voice of Ottawa to speak for the constituents and the constituency.

He also spoke of the disappearance of shipyards in the city and made reference to the reduction of clearing house figures for the city.

Dr. Richarson was introduced by his campaign manager Lloyd Brereton who pointed out his candidate's reputatio as an internationally known scientist and a practical man.

He said Dr. Richardson had succeeded in convincing the city that voters have the right to erect signs on their property in support of candidates.

Dr. Richardson told his audience that Greater Victoria would be an ideal site for a research centre and promised if elected to further the growth of research and "new-look" industries in Canada and Victoria.

He said the fiscal policy of the NDP would remove the financial disadvantages which penalize Canadian industries today in competition with those in the United States.

"Canada is giving foreign aid to the richest country in the world by making it necessary for its skilled people to go to the United States to work for the benefit of our competitor for world markets," he said.

Joe Greene Survives 'Crash' Campaign

HUMBOLDT, Sask. (AP)—An aircraft carrying Agriculture Minister Joe Green, spun around on landing Thursday night in a farm field near Bruno, 2½ miles south of Humboldt. There were no injuries.

A Liberal party spokesman in Saskatoon, 50 miles west of Humboldt, said the minister's party had planned to land in the field en route to a party meeting at Bruno. Rain had dampened the field, causing the plane to spin around. The plane received slight damage.

The single-engine plane carried Mr. Green, his executive assistant Gerry Cartland and pilot Dan Crichton. All three walked away from the plane.

Mr. Greene, joking with a group of persons after the landing, said "three strikes and you're out." This was a reference to a crash he was in near Woodstock, Ont., nine weeks ago. He referred to the landing Thursday as his second crash.

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Robarts said Thursday he has ordered withdrawn from circulation a draft speech for use by Conservative members of the legislature which describes Prime Minister Trudeau as a "political upstart" who favors a "collectivist socialistic approach."

I completey disagree with the statements contained in the draft speech," the premier said in a press release.

The speech was written by William Lee, research director for the Progressive Conservative caucus in the legislature.

The speech was distributed Tuesday for use by Conservative MPs taking part in the June 25 federal election campaign.

Mr. Lee said the speech was not designed to be an attack on Mr. Trudeau but rather as a positive statement in favor of Robert Stanfield as a life-long Conservative.

TORONTO (CP) — Does Conservative Leader Stanfield prefer blondes?

At a press conference Wednesday he said all the kissing during the campaign for the June 25 election is giving him a feeling of insecurity.

"Every time I get kissed by a pretty girl someone else decides he wants my job."

"Later, however, he was still willing to pose kissing Edita Olboeter, 19, a blonde.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Duff Roblin today resigned from the Manitoba legislature to clear the way for his candidacy in the June 25 federal election.

Mr. Roblin, who resigned last fall as premier, had been in the legislature for 19 years. All MLAs in the federal race are required to give up their seats by the June 10 nomination day.

Mr. Roblin is a Progressive Conservative candidate in Winnipeg South Centre, which includes his provincial constituency of Wolseley.

QUEBEC (CP) — Financier Marcel Faribault said Thursday night foreign bankers and industrialists are withdrawing capital from Canada and the economic situation is worsening because of internal constitutional problems.

Mr. Faribault, 59, Progressive Conservative candidate for Montreal Gamelin in the June 25 federal election, told a party meeting the federal, provincial and municipal governments are all having trouble financing public affairs as a result of the constitutional debate.

He said Canada can no longer avoid adopting a new constitution to place emphasis on decentralization, since this would permit greater regional development for areas like Quebec that lag behind economically.

"The longer it is put off," he said, "The worse the economy gets."

SASKATOON (CP)—The Senate should be strengthened and given an increased opportunity to initiate legislation, Senator Paul Martin says.

The upper house contains many of Canada's best lawyers, he said, and they could do much of the work now done by royal commissions. Senators are also well equipped to investigate matters such as a federal bill of rights.

"I hope as leader to be one of the instruments in strengthening that body of Parliament," he told political science and economic sudents at the University of Saskatchewan.

Mr. Martin was appointed to the Senate April 23.

WINNIPEG (AP)—Canadian women have little influence in politics and the part they do play may be declining, the royal commission on the status of women was told Thursday.

Most women interested in politics have been "sidelined in women's groups" by provincial and federal parties, said a hefty brief from the Manitoba Volunteer Committee on the Status of Women.

"The lack of influence of women's organizations in turn appears to be resulting in a decline of women participating in politics through the medium of women's groups."

The brief, the first presented to the commission comprising two men and five women at the beginning of its 18-day tour of central Canada, recommended that all political parties "make a greater effort" to encourage women to run as candidates in the next federal and provincial elections.

Even Grit Organizers Fear Worst

(Special to the Times)

WINNIPEG — Which way flows the Liberal tide in Manitoba?

Many political prognosticators including some top Liberal organizers suspect the worst in the lone Prairie seat the Liberals held in the last House of Commons.

Speculation in Winnipeg is still cented on the possibility of a Liberal blood feud in the St. Boniface constituency following the recent overthrow of veteran's affairs minister Roger Teillet at the constituency nomination meeting.

Mayor Joe Quay will be carrying Liberal colors in the riding, and Mr. Teillet has since confirmed that he will not be running again.

The St. Boniface organization apparently snuffed a revolt brewing in party ranks last Monday by confirming the election of Mayor Quay.

Mr. Teillet has since stated he would do everything he could to help Mr. Quay with his campaign.

RAMIFICATIONS

Despite the rosy picture of harmony being painted in the riding some party officials are expecting ramifications from the deposing of Mr. Teillet, possibly at the polls in June.

Despite the possibility of an ebb in Liberal strength, in St. Boniface other urban ridings are showing signs of a Trudeau surge.

Lloyd Axworthy's campaigners in Winnipeg North Centre are making strong noises for their candidate.

E. B. Osler in Winnipeg South Centre, is expected in some quarters to give former Premier Dufff Roblin a run for his money and James Richardson has a strong campaign aimed at upsetting Conservative Bud Sherman in Winnipeg South.

Federal cabinet ministers made their first election forays into the province this week to support local candidates in their electioneering.

Senator Paul Martin stumped Winnipeg North Centre with candidate Lloyd Axworthy and Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene was in Brandon-Souris aiding Liberal candidate James R. Bates.

Mr. Green lashed out at both opposition party leaders and compared Conservative leader Robert Stanfield to a crayfish—always moving backwards.

Senator Martin called for senate reforms and labeled Prime Minister Trudeau as a man of great courage who was capable of keeping the country together.

Mr. Martin said national unity was the most important issue facing the country today.

'And They Said It Won't Last

EDMONTON (CP) — "They came out with great headlines that this government couldn't last three months. Then they gave it 18 months, then one term. Now it's 33 years."

Today, Ernest C. Manning marks his 25th anniversary as premier of Alberta and head of the government they said couldn't last three months. Only George Murray, premier of Nova Scotia for 26½ years from 1896, has governed a Canadian province for a longer term.

But when Alberta's ninth premier reminisces, he likes to go back the full 33 years to 1935, when the late William Aberhart led Social Credit to a sweep of all but eight of the 63 seats in the legislature in the party's first venture into politics.

Social Credit has maintained an impressive majority in the ligislature, currently holding 55 of its 65 seats.

Mr. Manning will celebrate his 60th birthday in Sept.

The Man
Who Will Be Our
PRIME MINISTER

Two dynamic new Party leaders are making their first appeal to Canadian voters for a mandate to lead our Country into its vital second century. TO TRENTON

24 Students In Travel Program

Two dozen high school students from Greater Victoria will visit Trenton, Ont., in July as part of the federal government's Young Voyageur program.

The student exchange plan, which will see thousands of teenagers moving back and forth across the country, is a continuation of the centennial travel program.

The 12 boys and 12 girls who will leave July 1 and return on 14th:

Cheryl Noren, Wendy Smith, Dan Maychuk and Lance Hall from Esquimalt High.

Albina Rocca, Colin Heggie and Jeff Whitlock from Mount Douglas High.

Susan Archer, Brenda Gordon, Bill Girard and Norman Tandberge from Mount View High.

Jane Braden, Lynette Goff, Janice Yuen, Bob Bergstrom, Ray Chew and Bob Powell from Oak Bay High.

Rita Bray, Janette Hammer, Anne McKeachie, Judy Robbins, Don Bridgman, Don Prescott and Ray Walker from Victoria High.

The group will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley McFarland of 3945 Dawe.

Maureen Pinckney of Mount Douglas High and Brian Wigen of Mount View High will join another party leaving Sidney for Prince Albert, Sask., Aug. 15.

Chemists Coming To Victoria For One Day

Canada's chemical centre of gravity shifts to Victoria next Thursday when several hundred chemists meet here.

Canada's 51st chemical conference and exhibition sponsored by the Chemical Institute of Canada opens Monday at the University of B.C., Vancouver, but one seminar will be held here. The program features more than 300 papers on scientific advances, says Dr. L. D. Hayward of UBC, general chairman of the conference.

Problems in man's control of his own evolution, the future of the chemical industry in Western Canada, and pollution control are included in topics to be discussed by panels of experts.

A special seminar at the University of Victoria will explore means of coping with today's information explosion and the latest developments in plastics and elastomers.

supervisor in B.C. for the United Steelworkers of America and fourth vice-president of the B.C. Federation of Labour until Thursday's announcement.

Ray Haynes, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labour, said Mr. Baskin has "betrayed the trust of every working man in this province."

And the steelworkers union said in a Toronto statement that Mr. Baskin's appointment "was a personal decision and was not made in consultation with the United Steelworkers of America."

The union, said district 6 director Larry Sefton, "has been opposed and remains opposed to the compulsory mediation aspects of Bill 33."

'SOUR GRAPES'

But the president of the IWAs Victorial local said, "I'm not going to kick the hell out of Baskin. I don't believe he should be chastised. The labor people who criticize him — it's just sour grapes," said Mr. Drew.

Mr. Baskin himself said he is aware of "considerable apprehension on the indiscriminate use of the arbitration features. All I can say is that the commission doesn't have the authority, on its own, to implement these provisions."

The chairman of the commission, Mr. Justice John Parker of the Yukon territorial court, said "I hope there will be few cases where our decisions will have to be binding under the legislation."

David Blair of Vancouver, who left his post as president of the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau to be the third member of the commission, said the compulsory features should be used sparingly but binding decisions may be necessary in cases where the public welfare is clearly threatened.

In his statement, Mr. Haynes said the appointment of a judge indicates the position the federation has taken on the whole question of Bill 33.

'HANDCUFF LABOR'

"The only way the Social Credit government appears to be able to deal with labor matters is through the courts and to make a judge the chairman of a commission designed to handcuff organized labor proves the point."

Referring to Mr. Baskin, he recalled the federation said in a May 15 statement that "no respected labor leader can possibly accept a position on this commission.

"The federation sees no reason to alter the previous statement."

Mr. Haynes said if Bill 33 did not contain compulsory features and if it had been an "honest effort" to come to grips with problems of labor-management relations, it would have welcomed appointment of a labor man to the commission.

"But since Bill 33 has been tailored to fit the needs of big business and those of the Social Credit government, organized labor cannot be expected to welcome Mr. Baskin's appointment," he said.

NO WORRIES FOR LABOR? $122,500 IN SALARIES

Mediation Head 'Used to High Wage Area'—Peterson

By BRUCE YEMEN

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson Thursday indirectly suggested B.C. labor needn't worry about the wage-level views of the newly-appointed mediation commission chairman.

"He's used to a high wage area in the Yukon and the Northwest Territory," said Mr. Peterson in commenting on the appointment of Mr. Justice John Parker of Whitehorse to head the three-man commission.

Mr. Justice Parker will occupy a key spot between one labor and one management representative on the new body entrusted with carrying out the government's controversial Bill 33.

The bill empowers the provincial cabinet to refer any labor dispute to the commission for binding or non-binding arbitration and provides for stiff penalties for any union, worker or company defying the law.

Some Opposition spokesmen charged the government with trying to get a hand into wage controls when it introduced Bill 33 at the last session.

"If we had drawn from the Maritimes, there would be questions raised," Mr. Peterson said, referring to comparatively low salaries paid to workers on the Atlantic Coast.

SEVEN-YEAR TERMS

The appointments are effective June 15 and are for a seven-year term. First task of the commissioners is to hire talented mediators and later to assemble a strong research staff.

Mr. Peterson said he hoped the Mediation Commission Act can be fully implemented "as soon as the necessary staff has been obtained and administrative procedures established."

Appointed along with the 56-year-old judge of the Yukon Territorial Court were Penrod Baskin, 57, B.C. and Yukon area supervisor for the United Steelworkers of America, and David R. Blair, 62, president of the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau. Both are Vancouver men.

The minister acknowledged the salaries being paid the men — $42,500 for the chairman and $40,000 for the other two — are "high."

NO INCREASE

But for one of them (Mr. Blair) the salary would not represent an increase, he said.

The commissioners are the province's highest paid public servants by far — Premier Bennett gets $28,000.

Mr. Peterson said the salaries were required to attract top-calibre men as recommended by Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz in his report on Swedish labor practices, issued early this year.

"The eyes of the world will be on this commission," the minister said.

He described Mr. Justice Parker as a "self-reliant man" whom he has met only twice. He agreed with a reporter that Mr. Baskin, the labor representative, is a "hard-nosed" union man.

He felt the commission members would be "compatible people who will work together as a unit."

When a reporter suggested that initial labor reaction to Mr. Baskin's appointment was not enthusiastic, he said:

"Isn't that unusual . . . They've elected him to their highest offices in the past. It's most unusual they would advance criticism now."

Mr. Baskin was his "first choice" among labor men, Mr. Peterson said, and the provincial cabinet had accepted his first recommended appointments.

He repeated an earlier denial of a charge that top labor union men had turned down the commission job, but he declined further comment on the process of selecting the members except to say there were "dozens of applications."

"I can't say whether the unions or management will accept these men," Mr. Peterson said. "But they should be accepted by them and the public too."

He said it was an advantage to go out of the province for an independent chairman.

In announcing the appointments the minister said the men have "wide and varied experience in labor relations and other matters which will be of great benefit in helping to solve industrial disputes.

FORTUNATE

"British Columbia is fortunate in obtaining the services of an independent chairman . . . who has firmly established a reputation for impartiality in the administration of justice.

"We are also fortunate in obtaining the services of a senior labor and a senior management representative who are thoroughly familiar with industrial relations problems in this province.

"They are the calibre of men who will be able to cut their ties with their former employers and put the interests' of the public first," he said.

BORN IN ENGLAND

Mr. Justice Parker was born in England and received his early education there and in the United States. He graduated from Queen's University with a B.A. in 1934 and attended Osgoode Hall for three years before being called to the Ontario Bar.

He joined the RCAF at the outbreak of the Second World War after practising law in Kirkland Lake for three years. He served at Patricia Bay and was liaison officer in Washington for two years.

In December 1944 he opened a law practice in Yellowknife serving as both defence counsel and a crown prosecutor during the next 14 years. In 1954 he was elected a member of the Northwest Territories Council.

He was appointed judge of the Yukon Territorial Court and is also a member of the courts of appeal of both the Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

He was active in community affairs in both Yellowknife and Whitehorse and is married with three children.

Mr. Baskin spent his early working life in the B.C. woods industry and is a qualified assistant forest ranger and certified log scaler. He has worked in logging camps, sawmills and planing mills in the B.C. interior and on Vancouver Island.

CHARTER PRESIDENT

After working for Cominco at its Trail smelter he became associated with the United Steelworkers of America and was charter president of Local 2655 when it was formed in 1941.

He became a staff representative for the steelworkers in 1943, and during his career was three times elected president of the old Vancouver Labor Council and several times as vice-president of the old B.C. Federation of Labor.

He was elected a member of the executive council of the Canadian Congress of Labor in 1951.

He has been involved in major bargaining for his union throughout Canada and internationally as well. He has been a member of the Board of Industrial Realtions and the Labor Relations Board since 1955 and is a vice-president of the B.C. Federation of Labor.

David Blair entered the investment securities business in Vancouver in 1927 and formed his own company, leaving it in 1952 to take his present position.

He has acted as principal spokesman for the primary pulp and paper industry of B.C. in annual wage negotiations and has been concerned with the administration of labor agreements on the policy level.

He is a former president of the B.C. Cancer Foundation and the Men's Canadian Club of Vancouver.

Girl Pleads Guilty To Theft of Food

An 18-year-old girl who hitchhiked from Ontario this month, pleaded guilty Wednesday to shoplifting $5.32 worth of goods from Woodward's.

Court was told Frances Dennison had taken cigarettes, coffee and bacon. She was wearing a tee-shirt, under a jacket, with the arm-holes ripped to the waist and she placed the articles under the tee-shirt.

Magistrate Ostler remanded the girl to June 6 for pre-sentence report.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Firm prices and some bouyance in oilseeds were the features of light trade at the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Export buying of oilseeds augmented commission house transactions, creating activity in both commodities. Farm deliveries of rapeseed have dropped off, contributing to rallying prices.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Gains at Toronto, N.Y.

Gains were posted today on both the Toronto and New York stock markets in moderately active trading. Wall St. resumed trading after a one-day holiday for Memorial Day observance.

At Toronto speculative industrials were strong.

Brokers at both Toronto and New York attributed today's strength to President Johnson's statement that he would accept a $6 billion spending cut.

'LIKE I WAS CAUGHT WITH HAND IN TILL'

Press Magnate Refused to Resign

(Special to The Times)

LONDON — The Napoleon of newspaper row was toppled Thursday by a trusted lieutenant in a power play that caught Fleet Street napping.

Cecil Harmsworth King, nephew of the late Lord Northcliffe and head of the world's larest publishing company, was unceremoniously dismissed and replaced by his protege, 54-year-old Hugh Cudlipp.

A formidable man of 67, heavy set and with glinting eye, Mr. King said he received a letter Thursday morning while shaving asking hin to resign as chairman of the InIternational Publishing Corporation.

He refused. "I thought it would look as though I'd been caught with my hand in the till," he said in an interview. "So they sacked me."

"Fleet Street is a bit of a jungle," Mr. King philosophized. "This business is not like an old-fashioned minuet, you know."

His replacement, first made known in a television flash Thursday afternoon, was linked with Mr. King's recent intervention into politics. In signed articles in his own newspapers, The Sun and The Daily Mirror, he called for the resignation of Prime Minister Harold Wilson and said the country was facing a grave financial crisis. This had repercussions on the money market.

Mr. King said his dismissal was probably a politically motivated decision. He said his articles criticizing Mr. Wilson had been endorsed at the time by Mr. Cudlipp.

A Fleet Street expert, William Hardcastle, said he believed Mr. Cudlipp led the palace revolution against Mr. King. Observers recalled that Mr. King himslef moved similarly years ago against the former boss, the late Harry Guy Batholomew, a key figure in a newspaper revolution that saw the Daily Mirror, a brawling buzzsaw tabloid, climb to a circulation of more than 4,000,000.

Mr. King recently described the Daily Mirror as "overwhelmingly the best popular paper in the world." He has broadly supported the Labor Party for 30 years, using the Daily Mirror as his principal mouthpiece. "I don't intend to retire into my bath chair," he told an interviewer Thursday night. "I've been in the trade since 1923, that's a pretty good run. It looks like curtains to that, but I may do something else."

Fleet Street could scarcely believe that so formidable a figure as Mr. King could be bloodlessly displaced by the deputy who so long had been his friend and confidant.

Mr. King's newspaper empire includes his chairmanship of the Reed Paper group, with its extensive Canadian interests, and a shareholding in the Chruchill Falls power project being developed by the British Newfoundland Corp. Once on a visit to Dryden, Ont., he petrified Canadian officials by "crowding" a circular saw. "I like to understand how things work," explained the publisher, who has berated Britain's fuddy-duddy bosses for starting their working day at 10 a.m. taking leisurely lunches at the club and possessing little technical knowledge of their own businesses.

In his outspoken way, Mr. King has called Canadian-born Lord Thomson, a fellow press magnate, a reluctant commoner who went cap in hand for a title. Lord Thomson replied: "I like Mr. King. He is a man of honor and integrity. You can trust his word. And I think he feels much the same way about me."

RESTRICTIONS TIGHTENED UP

Amendments tightening up the provincial Consumer Protection Act take effect Saturday.

One of the main changes tightens up restrictions on mortgage money advertising. A number of other provisions seek to strengthen the act.

TSE CHIEF

Seasoned Equities Big Need

The demand for seasoned equities will be double the supply in the near future, the chairman of the Toronto Stock Exchange said Thursday.

Addressing a gathering of Island businessmen, municipal and provincial officials, R. N. Steiner, chairman of the board of governors of the Toronto Exchange, said the situation had caused a detailed study to be made of the potential situation.

"Obviously if the equities are not available in Canada investment money will flow in increasing amounts to foreign equities," he said.

"One of our tasks is to seek out and encourage more Canadian companies to be listed and allow public interest."

Mr. Steiner added that another of the major tasks facing the stock exchange is to find ways and means of seeing that our domestic capital finds its way into domestic development.

"In co-operation with the government and our public companies, the stock exchanges have a responsibility, now and in the future, to provide proper investment vehicles and to operate an efficent market place."

Mr. Steiner said that such a market would provide a means for matching the nation's savings with the nation's opportunities.

He called for a continuing program of education to keep the general public informed on the art of investing.

Last winter, following the Vancouver Stock Exchange lead, Toronto held a series of lectures on investing.

"They were overwhelmingly successful," Mr. Steiner said. "As we all fully know it is essential that the public should be fully informed about the investment process. This is as much a part of a sound equity market as having stock exchanges that function efficiently."

Premier W. A. C. Bennett, sharing the head table with Toronto Stock Exchange officials, welcomed the visitors and urged them to return often.

IMPORT CURBS CONCERN U.S.

Japan Resists Pressure

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japan is resisting growing U.S. pressure that it should liberalize its imports of engines and other automobile parts, the Japanese ministry of international trade and industry said today.

A spokesman said the U.S. unofficially indicated it might invoke Articles 22 and 23 of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade to seek consultations with Japan.

Under the articles, a member nation can request consultations with another member if the latter is deemed to have impaired the former's interest accruing from GATT benefits.

A Japanese foreign ministry spokesman said the U.S. asked Japan to make a commitment on the liberalization of the imports before June 4, when the House of Representatives ways and means committee opens hearings on foreign trade in Washington.

The spokesman said the U.S. stressed the need for such a gesture to forestall possible expansion of protectionist tendencies in Congress-restricting Japanese car imports into the U.S.

However, sources close to the ministry said Japan does not regard its import restrictions on engines and other automobile parts as a violation of GATT rules.

They pointed out other nations also delayed import liberalization on the grounds the industries concerned did not seem to be sufficiently competitive in world markets.

Taxes Took Weston's U.K. Income

TORONTO (CP) — W. Garfield Weston, head of the Weston food empire, said Wednesday that all his 1967 personal income in England disappeared in taxes.

"They took every penny of it," he said following the annual meeting of George Weston Ltd., of which he is chairman.

He said a 40 per-cent profits tax in England and an unsettled economy also led to the sale by George Weston Ltd. of its 51-per-cent share in the Fine Fare supermarket chain to Associated British Foods, another Weston enterprise, for more than $40,000,000. The money was returned to Canada, he said.

"It's the best deal I ever completed," he said. "England is in terrible shape. It would be ridiculous to leave the money there. It is working wonders for our company here."

Weston, 70, who lives in England, said the company has no intention of withdrawing more funds from England.

The annual meeting was told that George Weston Ltd. experienced a gain of 10 per cent in net sales last year to a record $919,016,000.

George C. Metcalf, president, welcomed Connors Bros., an international leader in the packaging of specialty foods and the well-known Brunswick sardines, into the Weston group.

"Through majority control of both Connors and British Columbia Packers, Westons has achieved a commanding position in the fishing industry in Canada."

Metcalfe reported net income was up 29 per cent at $19,772,000 and consolidated assets of almost $350,000,000.

Mediator Appointed In Hotels Dispute

VANCOUVER (CP)— Provincial government conciliation officer Gus Leonidas has been named mediator in the Vancouver beer parlor labor row.

Harold Courson, secretary of the city local of the beverage dispensers union, said the appointment follows a joint request for a mediator by the union and the British Columbia Hotels Association.

The dispute is between 81 hotels in the city and on the north shore and 800 tapmen and waiters.

Grain Handlers, Employers Agree On New Contract

OTTAWA (CP) — The labor department has announced that grain handlers at Vancouver and their employers have agreed on a new two-year contract.

The agreement provides a 25-cent-an-hour increase in pay retroactive to Dec. 1 last year and a further 25-cent increase effective this Dec. 1.

It followed mediation of a dispute between local 133, International Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers of America, and Pacific Elevators Ltd., United Grain Growers Ltd., the Alberta and Saskatchewan wheat pools and Burrard Terminals Ltd.

Mediator of the dispute was D. S. Tysoe, chief federal conciliation officer for B.C.

About 450 grain handlers come under the contract.

QUICK EXIT . . .

Hustling out of damaged racer, driver Al Unser scurries up wire fence following loss of right front wheel (foreground) and collision with outside wall in first turn of Indianapolis 500-Mile Speedway race. Brother Bob went on to win Thursday's classic and set new speed record of 152.882 in "safest race of all". (AP Wirephoto.)

Turbines' Threat Choked by Unser

Mechanical Problems Jinx Granatelli's Powerhouses

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Bobby Unser had a big grin on his face and an undetermined amount of prize money in sight as he discussed his victory and the failure for the second consecutive year of turbines in the Memorial Day 500.

"I couldn't believe it," Unser said after defeating the three powerful turbines entered by Andy Granatelli. The turbine engines were designed, developed and built by United Aircraft of Canada.

"I said before the race if Granatelli didn't win this one he ought to pack up and go home," Unser said.

Unser's prize money will be announced tonight at the traditional victory dinner.

It depended on attendance, cut by prolonged rain, and on the accessories Bobby carried on his American Eagle and its turbo-charged Offenhauser engine.

Fans, meanwhile, to whom the $750,000-or-so purse has only an academic interest, marvelled at how close Thursday's script came to following that of 1967.

BOBBY UNSER
. . . winning smile

FAVORITES FELL APART

Unser, 34, who has had two racing brothers, a racing father and two racing uncles, simply charged until his strongest competitors—notable the favored Lotus turbines—fell apart.

He saw his brother Al crash in the southwest turn, noted he was apparently unhurt, and continued charging.

These Unser boys were running on the track where their brother Jerry was killed in 1959. They also lost an uncle in a stock car test run.

Bobby, winning for the first time, led three times in the race but appeared hopelessly behind Joe Leonard, with 20 miles to go. Leonard's turbine died and he coasted off the track, just as Parnelli Jones did last year in the original turbine with 7½ miles to go.

GOVERNOR FAULTED

S. A. Silbermann, head of the Speedway technical committee, said the turbines have a governor which shuts off the engine if the throttle is advanced too quickly. Leonard's trouble came when got the green light after a minor accident had slowed the pace.

Race writers and broadcasters had picked the three turbines to finish one-two-three. They were driven by Graham Hill of London, Leonard, of San Jose, Calif., and Art Pollard of Medford, Ore.

Hill, the 1966 winner, never led and crashed after 111 of the 200 laps when he lost a wheel. Pollard's turbine quit after 188 laps. The technical committee called it a gear box failure.

FREE OF INJURIES

Nobody was hurt in the race, which brought sunshine for the first time in eight days. The lead changed eight times in furious competition.

Leaders were Leonard, first seven laps; Bobby Unser, laps 8-56; Lloyd Ruby, Whita Falls, Tex., 57-89; B. Unser, 90-112; Leonard, 113-119; B. Unser, 120-165; Ruby, 166-174; Leonard, 175-191 and B. Unser, 192-200.

It was a great day for Grand Prix racer and All American Eagle auto builder Dan Gurney, Santa Ana, Calif. He applauded as Bobby Unser set a race record of 152.882 m.p.h. in an Eagle and followed him across the line in second place.

World road racing champion Denis Hulme of New Zealand finished fourth in another Eagle behind Mel Kenyon of Lebanon, Ind., who had a Gerhardt-Offy.

Unofficially, others running at the finish were Ruby, fifth; Ronnie Duman, Indianapolis, sixth; Billy Vukovich, Fresno, Calif., seventh; Mike Mosley, La Puete, Calif., eighth; Sam Sessions, Nashville, Mich., ninth; Bob Grim, Indianapolis, 10th, and Bob Veith, Santa Rosa, Calif., 11th.

Move Back, Gang!

By The Canadian Press

First place in the Western Division of the National Lacrosse Association is becoming as congested as a bus during rush hour.

Portland Adanacs downed New Westminster Salmonbellies 11-9 Thursday night to move into a first-place tie with Victoria and Vancouver.

The three leaders have six points each while New Westminster trails with four.

In Eastern Division action Thursday, John Davis and Cy Coombs scored two goals each to pace Peterborough Lakers to an 11-7 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs.

The victory, watched by 1,800 at Peterborough, moved the second-place Lakers to within two points of the first-place Detroit Olympics.

SCORES THREE GOALS

A crowd of 1,800 at New Westminster saw Jack Barclay pace Portland with three goals and two assists. The Adanacs led 5-2 after the first period and 9-6 after the second.

Bill Bradley and John Allen scored two goals each for Portland. Single goals came from Terry Gallagher, George Longman, Mike Gates and Ivan Stewart.

Wayne Goss scored three times for the Salmonbellies and Wayne Shuttleworth added two goals. Scoring single goals were Doug McRory, Paul Parnell, Larry Henry and Ken Winzoski.

The other goal scorers for Peterborough were Jim Vilneff, Joe Hore, Tim O'Grady, Jim Grady, Bob Allan, Jim Paterson and Rich Anthony.

John Roberts connected three times for the Maple Leafs, and Ron MacNeil added two. Single goals went to Graeme Gair and Jack Madgett.

Peterborough led 4-3 after the first period and 7-5 after the second.

Oregon Runners Set Relay Mark

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Four University of Oregon runners bettered the world four-mile relay mark by four seconds Thursday in an inter-squad meet.

The time was 16:05, compared with the world record of 16:09 set by a University of Oregon team at Fresno, Calif., in 1962.

Team members and lap times: Roscoe Divine (4:03.2), Wade Bell (4:01), Arne Kvalheim (4:03) and Dave Wilborn (3:57.5).

Their actual time was 16:04.7, but in events of this distance times are rounded to the nearest second.

LE MANS (AP)—The annual 24-hour Le Mans auto race, scheduled for June 15 and 16, has been postponed indefinitely because of the social upheaval in France.

There's Time Enough For Cards to Perk Up

By The Associated Press

National League baseball consumed 12 hours, 52 minutes on Memorial Day from the time the first pitch was thrown at Pittsburgh until the last out was recorded at St. Louis.

In between, some interesting things happened, like:

—St. Louis Cardinals scoring six runs—their highest total in three weeks.

—New York Mets sweeping a doubleheader.

—Bob Aspromonte driving in two runs on a force out.

—New York's Ed Kranepool driving in two runs.

GIANTS TOPPLED

The Cards, locked in a hitting slump that dumped them to fourth place with 11 losses in 13 games, woke up with a 6-0 victory over San Francisco Giants. Houston Astros battered Atlanta Braves 11-0, the Mets swept a twinbill from Pittsburgh Pirates 6-3 and 5-4, and Los Angeles Dodgers dropped Cincinnati Reds 5-3. Chicago Cubs at Philadelphia Phillies was rained out.

Thirteen doubleheaders had come and gone since the Mets last swept one. But the ingredients were right Thursday.

The opponents were the Pirates, victims of the last Met sweep back in August, 1967, and there was Kranepool driving in two runs.

Kranepool had been up 95 times without an RBI this season. But he singled home two runs to help New York record the victory—eighth in 10 decisions for rookie Jerry Koosman.

HOUSTON ERUPTS

Houston had almost as much fun against the Braves, collecting 15 hits—three each and three RBI apiece by ex-Braves Denis Menke and Lee Thomas.

Aspromonte also had three runs batted in, two of them in interesting fashion.

The bases were loaded in the eighth inning when Aspromonte lined to centre. Rusty Staub at third and Thomas at second took off but Jim Wynn, thinking the ball would be caught, held up at first.

Felipe Alou trapped the ball and Staub and Thomas scored but Wynn was cut down at second for the out—two runs batted in on one force play.

HOMERS HELP

The Cardinals busted loose in the first inning against the Giants with consecutive home runs by Mike Shannon and Tim McCarver keying a four-run rally.

That was plenty for Steve Carlton, who breezed to his sixth victory of the season and first ever over San Francisco. The six runs were the most for St. Louis in any game since May 4.

Los Angeles parlayed 13 hits and 10 walks to its victory over the Reds with Claude Osteen getting the victory.

In the American League, Mickey Mantle made it a memorable Memorial Day. The New York Yankee slugger whacked two homers, a double and two singles and drove in five runs as the Yanks clipped Washington 13-4. Senators won the nightcap 6-2.

While Mantle was slugging, the defending American League champion Boston Red Sox were slumping. Oakland Athletics shelled them 6-2 behind Lew Krausse's four-hitter and pulled into a fifth-place tie with the Sox and Yankees.

Elsewhere, Detroit Tigers whipped California Angels 7-3, Baltimore Orioles blanked the Chicago White Sox 5-0 and Cleveland Indians nipped Minnesota Twins 3-1.

TITLE GO OFF LIMITS TO WHITE SPECTATORS

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Whites will not be allowed to watch the all-black welterweight title fight June 15 between world champion Curtis Cokes of Dallas, Tex., and Joe Ngidi of South Africa.

South African authorities Thursday rejected an application to permit whites to watch the bout. Both boxers are black.

South Africa was voted out of the Oct. 12-27 Olympic Games in Mexico City last month because of its strict segregation laws.

Vessel Grounded On Customs Tape

TORONTO (CP) — Golden Eagle II, Canada's first 12-metre yacht, ran aground Wednesday night in a sea of customs duties.

The yacht, renamed from American Eagle, twice a contender for the U.S. berth in the America's Cup matches, can't be moved from its berth at the Island Yacht Club unless the duties are paid or it goes back to the U.S.

Herb Wahl of Toronto, one of three men who bought it for $50,000, said customs officials have set a prohibitively high duty on the yacht.

"They want well over $100,000 to let us bring it in," he said.

"That's far more than we're prepared to pay and far more than is fair.

"We paid $50,000 for her, $60,000 if you take in all the repairs. We're more than willing to pay duty on the purchase price. But customs want us to pay on their appraisal of the boat, which is based on what it cost, less a depreciation allowance."

Wahl said customs officials are talking in terms of the cost price, less 25 per cent for the value of the Golden Eagle and that they want to charge 39½ per cent duty on that.

John Clarke, Canada customs superintendent in Toronto, said Wednesday night that the guidelines were set for bringing goods into the country and that they had to be followed.

Gomez Is Slimmer; Gets Back Into Racing

TORONTO (CP) — Jockey Avelino Gomez is returning to the races.

The 38-year-old Cuba-born jockey, who announced a month ago he would give up racing because his weight had ballooned to 124 pounds, has announced he would accept mounts at suburban Woodbine racetrack.

"My doctor tells me that it was okay," he said.

"I been riding horses in morning workouts the last week," he added. "Yesterday morning I weigh 113½ pounds with no clothes on. So I can do 117-118 for the races without feeling sick like I do before when I say I through."

Six times Canadian riding champion and North American titleholder two years ago, Gomez now is expected to be offered a horse in the $50,000-added Queen's Plate on Saturday, June 22.

FBI TAGS PROMOTER WITH BRIBERY CHARGE

BOSTON (AP) — The FBI announced the arrest on bribery charges Wednesday of boxing promoter Samuel Silverman of Chelsea, Mass.

The FBI said the charges involved the use of a long distance telephone from Massachusetts to Florida and Florida to Maine with the intent to promote bribery.

It further charges that Silverman attempted to carry in effect and conspire with Peter Joseph Dowd, a boxer from Jacksonville, Fla., a scheme to influence by bribe a boxing contest.

Dowd is scheduled to fight Lea DiFiore, of Portland, Me. He has not been charged.

MOLSONS THWARTED

Colony Extends Perfect Record

Colony Inn still has an unblemished record and Molsons have been thwarted in their bid for a share of first place in the Victoria Senior Men's Softball League.

Colony made it six victories in as many starts Thursday night at Central Park, whipping Molsons 6-1 and moving into a second-place deadlock with the losers, two points behind Nanaimo O'Keefes, who have lost one of eight outings.

Molsons collected their lone run in the third inning, when Dave Lowe's single chased home Bob Marsden, but they were handcuffed the rest of the way by the slick pitching of Bob Labelle.

Labelle got all the runs he needed in the bottom of the third as Steve Bishop smashed a triple to score Wayne King and then scored on Garry Tuttle's single.

Rick Lee sparked a four-run fourth inning with a two-run triple. King drove Lee across the plate with a single and moved around on a wild pitch and two groundouts.

Albertans Share Lead In Trap Shoot

EDMONTON (CP) — Two Edmonton men were tied for first place after opening rounds Thursday of the national Olympic trap shooting trials.

Ed Shaske and John Primrose, both of Edmonton, each broke 96 of 100 targets for the lead in a field of 18 competitors from across Canada.

Harry Willsie of Montreal, defending his Canadian title, was next with 95 out of 100. He was followed by Gil Henderson of Toronto, president of the Canadian Trap Association, with 93 out of 100.

The two competitors with the best two scores in the four-day, 400-target tournament will represent Canada at the Olympic Games at Mexico City in October.

Ricky McGarry of Niagara Falls, Ont., world junior trap champion, broke all 25 on his first round then slipped to 21, 23 and 21 for a total of 90.

Bill Jones of Vancouver, the 1960 Canadian Olympic shooter, was in 13th place with 81.

FISHING REPORT

Derby Offers $25,000 Prize

By STEWART LANG

People who like to combine fishing with the prospect of collecting a little cash, say an even $25,000, will be taking a long look at the new British Columbia Salmon Derby, scheduled August 31 through September 2 in Howe Sound.

In addition to the $25,000 grand prize, derby director "Fin" Anthony says that nine other cash awards of $1,000 each would be awarded, as well as various valuable merchandise prizes. Among these prizes are a 17-foot boat and motor, house trailer and a truck-and-camper combination.

A registration fee of $10 entitles each fisherman to use one sporting rod and reel for the entire three days. The derby area will be patrolled by a fleet of supervisory craft.

Super-Valu stores are handling registration froms throughout the province.

Sport catches of salmon in the Greater Victoria area from Jan. 1 up to the start of May show a 30 per cent increase over the same period last year, federal fisheries officials have announced.

This is probably due to the larger influx of grilse and bluebacks into Saanich Inlet area. Victoria-Sooke area remains slightly lower than the all-time average.

Oak Bay waters are hot this week. Joe Gilmour's wife brought him luck, because when he took her fishing, he caught a 34-pounder. When Gilmour went out alone later he could only manage one 32:04.

Harry Southern netted one of 26 pounds, Doug Dakers also caught a 26-pounder along with an 11½-pounder and several other anglers connected with big fish.

Rex Welland of Oak Bay Marina said that this was the earliest run of big fish here that he's seen. Favored in the list of fishing spots is The Gap. Best time is on the afternoon tide change.

Pedder Bay has provided a few good catches, with bluebacks off Race Rocks and springs off the edge of the kelp.

Aldo Roller netted a 27:12-pound beauty and Gerry Gieskens brought back an 18-pounder.

Fishing in the Finlayson Arm area was excellent during the week. An early coho of the five-pound variety, specifically five pounds, 10 ounces, was brought back to Hall's Boathouse from near Goldstream Island by Les Longhand, who also collected a 10-pound spring.

Ken Smith landed two in the same area, one 19:06 and another 9:03, on a Tomic Plug.

Jim Gilbert reports that there is a new run of reds in Mill Bay, up to 19 pounds. Off the Bamberton shore, salmon are being taken up to 24½ pounds. Cole Bay, Tod Inlet and Willis Point areas are also yielding some good catches.

Blues and jack springs may be found out in the centre of Saanich Inlet.

Cec Ashton, trolling off Shepherds Point with Tomic Plug, brought in a 24:08-pounder. Thursday morning, Cyril Robbins and Al Meadows docked with four—20:06, 11:09, 11 and 5:04.

Moochers have been taking husky springs in Cowichan Bay, in front of Skinner Bluffs, and bluebacks have turned up in the Deep Bay-Bowser section.

Blues are showing in smaller numbers off Campbell River and some large springs are hitting in Brown's Bay. Blueback fishing has continued fairly good from Northwest Bay to Nanaimo.

Trout fishing has eased off in many lakes, but Cowichan, Sproat and Great Central Lakes are still good bets for large trout.

Montgomery's Blow Luckies' Victory Edge

Victoria Luckies edged Nelson's Cleaners 2-1 Thursday at Heywood Avenue Park in a nip-and-tuck Stuffy McGinnis Senior Men's Softball League game.

A sixth-inning home run by Larry Montgomery and the two-hit, nine-strikeout pitching performance of Barry Jackson privided the difference. Montgomery's hit broke a 1-1 tie and boosted his team into second place.

Ron Tidman's fourth-inning single and a seventh-inning blow by Jack Adrian were the only hits off Jackson.

Rapid Start Did the Trick

KELOWNA (CP) — Kamloops broke loose with seven goals in the first five minutes of the third period Thursday to defeat Kelowna 16-11 in a British Columbia Interior Senior Lacrosse League game.

Norm Cleveland led Kamloops with four goals and Mel Galloway and Brian Ansley added three each.

Al Porter, John Ritchie, Ernie Naka and Ed Schluter each counted twice for Kelowna.

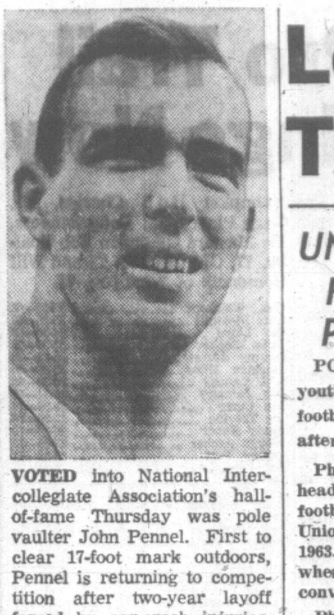
Larks Sign Back

MONTREAL (CP)—Doug McGee, a flamboyant fullback from the University of Miami Hurricanes, has signed a contract with Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League. A powerful runner, McGee turned aside several offers to play pro baseball.



VOTED into National Intercollegiate Association's hall-of-fame Thursday was pole vaulter John Pennel. First to clear 17-foot mark outdoors, Pennel is returning to competition after two-year layoff forced by car-crash injuries. Since starting comeback he has cleared 16-6.

UNCONSCIOUS FIVE YEARS, PLAYER DIES

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A youth injured in a high school football game died Thursday after five years in a coma.

Philip Whitehill sustained head injuries while playing football for Albany, Ore., Union High School in August, 1963. He was 20 years old when he died at a Portland convalescent home.

Philip underwent two major operations but never regained consciousness.

Long Route at Belmont Tough on Triple Hopes

NEW YORK (AP) — A gruelling 1½ miles and eight colts — these are the obstacles Forward Pass must conquer Saturday to win the Belmont Stakes and become the first Triple Crown winner since 1948.

The Calumet Farm colt's march on the Triple Crown was launched when he was placed first in the Kentucky Derby after Dancer's Image was disqualified, and was kept alive when he romped to victory in the Preakness.

His main competition in the 100th running of the Belmont is expected to be Mrs. Adele Rand's Call Me Prince and Greentree Stable's Stage Door Johnny.

The other probables are Gustave Ring's Ardoise, Anne Ford's Jade Amicol, C. V. Whitney's Champion, Millard Waldheim's T.V. Commercial, Ray DuFour's and Joseph Richards' Sir Beau and Robert J. Kleberg's Draft Card, who will run as an entry with Call Me Prince.

WINNER GETS $117,700

If all nine start, the gross purse will be $161,450, with $117,700 to the winner, equalling the high for the race established in 1966 when Amberoid won.

The 1½-miles of the Belmont were just too much for the only four other colts who have had shot at winning the Triple Crown since Citation accomplished the feat 20 years ago.

Tim Tam, also owned by Calumet, broke down and finished second to Cavan in 1958; Carry Back was seventh in 1961 when Sherluck won; Northern Dancer was third behind Quadrangle and Roman Brother in 1964, and Kauai King was fourth when Amberoid scored in 1966.

Saturday, Forward Pass gets his distance test, and a passing mark will put his name in racing records along with those of the eight other Triple Crown winners.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

George Was Close To No-Hit Victory

Luck was both good and bad for George Hemming in a Senior Amateur Baseball League game Thursday night at Layritz Park.

Bad luck arrived for the hard-throwing southpaw in the final inning, when he was one out away from pitching a no-hit, no-run victory.

His no-hitter went out the window when Brian Craig singled with two out. Hemming's shutout vanished when he walked the next two batters and Craig scored on a throwing error, leaving Greaves Movers with a 4-1 victoria over Orphans.

George's good luck came in the form of three unearned runs, which provided the margin of victory.

The movers collected their first three runs on errors and Hemming provided the only earned tally in the third inning, when his single plated Don Bell.

Last weekend, Les Brice, manager of Greaves, pitched a no-hit game but lost a 1-0 decision to Lake Cowichan.

Silent Four Take Control Of Jets Team

NEW YORK (AP) — Sonny Werblin, who breathed life into the struggling American Football League by spending big money for players, has stepped out as an owner and president of New York Jets.

Weblin sold his "little better than 20 per cent" of the club to four "mostly silent" partners—Donald Lillis, Phillip H. Iselin, Townsend Martin and Leon Hess.

Martin said Weeb Ewbank would remain as general manager and head coach "as far as I know."

Wolves Purchase Carlisle Keeper

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Wolves of the North American Soccer League have purchased goalkeeper Joe Dean, 28, from the Carlisle team of the English League.

When Dean arrives June 4, coach Ray Wood will take himself off the active player list to concentrate on coaching. Wood has been one of the two goalkeepers on the squad.

Dunfermline Tied In Brawling Bout

(Times News Service)

Touring Dunfermline Athletic, the Scottish League's championship soccer team, and Kansas City Spurs battled to a 1-1 tie Thursday night in a rough game marked by a free-for-all and the ejection of two players at Kansas City.

The brawl, involving at least a dozen players, broke out with less than 18 minutes to go after five time-outs were called for injured Kansas City players.

Meanwhile, Manchester City, which plays Dufermline in Vancouver's Exhibition Stadium Saturday night at 8:30 p.m., has tossed out a challenge to another North American professional league team. Abashed by a 3-2 defeat to Atlanta, the Scots challenged Chiefs to a rematch, to be staged in mid-June.

Manchester suffered another tour setback in Chicago, bowing 2-1 to Borussia Dortmund of West Germany. Reinhold Wosab scored the winning goal with 15 minutes remaining before a crowd of 8,779.

At Baltimore, veteran Dennis Viollet booted a 10-yard goal in the 76th minute of play to give Baltimore Bays a 1-0 victory over Washington Whips in a Thursday's lone NASL match.

It was the fifth victory in a row, a league record, for the Bays, who failed to win in their first six starts this season. Baltimore moved into third place ahead of Washington in the Atlantic Division.

New Man on Pro Trail Has No Misgivings Now

ATLANTA (AP) — Eldrige Miles has fallen in love with the pro golf tour at the age of 34.

Aware of the pitfalls of the game, Miles is determined to suceed despite his late start.

"I felt I just had to go on the tour," the former Dallas schoolteacher and stockbroker said after a three-under-par 69 Thursday in the first round of the Atlanta Classic,

That left him only a stroke off the lead taken by Tom Weiskopf, and erased "the biggest disappointment I've ever had as a golfer."

The setback came last Monday, when Miles had to try to qualify for the tournament. His 74 was not good enough to win him a berth, but it put him sixth on the list of alternates.

SOME DROPPED OUT

Disaster turned into happiness late Wednesday afternoon when a friend on the tour called to say that Miles had been moved into the tournament because several players dropped out.

His best showing on the tour has been a tie for ninth, and he has collected about $4,000 in tournament cheques.

He was one of only 16 players to break par of 72 Thursday. Only Weiskopf—who has won $85,000 already this year—beat him. Jack Nicklaus, Tommy Aaron, Ray Floyd, Chris Blocker, Bert Yancey and Don January matched Miles' 69.

Among those overshadowed by the personable Texan were Arnold Palmer, 76; defending champion Bob Charles, 75; Gary Player, 73; Doug Sanders, 75; Masters champion Bob Goalby, 77, Gay Brewer, 72 and Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, 77.

FUNNY BIRD

No. Funny-looking, maybe. But functional. Built for work. His natural habitat is high grass, weeds, brush. He mows them down, little grass blades to 1⅜" saplings. With 36" or 44" snout...

He floats over rough terrain—safer, faster, easier, with a longer proven life—even before medicare.

You see more JARI's in the yards and on the grounds of America than any other bird. Insist on JARI.

He'll reward your good judgment with dedicated service.

AT HEAL'S RANGE

Rifle Marksmen Mingle at Shoot

Hills in the Highland District will echo the sound of high power rifle fire Sunday as the second annual Centennial shoot gets under way on Heals Range at 9 a.m.

Jointly sponsored by the Vancouver Island Shooting League and the Victoria and District Rifle Association, this open match started last year as a Centennial project of the two organizations.

Essentially, the match is a duel between two centre-fire factions — the VDRA military rifle shooters, using 7.62 mm. Enfields and military-issue ammunition, and the VISL sporting rifle entrants, using scope-mounted rifles varying from the flat-trajectory .222 Remington to the powerful .300 magnums.

Most of the sporting rifle shooters load their own ammo to suit their own requirements.

Military shooters should have the advantage in prone-position 500 and 600-yard competition while sporting enthusiasts take the initiative in three-position events of 200-yards.

Experience in testing the wind lies with the military stylists while Olympic positions favor sporting rifle shooters.

BURNABY ENTRANTS

Last year's champion, Ray McDougall of the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association, will have his hands full to keep the Greater Victoria Trophy with the entry of a hotshot Barnet Rifle Club squad this year.

Among those entered from the Burnaby club will be Bob Cheyne, Canadian representative at the Pan-American games last year and winner of the VISL inter-club match last Sunday with a record breaking 287-300.

Only a few post entries will be accepted with the matches scheduled to run until about 5 p.m.

The Datsun Pickup is for people who like to drive both a hard bargain and a good truck. It packs a bonanza of practical features into a commonsense price.

The Datsun Pickup has a spunky overhead valve engine. It not only effortlessly moves the truck along at freeway speeds but has plenty in reserve when the load is heavy and the going rough. (This is the same power plant that won Datsun the 1967 Canadian Rally Championship, so you don't have to baby it.)

On the six foot bed you can park a full ton of anything and expect the pickup to haul it day in and day out . . . with real gas economy. And 100,000 mile reliability is no fiction. We know of a man in California who has put 175,000 miles on the clock without ever having a major repair. In 1967, Datsun sold 14,000 pickups in the U.S. . . . more than all other import trucks combined.

Other things you get for your investment are a full synchromesh 4-speed shift, battery-saving alternator, vinyl interior, heater-defroster, windshield washers, seat belts, twin outside mirrors and 6-ply whitewalls.

So come on. Be a tough customer. Datsun's.

Fully equipped 4-berth camper or multi-purpose canopy top available.

FIRST CAPTURE TRUDEAU

Alberta Liberals Have Two Battles to Win

Special to the Times

CALGARY — Alberta Liberals are confident Trudeaumania will take hold in Alberta—if Prime Minister Trudeau will only give it a chance.

Provincial strategists this week were still trying to pin the prime minister down on a definite date for his Calgary visit, without much luck.

"We propose an itinerary and they dispose of it," a party public relations officer lamented in Edmonton. He said the prime minister's office has knocked down several proposals from Trudeau-hungry Albertans.

June 4 has finally been fixed for an Edmonton rally but Calgary is open with June 18 a likely date.

"You wouldn't believe the difficulties we're having," said the harassed official. "Trudeau sets the rules about when he'll get up, when he'll finish, when he'll eat and how many hours he's going to rest during the day."

ONE-MAN BAND?

Prime Minister Trudeau's personality is playing a big role in provincial and local campaign strategy, in distinct contrast to the Conservative approach of concentrating on the local candidate.

Many Liberal campaigns are being planned to take advantage of the prime minister's visits, so the itinerary is vital and impatience can be detected.

Trudeau pictures are outnumbering Stanfield pictures 2 to 1 on campaign literature. The Liberals are devoting at least as much space on brochures to Trudeau as to the local candidate. All provincial advertising features Trudeau.

Some Conservative literature doesn't even mention Robert Stanfield. In Calgary North Eldon Woolliams has put out a full-color pamphlet, playing heavily on his name. The only party reference in the whole thing is the one word "Conservative" in small type.

His opponent, Peter Petrasuk, has one picture of himself and two of Trudeau, with "Go Trudeau-Petrasuk" and "Build a Dynamic New Canada" in large letters. This is the standard provincial Liberal pamphlet.

NATIONAL PAMPHLET

Conservatives will point out that they have one national pamphlet including Mr. Stanfield but admit it's nothing like the Liberal approach.

Mr. Stanfield's Calgary rally last Thursday was considered as a qualified success by most Conservatives. He drew a respectable crowd of 4,500. Although his approach did not inspire much enthusiasm, Mr. Stanfield left a solid small "c" conservative impression which is what Conservatives and their latter-day Social Credit supporters want.

The qualification came from Mr. Stanfield's statement on national unity saying on the one hand, "There is only one sovereignty in Canada. There is only one presence abroad."

On the other hand, he thought the role of the provinces dealing with foreign governments should be referred to the standing constitution committee.

Despite this troublesome issue the Conservatives stand to benefit from Social Credit support in almost all constituencies. And Trudeaumania will really have to set the range afire to overcome it.

SOCRED SWING

There is no doubt at this stage that the overwhelming majority of Social Credit vote will swing Tory. Social Crediters hate socialism and they equate Prime Minister Trudeau with it.

Even optimistic observers, therefore, give the Liberals four of the Alberta seats, at most. They provide some indication of what the Liberals are up against:

Calgary South: Calgary Stampeder president Pat Mahoney is given a good chance of edging out Tory Ray Ballard. But the 1965 general election combined Conservative-Socred vote was 28,610 to 20,525 for the Liberals.

Medicine Hat: H. A. Olsen is reported doing well in his first outing as a Liberal. He ran as a Socred in 1965 and the switch has caused resentment. In 1965 the Tory-Socred vote was 19,955 to 3,385 for the Liberal.

Edmonton Strathcona: Dr. Hugh Harries, dean of commerce at University of Alberta, is favored to beat Tory Terry Nugent. But in 1965 the combined Conservative-Socred vote was 32,697 while the Liberal had 16,431.

Athabasca: Alberta Liberal Leader Mike Maccagno is the popular favorite over Dr. Paul Shewchuck, and in 1965 the combined Conservative-Socred vote was 13,849 compared to 6,693 for the Liberal.

When you realize that these are the Liberals' best prospects, you can understand their impatience for Trudeaumania. In all cases cited the constituency boundaries have been adjusted by redistribution but the proportionate vote is typical.

JULIE
. . . place in history

Daddy Completes Welcome

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — Squealing, "Daddy!" even before he walked through the door, two-year-old Julie Cherie Rodriguez welcomed her father home from work Thursday.

And that completed a homecoming for a pretty little girl who has lived longer with a transplanted liver than anyone else known to medical science.

"I didn't think it would ever happen," said John C. Rodriguez, after he learned his daughter had been sent home from hospital more than 10 months after the operation.

Julie's mother, Louise, said doctors approved Julie's release from the University of Colorado Medical Centre at Denver Thursday afternoon. By mid-evening, they had made the 125-mile trip south to their home here.

Julie is one of five known survivors of liver transplant operations, all by the Denver transplant team. But on July 23, 1967, when Julie's new liver was implanted, there were none.

Two of the survicors have been discharged from hospital, but stay in Denver for followup care. Julie will make the trip from Pueblo to Denver twice a week for her checkups.

The other known survivors are Rendell Wayne Bennett, 2, son of Mrs. Sandra Bennett, Mesquite, Tex.; Terry Jean Kent, 16, Hillsboro, Ore.; Eddie Miller, 44, West Helena, Ari., and a 1½-year-old boy from Oakland, Calif., whom doctors have not identified.

IMPLEMENT WATKINS REPORT DOUGLAS SAYS

Foreign Investment Under Fire

TORONTO (CP) — T. C. Douglas said Thursday night that the New Democratic Party "will make life unbearable for any government" that doesn't do something about the high level of foreign investment in Canada.

He also said that if a minority government is elected in the June 25 election, it will get the support of his party only if it agrees to implement the recommendations of the Watkins report on foreign investment and the Carter royal commission on taxation.

Mr. Douglas made the statements on the Public Eye, a CBC-TV public affairs program. The show was taped for showing next week.

The NDP leader repeated an earlier statement that he does not expect his party to form the next federal government. It was asking too much to expect the NDP to go from the 22 seats it held in the last Parliament to the 133 required to become the government.

But the party would make substantial gains in the June 25 voting, Mr. Douglas predicted. And he expected to live to see the day it would form the Canadian government.

He also shrugged off a suggestion that he might have trouble winning his Burnaby-Seymour seat against Ray Perrault, a former British Columbia Liberal leader.

He said he had offered to make more time available for campaigning in his own riding but that his organizers told him all was going well and not to take any extra time off from his national campaign.

Mr. Douglas also said he is turning down Mr. Perrault's challenge for a debate. Both would appear on the same platform in the riding next month anyway, he said.

He had to prepare for the leaders' debate, too, with Prime Minister Trudeau and Opposition Leader Stanfield.

"When you are hunting grizzlies, you don't go chasing after jackrabbits," said Mr. Douglas.

Mr. Douglas said he is against Canada joining the Organization of American States. It was a political bloc as well as a trading one and dominated by the United States.

Canada already was "virtually dominated by the state department" without joining the OAS and being forced into policies that would prevent it from trading with countries such as Cuba, said Mr. Douglas.

Second Case Of Paralysis From Tick

TRAIL (CP) — Doctors here reported a case of tick paralysis in a five-year-old girl from Northport, Wash., the second case reported in southern interior British Columbia in seven days.

A heavily-gorged wood tick was removed from the girl's body at nearby Rossland. Authorities said she was unable to walk before treatment but showed marked improvement after the tick was removed.

The girl was not identified. Neither was the woman in the first case this year, reported at Christina Lake, 25 miles west of here. The woman also went to hospital with incipient paralysis.

Dr. Nick Schmitt, director of the West Kootenay Health Unit, said blood-feeding wood ticks apparently are abundant in the area this year.

Penticton Sets Pace In Land-Use Plans

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Penticton, B.C.

Forbes

According to Maurice Finnerty, who retired in 1967 after a six-year stint as mayor of Penticton, his city is the only one in Canada which owns and operates its own irrigation system.

Complete remodelling of this system was undertaken a short time ago to meet the needs of 2,300 acres of fruit ranches on bench lands within the city limits.

All old flumes were discarded and replaced by underground pipes. The million dollar project, shared by federal, provincial and civic governments, has just been completed.

Even more spectacular in this city's planning is the location of an industrial area on bench land southwest of the city and the establishment of industries on this land.

The 200 acres so designated is a chunk of land that years ago was named a cut-off when boundaries of the Indian reserve were decided. It's nothing but rocks and clay banks and is good for little else but industrial development.

Although the council of that time didn't foresee any great development up there, Penticton applied for this land when it was cut off from the reserve — and got it.

Until the time Maurice Finnerty became mayor however, it remained a waste of rocks and clay from which snippets were occasionally sold to speculators.

Mr. Finnerty's ambition when he took office was to beautify his city and make it attractive to tourists as well as industry. To do this he soon discovered he'd have to relocate some long-standing industries that by then were poorly situated on property that could be put to better use for green belts, parks and motels.

He'd also need to provide new locations for other industries in the centre of the city that wished to expand and at the same time entice new industries.

He thought of the cut-off land the city-owned land, and immediately hired consultants and formed a city planning board to develop the acreage.

Conditions of sale were set. Old existing industries and those wishing to expand were offered a nominal price for the land if they would relocate. In turn, the city undertook to rezone the properties they had occupied for highest and best use.

New industries had to buy in the area for a specific purpose, start development within a stated number of days and if this was not done, had to sell back to the city within a set time limit.

Three years ago, when the project was beginning to take shape, the Okanagan Valley was designated a "benefiting area" and eligible for federal aid to assist in creating all-year-round industries.

This was because of its seasonal fruit and tourist trades which saw numbers of transients brought in to work in summer and its own people unable to find employment in winter.

Because Penticton had an organized industrial area ready for use, it was able to attract these industries. It was also able to offer the land far below its market value but still higher than it cost to acquire.

Success of the project didn't just happen, Maurice Finnerty told me. It was the result of complete co-operation between the city council, chamber of commerce, the city's industrial committee and its industrial manager.

A substantial budget was also provided (and is still provided) for promotion that would attract industry.

Mr. Finnerty believes there is a great need for cities and municipalities to establish this type of land bank not only for industry but for residential purposes.

Penticton, he says, is one of the few that has been able to accumulate both.

Soon, he warns, it will be impossible to get such land. Perhaps even now it is impossible in some cities. It is far too expensive.

FRIENDSHIP FORGOTTEN AS HUNGER WINS

BOUNTIFUL, Utah (UPI) — Hunger won out over friendship between Brad Haines, a chunky two-year-old, and Myrtle, his pet turtle.

And because of it, the 37-pound boy had a stomach ache Thursday, his mother had a headache and doctors had problems.

Brad normally eats four eggs, two pieces of toast, juice and milk for breakfast. But Tuesday he swallowed Myrtle, his small pet turtle.

The reptile was alive a day later when it lodged just above his stomach. But doctors said Thursday the turtle stopped moving and might be dead.

Doctors at the South Davis community hospital here hope gastric acids in the stomach will kill and dissolve the turtle so it can be passed from his body normally.

But if not, Mrs. Russell Haines, the boy's mother, said surgery may be performed.

Mrs. Haines said her son's appetite has gotten him into trouble before. He has eaten such things as rocks, dirt and insects.

PRESIDENT'S RESIGNATION DEMANDED

SFU Students Threaten Strike

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — Members of the faculty and student body at Simon Fraser University, in separate moves, Thursday demanded the resignation of SFU's president, Dr. Patrick McTaggart-Cowan.

"So what," the president said early today. "If the board (of governors) wants my resignation, it can ask for it; It's up to the board . . . I will not be intimidated."

About 800 students went further than asking for the resignation: they asked not only that the president fire himself but that he turn over effective control at SFU to the faculty and the students.

Students drew up a string of "minimum demands" and said that if Dr. McTaggart-Cowan doesn't come up with answers today, they will move towards strike action to "liberate the classrooms."

Said the SFU president: "We'll deal with that when it arrives." Unrest over criticism of administration can and will be solved, he said, but not through pressure, intimidation or any "power play."

Meetings by faculty members and students at the campus, where unrest has been boiling for two years, followed censuring of the university by the Canadian Association of University Teachers.

At the student meeting, the list of adopted demands included majority control on the board for faculty and students and making the senate a faculty-student body with the role of major decision-maker.

At the faculty meeting, the vote was 125 to 65 for resignation of Dr. McTaggart-Cowan. A faculty officer said most of the 65 supported the call but felt it should be postponed.

CAUT's censure, announced Wednesday and in effect a blacklisting of SFU, followed CAUT investigation of administration at SFU and complaints that the board of governors interferes too much in academic affairs.

The board, made up chiefly of businessmen and headed by Chancellor Gordon Shrum, already had a meeting scheduled today. Dr. Shrum, a co-chairman of B.C. Hydro, was not available for comment Thursday night.

Only one speaker at the students meeting urged moderation. She asked students: "What are you trying to create, another Paris?" The answer roared by the other students: "Yes."

Simon Fraser, opened in this Vancouver suburb in late 1965, has about 5,200 students and 350 faculty members. The CAUT investigation labelled administration on the campus as "feudal."

Dr. McTaggart-Cowan gave his position to the faculty meeting. Officials said he had attempted to have the press and students admitted but the faculty members rejected this by a close vote.

The students meeting called for abolition of the present offices of president and chancellor and replacement of these posts, as necessary, as an elective basis.

BECAUSE OF CRISIS

Talks May Shift To Another Site

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

PARIS (AP) — The Vietnam peace talks which the French welcomed less than a month ago may have to be shifted away from Paris in the next few weeks if France's domestic crisis continues.

So far Ambassadors W. Averell Harriman and Xuan Thuy and their delegations have gone about their meetings without interruption or any serious inconvenience. They live and work in a world apart from the demonstrations of students and workers, the street battles in the Latin Quarter, and the political agonies of a Society in rebellion.

But no one is sure how long the isolation of the conference can continue. The negotiating teams are dependent on the French economy for food and services. As far as is known they rely primarily on French facilities for their communications.

The French government furnishes police for their protection. Their shirts are washed and ironed in French laundries.

Perhaps the most serious problem for the Americans to date has been to arrange transportation in and out of the country.

OPEN MILITARY FIELD

With Orly Airport closed by general strike, officials leaving or joining Harriman's group usually had to travel between Paris and Brussels by bus or car until two days ago when a military field near Paris was opened to commercial air traffic.

Thuy and other members of the North Vietnamese delegation live outside Paris at Chois Le-Roi. They moved from the Hotel Lutetia, about a mile from the Latin Quarter, two weeks ago. The move was understood to mean they were settling in for long negotiations here. It also took them far away from the turbulence of the university area.

Harriman and his team live in the Hotel Crilloeplace de la Concorde across the Seine River from the Latin Quarter. Their offices are next door in the U.S. Embassy. This district which also includes the Elysee Palace, President de Gaulle's official residence, has been under massive police guard since the trouble started.

"If things get no worse," one American said, "we can go on like this indefinitely."

But among some of the Americans there is concern that things may get worse.

Peru Cabinet Quits

LIMA (Reuters) — The 12-member Peruvian cabinet led by Prime Minister Paul Ferrero resigned Wednesday night in the face of a censure motion by Congress against mismanagement by the government. Both houses of Congress are dominated by parties in opposition to President Fernando Belaunde Terry's regime.

SPCA TO GET VICE MONEY

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—The Sydney Sun says vice king Joseph Borg, 35, blown up in his truck by booby trap Tuesday, is believed to have left all his money to the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The newspaper says Borg was estimated to have amassed $250,000 Australian ($280,000 Canadian) largely from renting back-alley rooms to prostitutes. Borg came to Australia from Malta 15 years ago penniless.

BROADER VOTE ON BYLAW?

Recreation Added To Board's Powers

DUNCAN—Mayor Jim Quaife has won his argument to have unorganized areas of South Cowichan given an opportunity to share in the cost of a recreational complex at Pioneer Park, Duncan.

He revealed at a special city council meeting Thursday the municipal affairs department is in the process of changing the letters patent of Cowichan District Regional Board to allow it to assume recreation as a function.

Mayor Quaife said the board will be granted initial borrowing powers limited to $1,000,000.

$800,000 PLAN

Estimate cost of the swimming pool and community centre building planned for Pioneer Park is $800,000.

The government has set a 1½ mill limit on the operating mill rate.

But Mayor Quaife said: "It's hoped the taxable assessment of the area to be included will amount to $20,000,000 and 1½ mills applied to this amount would produce about $30,000.

"This should be well in excess of any deficit we can forsee at this time."

Ald. Roy Harder said it is now up to the various unorganized components of the regional district to decide if they will hold a plebiscite to see if their residents wish to participate in recreation costs.

The City of Duncan and North Cowichan councils are committed to presenting an $800,000 recreation vote in September.

Pigeon Holes Prohibited By Mayor

DUNCAN — The new broom at city hall continues to sweep clean.

Mayor Jim Quaife recently assigned himself the Monday chore of being in attendance at city hall to hear complaints and ideas from residents.

He carried this a step further on Thrusday by instituting a complaint form.

"This way no complaint to city hall will get shoved under the counter in the hope the person will forget about it.

"Complaints will be handled systematically, properly processed and checked out. If they can't be dealt with by the city hall staff then they will be passed to council.

"But nothing will be pigeonholed and forgotten."

FORCES DAY

Gifts at Gate On Saturday At Pat Bay

If an attractive young woman steps up to your car as you enter VU-33 at Patricia Bay Saturday and says you are the 200th car, don't be alarmed.

She has a framed color wall picture for you of the forces in action.

Miss CFB Esquimalt will be at the naval airbase waiting with gifts for the 300th, 400th and 500th cars to pass through the gate to Armed Forces Day, 1968.

VU-33 Squadron will open its area at noon.

All three services will be represented, with displays set up from normal operational material, and tactical vehicles and weapons.

Service cooks have organized a showing of their food — as well as a battleship made of icing and a birthday cake. No serious complaints have been heard from those who eat their food of late, so you can feel secure in taking the "secret" recipes they offer you.

MOCKUPS

Also organized are firefighting and rescue displays and mockups of various types of equipment used by the forces. There will be several photographic displays showing how they operate.

The public will be given an opportunity to send messages to relatives and friends aboard HMCS Qu'Appelle, HMCS Saskatchewas and HMCS Grilse. The two larger ships are now enroute from Singapore to Hong Kong and the Grilse is returning from Japan.

Members of the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada will be running rides for the public in their armored personnel carriers. Other rides include a train for children (and any adults that will fit) and two mock airplane flights.

Band music will be supplied by the 1st Battalion Bugles of the QORs, the CFB Esquimalt band and bands of the Rainbow Sea Cadet Corps and Canadian Scottish Regiment.

The day finishes about 4:30 after an airshow of flypasts and skydiving.

Two well-marked routes will lead into the base, from the Pat Bay Highway or West Saanich Road.

Funeral Held For Farmer

COBBLE HILL—Funeral services were held at Duncan today for a Military Medal winner of the First World War who lived many years in this area.

Morris Wilson, who came to Canada in 1906, was 80 when he died in a Victoria hospital Tuesday.

Born in England he arrived in B.C. in 1907 to work on the Okanagan Lake paddle steamers after a short sojourn in Minnesota and Alberta.

He lived in Nanaimo and Victoria before serving overseas from 1915 to 1918 with the 13th Field Ambulance.

He farmed at Cobble Hill from 1919 until his retirement in 1959, served as a trustee on the Cowichan Station school board and as a director of the Cowichan Creamery Association and the Dairyman's Association. He was a member of the V.I. Rangers during the Second World War.

Hirst Funeral Chapel, Duncan, will conduct the services at 2 p.m.

NEW WATERING RULES

Council Calls Off Nightwear Parade

LAKE COWICHAN — A 63-name petition was sufficient to change village council's mind on sprinkling regulations.

In an accompanying letter, Mrs. J. Mathews said: "The hours of 6 to 9 a.m. would not only bring out a remarkable parade of nightwear fashions but are inconvenient for residents who do not normally rise at 6 o'clock.

Council agreed to change the sprinkling hours from 6 to 9 a.m. and 6 to 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. every day except Sunday.

Sprinkling on roofs is prohibited.

Works superintendent Vic Palmer said the village does not have a water shortage and an overnight period would usually refill the reservoir.

Council Backs School Bylaw

NORTH COWICHAN—Municipal council unanimously went on record Wednesday as supporting the $1,046,900 referendum to be voted on Saturday by ratepayers in Ladysmith school district.

Ald. Gerry Smith said: "We need the schools and if this referendum is defeated costs will inflate 15 to 20 per cent by next year."

Two previous referendums were defeated because Chemainus ratepayers objected to the plan to close the high school there and consolidate secondary education at Ladysmith.

The new referendum proposes simultaneous development of both senior secondary schools.

They'll Leap At Sound Of the Beep

DUNCAN — The wail of the fire station's siren here will soon give way to "beep beep beep!"

Council Thursday approved buying $11,568 of sophisticated electronic equipment which will bring its 25 volunteer firemen hustling to their station with a personalized signal.

When a fire alarm is phoned in now, the siren signals the volunteers to come a-running. But it also sets a lot of other residents to cussing, especially in the middle of the night.

COSTS $260

When the new equipment arrives in about six weeks, each volunteer fireman will be issued a cigar-box sized gadget worth $260.

He'll keep it beside his bed and can take it out gardening with him or to the beach.

Then when fire alarms are phoned in to the RCMP, the base station sends out its "beep beep" signal to the volunteers, wherever they are.

"As the city expands we have been finding difficulty in getting men to the hall because they don't hear the sirens," explains Chief Vern Jones.

The siren system remains until the beep system has proved itself.

CHIEF ALPHONSE

COWICHAN CHIEF TO JOIN MAYORS

DUNCAN — Chief Dennis Alphonse, of Cowichan Indian Band, will attend the annual meeting in Edmonton next week of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

The convention sent out invitations to 15 chiefs and councillors across Canada.

Chief Aphone is the only one from Vancouver Island and one of three going from British Columbia.

His traveling expenses are being paid by the Indian Affairs Department, and the convention expenses are being covered by the mayors' association.

Chief Alphonse said: "The mayors recognize that municipalities and Indian band councils face many common problems and have invited a number of us to be observers during their discussion."

CUT BACK 34%

CAMPBELL RIVER—Court of revision has granted Campbell River merchants a 34 per cent reduction in the district's controversial business tax Ald. Jack McLeod, chairman of the court, said today.

"After listening to 28 appeals, the court felt it was too much of a jump in one year so we looked for a compromise."

He said for the remainder of 1968 merchants will pay four per cent of 66 per cent of the assessed value of their buildings but effective Jan. 1, 1969, the rate will jump to four per cent of the full assessed value.

Faster Ambulance Asked for Island

GANGES—A faster, safer vehicle is needed to take emergency cases to hospital in Victoria and Duncan, the Salt Spring Ambulance Society has been told.

Run by the Salt Spring Lions Club which charges families $5 a year for its service, the ambulance is the only one on the island.

A committee under W. H. Bradley will inspect various vehicles and report on their adaptibility and performance.

The drivers have complained the present van does not handle well or at maximum safety at high speed.

However, it was suggested it be retained in case of emergency on the home front while the proposed new ambulance is in Victoria or Duncan.

An annual complaint was heard regarding some patients using the ambulance as a taxi to and from the hospital and taking up the time of volunteer drivers who must leave their regular jobs to supply the service.

NEWFOUNDLAND FOREST FIRE STILL BURNING

11 Homes Destroyed as Wind Creates Problem

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Ground crews kept a wary eye overnight on an erratically wind-blown forest fire 18 miles south of here that destroyed 11 homes Thursday.

Westerly winds of 47 miles an hour drove the fire from its point of origin six miles inland to the coast between the communities of Witless Bay and Mobile. They are less than two miles apart.

But, light winds overnight shifted to southeast and began nudging the fire back over its path and partially towards Mobile. Chief Forester Ed Ralph said it may be necessary to cut a fire break today to keep the fire from "doubling back."

The buildings destroyed were in a tiny settlement known both as Raggedy Harbor and Gallows Cove, about mid-way between Witless Bay and Mobile.

Light showers overnight offered little respite but fog and drizzle forecast today could be more helpful. Volunteers in a half dozen southern shore villages were asked to be ready to be picked up by bus before dawn for an all-out attack on the fire.

Water-bombing Canso aircraft worked several hours on the fire Thursday before high winds forced them to quit.

The blaze was burning on a two and one-half mile front on both sides of the only highway linking settlements on the southern shore. It charred brush and turf to within a few hundred yards of Witless Bay Thursday night.

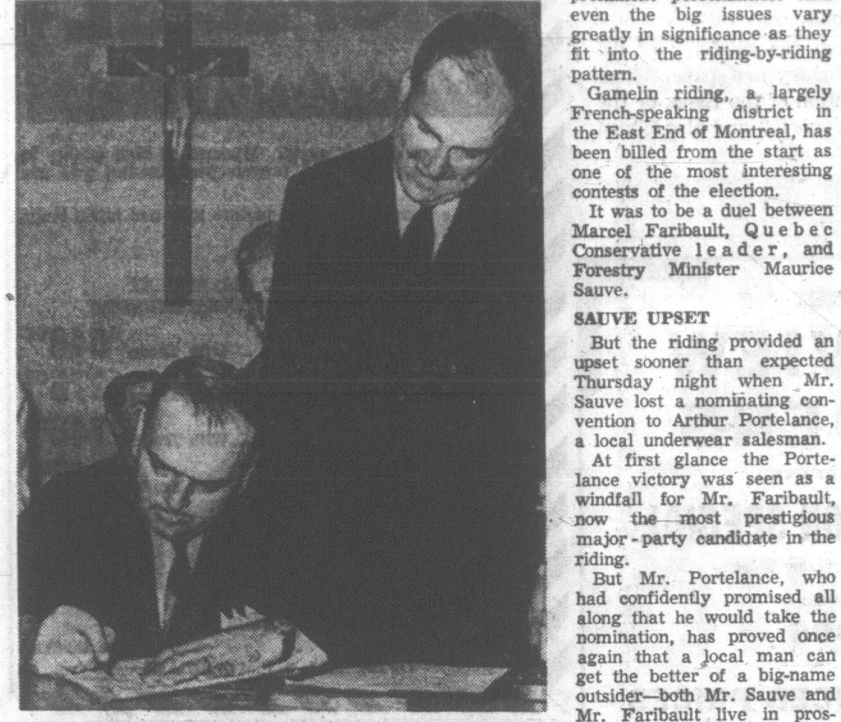
FORESTRY MINISTER TOPPLED

Quebec Stronghold of Apathy Despite Tension

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Quebec Bureau

QUEBEC CITY — Despite the prominence that constitutional tension between Ottawa and Quebec has had in the national election campaign so far, Quebec is still a stronghold of political apathy.



WINNING Liberal nomination for Montreal Gamelin Thursday was Arthur Portelance, seated, from Lands and Forests Minister Maurice Sauve, 179-146.

The bright patches of color in the picture come from individual duels between prominent personalities. And even the big issues vary greatly in significance as they fit into the riding-by-riding pattern.

Gamelin riding, a largely French-speaking district in the East End of Montreal, has been billed from the start as one of the most interesting contests of the election.

It was to be a duel between Marcel Faribault, Quebec Conservative leader, and Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve.

SAUVE UPSET

But the riding provided an upset sooner than expected Thursday night when Mr. Sauve lost a nominating convention to Arthur Portelance, a local underwear salesman.

At first glance the Portelance victory was seen as a windfall for Mr. Faribault, now the most prestigious major-party candidate in the riding.

But Mr. Portelance, who had confidently promised all along that he would take the nomination, has proved once again that a local man can get the better of a big-name outsider—both Mr. Sauve and Mr. Faribault live in prosperous Outremont—and all bets that he can't do it again are being made cautiously.

The upset could modify Mr. Faribault's approach to the campaign and require him to put more emphasis on the local concerns of the riding.

Up to now he has been stressing the conservation of traditional French-Canadian values, with heavy emphasis to religion and morality as well as culture. This could strike a responsible chord in an area likely to have reservations about Criminal Code changes, dealing with abortion and homosexuality, proposed by Prime Minister Trudeau when he was minister of justice.

TONED DOWN?

So far Mr. Faribault, when speaking in the riding, has given less attention than had been expected to his differences with Mr. Trudeau over constitutional policy.

Although the Trudeau influence is generally expected to have its effect mainly in the cities, and local issues and candidates to dominate in the countryside, Matane on the lower St. Lawrence comes close to being a classic pro-Trudeau-anti-Trudeau fight.

Conservative Julien Chouinard, until now Quebec's deputy minister of justice, is attacking Trudeau policies on the constitution and coming down hard on the issues of abortion and homosexuality.

Against him is Liberal Pierre De Bane, who was executive assistant to Mr. Trudeau when he held the justice portfolio. Like Mr. Trudeau, he believes the general population has no interest in claims for a special status for Quebec. He will stick mainly to regional economic disparities and local problems in this area of low incomes and high unemployment.

With some four weeks to go before the election there is still time for a wave to develop in Quebec in either direction.

But right now the most probable reason for seats changing hands appear to be simply a good local candidate against a poor one, the dissension in riding associations that plagues both Conservative and Liberal parties, and the vagaries of redistribution. Changes could be in all directions, with Real Caouette's Creditistes the most likely net loser, although previous reports of their disappearance have turned out to be premature.

LITTLE FIRE

So far there is no evidence that Conservative attacks on Mr. Trudeau's constitutional stand are arousing significant public response. And Mr. Trudeau's personal appeal has yet to arouse as much large-scale hysteria here as it has elsewhere, although it has definitely had an impact. He ran three-to-one ahead of Robert Stanfield in popularity in a survey made among French-speaking Montrealers, but many persons questioned remained hesitant and undecided.

One group among whom there is no hesitation are English-speaking Quebecers, in traditionally Conservative rural areas as well as Liberal Montreal. Preoccupied by fear of separatism and feeling themselves especially vulnerable to it, they appear to look on Mr. Trudeau almost with reverence.

NDP in Ontario Prepares Obstacles for Trudeau

(Special to the Times)

TORONTO — New Democratic Party officials in Ontario are quietly convinced these days that their party is the only realistic stumbling block to the Trudeau juggernaut.

In metro Toronto, they are conceding nothing to the Conservatives. The NDP holds four of the 21 metro seats and the Conservatives have none.

The north, the party has carefully cultivated union strongholds, particularly in the Timmins area where it holds four seats. There are hopes that the party will snatch Cochrane which was held by the Liberals in the last parliament.

At the mid-point in the June 25 election campaign, the four metro seats held by the New Democrats seem invulnerable.

York South has become almost a pocket borough for national deputy-leader David Lewis and he has little strong opposition from the Conservatives and Liberals Much the same is the case in Greenwood, where Andrew Brewin is seeking his fourth term in the House of Commons.

In Broadview, in Toronto's working class east-end, John Gilbert appears to have little concern about Robert Sutherland, a Trudeau-style Liberal and Mrs. Betty Knight, a secretary running for the Conservatives.

NEW CANDIDATE

John Harney, the party's provincial secretary, is carrying the flag in Scarboro West which was held by NDPer Reid Scott before distribution. Mr. Scott retired this year because of poor health.

The party hopes to add four more seats to its Toronto bloc. In the new riding of Lakeshore, which went to the NDP in the October provincial election, Terence Grier is running a smooth campaign. Among the other seats the party feels it will bring into the fold is York Centre, where newpaper columnist and former member of parliament Douglas Fisher is running.

Mr. Fisher has a strong fight on his hands with Liberal incument James Walker who is immeasurably popular in the riding. News commentator Bruce Rogers has an uphill struggle in Parkdale against Liberal Dr. Stanley Haidasz, but the organizational office is optimistic.

Party Leader T. C. Douglas spent most of the week in central and south-western Ontario and dropped into Toronto to tape a television show and visit some of the east-end ridings.

He has been meeting supporters on an informal basis and has made great use of the workers-at-the-factory-gate routine. He received his heartiest welcome in Brantford where he promised support for the 2,200 workers who are on strike against Massey-Ferguson Industries Ltd.

He said the NDP backed their quest for wage parity with U.S. workers and lashed out in old socialist style against the company for allegedly milking the workers for fat profits.

WAGE PARITY

In Windsor, Mr. Douglas pushed his economic attack against the government of Prime Minister Trudeau by accusing Mr. Trudeau of right-wing attitudes in fiscal matters.

'GRITS DESERVE NO SHELTERING'

Tory Chief Lashes Economy

(Special to the Times)

WINGHAM, Ont. — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield indicated Thursday he will continue hammering away at the dangerous position of the Canadian economy even if his constant criticism makes the situation more critical.

He suggested at a press conference at Barrie Thursday morning that the Liberal government does not deserve to be sheltered from criticism of its economic policies merely because the situation is precarious.

The Tory leader's intentions were made known when a reporter asked if he did not think he was adding to the economic crisis by continually discussing it and reporting such things as the current run on cashing in Canada's savings bonds.

The suggestion was made that Stanfield himself might be influencing other people across the nation to turn in their bonds.

He replied, however, that the Conservatives had been responsible in opposition, and had restrained from being too critical of the government in parliament.

NO SYMPATHY

Now that an election is in progress, however, the Liberals deserve no sympathy and the nation must be alerted to their mismanagement.

Stanfield has dwelt on the economic situation at least once a day for the past week and a half, charging that the Liberals have brought about high interest rates, high unemployment and so on. Several times he has reported that people are rushing to cash in their savings bonds due to the serious situation.

There are more than $5 billion worth of Canada saving bonds outstanding at this time, and if the run on them became a torrent, the government would be unable to cash them all.

The Barrie press conference was one of five public appearances by the Conservative leader Thursday. He attracted more than 700 persons to a church hall in Barrie at noon and more than 450 to an evening rally in Wingham, 68 miles north of London.

Stanfield discussed a wide variety of topics at the press session, including his views on the omnibus bill to amend the Criminal Code — a piece of legislation which temporarily disappeared when parliament was dissolved for the election.

The Tory said the bill — which covers abortion, homosexuality, lotteries and other items — would not be introduced as government legislation if he is elected prime minister on June 25.

"There are several provisions of this ominous bill which trouble the consciences of a good man Canadians," Stanfield said.

Rather than having so many different subjects included in one bill, the leader suggested it should be divided into a number of separate bills.

And then, it should be introduced not as a government bill, but as one in which all members could vote freely.

Asked specifically for his views on lotteries, Stanfield said he was not convinced they were a very good way to raise money for governments or public projects.

He added, he would support legislation permitting the provinces to establish lotteries if they wish to do so.

"The federal government, however, should not get involved with them."

NOTHING NOVEL

Asked to comment on Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's announcement Wednesday that Canada will establish new missions with five French speaking nations, Stanfield said it "doesn't strike me as anything very novel.

"It is no great departure from traditional policies."

Questioned about NATO, the leader said Canada should remain a member of the alliance, but a review should be made of her role.

Stanfield was asked whether if he is elected prime minister, there would be a place in his cabinet for former Conservative leader John Diefenbaker. He replied he was very pleased to have Diefenbaker running in the election, but he doubted whether the former prime minister would want to serve another leader.

Asked if former Social Credit leader Robert Thompson who has defected to the Tory camp, would have a position in the cabinet, Stanfield said he refused to announce any ministers prior to the election.

At the Barrie meeting where the crowd was jammed elbow to elbow in the red brick church hall and overflowed onto the lawns, Stanfield shared the platform with candidates Dr. P. R Rynard and former senator Wallace McCutcheon, who resigned from the upper chamber to seek election to the Commons.

The audience was one of the most enthusiastic the Tory leader has encountered, and roared its approval of him.

During the afternoon the leader travelled by helicopter to Collingwood, where 300 turned out and to Hanover where another 200 applauded him.

Man Jailed After Fuss At Station

A man who caused a disturbance in the Victoria city police station was jailed 10 days Wednesday.

Fred Chabon, no fixed address, entered the station Tuesday claiming he was being charged by a local hotel and demanding to know the nature of the charge.

When told there was no charge, he left. He returned in about five minutes and stated the hotel in question had ejected him. He demanded the right to lay a charge.

Upon being informed of the correct way of laying charges and escorted out he became abusive, yelling and cursing the police on duty.

Sentence Suspended On Assault Charge

A man was given a suspended sentence Wednesday after he earlier pleaded guilty to assaulting a Saanich police officer May 11.

Court was told P. Medwid, 748 Parkridge, assaulted the officer who had been called to the Medwid home as a result of a domestic quarrel.

Magistrate Ostler placed the accused on a $500 two-year good behavior bond.

Fines, Suspensions For Impaired Driving

A driver chased down Douglas St. by police early Thursday was fined $350 for impaired driving.

Donald Rees, 21, of Work Point Barracks, was apprehended in a Courtney St. parking lot. He pleaded guilty to the charge.

Alphonse Ringuette, also of Work Point Barracks, was fined $350 for impaired driving after court was told he was observed driving in an erratic manner on Quadra St. May 18.

The driver's licences of both accused were suspended.

REDS DON'T DISPUTE U.S. STORY ON CRASH

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union confirmed Thursday the crash of a bomber that buzzed the United States aircraft carrier Essex, and did not dispute the U.S. version that Americans were in no way involved in the accident.

An announcement from the ministry of defence, published in the ministry newspaper Krasnaya Zvezda, made no mention of the Essex or the buzzing incident that was reported and also filmed by the ship's crew.

The defence ministry said the bomber crashed "on a training flight".

Political Education Campaign Stepped Up

By ROGER STONEBANKS

The B.C. Federation of Labour is stepping up its campaign of political education and support of the New Democratic Party.

Secretary Ray Haynes of Vancouver disclosed Wednesday that an organizer has been hired for three months in the Kitimat area from the more than $10,000 raised by trade unionists to fight Bill 33, the government's new labor legislation which includes compulsory arbitration features.

He said the purpose of the organizer is to continue to build up the fund and to develop political education committees with the different unions in the Kitimat area.

Asked why an organizer was hired in such a remote area, he said trade unionists there made a "substantial contribution" to the Beat Bill 33 Fund and a man was available to fill the job.

Kitimat is the site of the aluminum smelting plant of the Aluminum Company of Canada.

FORM PARTY CLUBS

Mr. Haynes said the purpose of political education is to "involve people in politics, to use part of the union meeting for political education and where practical to set up political New Democratic Party clubs.

"Generally speaking, it is to promote the NDP. In some areas we must start with basic political education— that politics is a vital part of the trade union movement, leading towards a very active group we ultimately hope to join as individual members, affiliate as a union and work actively for NDP candidates," he said.

Renewed interest and activity in political education was "spurred by Bill 33," he said.

He was asked how Bill 42, a 1961 government measure which prohibits union dues from being contributed directly or indirectly to a political party or candidate for office, affects the federation's renewed campaign.

NOT RESTRICTED

He replied that the legislation deals with trade unions and does not restrict the federation's political activity since it is an association of unions.

(The federation comprises about 300 local unions in B.C. with 136,000 members.)

"And secondly, even if it did, we're quite prepared to meet the legislation because we don't intend to allow this type of legislation to stifle our political activity.

"Bill 42 is discriminatory legislation directed at one segment of society.

"We think there are many ways of taking political action without running headlong into the law," he said.

The legal validity of Bill 42, passed by the legislature after an all-night debate seven years ago, was upheld in August, 1961.

The Supreme Court ruled against an Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union appeal on withdrawal of union dues checkoff. Imperial Oil withdrew the checkoff when the union refused to file an affadavit stating that no part of money deducted from an employee's pay in this way would be used politically.

Self-Serve Liquor Stores Studied

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario is considering following in the footsteps of British Columbia and Saskatchewan in introducing self-serve liquor stores, the Liquor Control Board's chief commissioner, G. H. Sheppard, said Thursday.

He told the legislature's committee on government boards and commissions operations in the two provinces are being carefully examined with a view to introducing self-service stores on an experimental basis.

But he said immediate indications are that such stores would not be cheaper to operate than the present ones with their sales staffs.

Liquor sales continued to be one of the province's leading revenue producers with sales for the 1966-67 fiscal year up $8,500,000 over the previous year to a total of $294,400,000. Profits were $133,700,000 compared with $125,000,000 in 1965-66.

'No Change' In Hospital Operation

PENTICTON (CP—Veterans' Affairs Minister Tteillet has given assurances to British Columbia delegates to the Royal Canadian Legion convention that no changes will be made in the administration of veterans' hospitals in Vancouver and Victoria without first consulting the Legion.

Mr. Teillet made the remark during private discussion with B.C. legionaires of the veterans' hospital situation in B.C., where the number of veterans is steadily increasing.

"I would like to see Shaughnessy Hospital tied in with the University of British Columbia," he said. "But this is many years away."

Referring to the DVA hospital in Victoria, Mr. Teillet said in the long term he would like to see an arrangement worked out between the department of national defence and the neighboring Royal Jubilee Hospital.

DRESSING of the line is bad enough, but the dressing by that officer on the end is astonishing. However, the silky legs belonged to the wife of the managing director of the shipping line. She was awaiting the arrival at Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, of President Milton Obote of Uganda aboard MV Uganda to inaugurate a new shipping service. That's why the officers were turned out.

NDP in Quebec Expects Gains

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Political observers are talking about the new look of Quebec's New Democratic Party, which is conducting a carefully pin-pointed fight to win its first federal seats in the June 25 general election.

And a couple of hotshot Ontario NDP organizers who have moved into the Quebec battle said Wednesday the campaign has evoked greater response here at this stage than elsewhere in Canada.

Robert Cliche, Quebec NDP leader who has been busily knocking on doors, brandished a collection of battered hats at a news conference Wednesday as symbolic of the two big parties.

The Liberal and Progressive Conservatives, he said, simply change hats for different groups or regions—a 10-gallon hat for the West, for instance — rather than adopting adequate programs. There was an Irish-green tall hat for ethnic groups. Mr. Cliche—pronounced kleesh—said his party has a "mathematical chance" in 12 to 15 ridings and he would be well gratified by the capture of six. The fluently bilingual lawyer was scheduled to fly to Winnipeg and St. Boniface today.

SPEAK OF QUEBEC

Asked in an interview why he considers NDP chances better now than in the 1965 general election, Mr. Cliche, 46, said candidates and the party generally are more "articulate" about Quebec's problems, not only the constitutional problem.

Besides, the organization is better and "we have learned the virtue of concentration" instead of spreading votes wastefully.

Thirty-six candidates now have been named in Quebec which has 74 ridings. NDP candidates placed second in 13 Montreal ridings in the 1965 election. The over-all provincial popular vote was 244,300 for NDP compared with 928,000 for the Liberals and 432,000 for the Progressive Conservatives.

Toronto organizers Stephen Lewis and Gerald Caplan, both 30, have been concentrating on getting Professor Charles Taylor elected in Montreal's Dollard riding against Liberal Jean-Pierre Goyer, member of the last Parliament.

Mr. Cliche, running against Liberal Eric Kierans in Montreal Duvernay, which is 95 per cent French, indicated the Lewis-Caplan team will operate mainly in the ridings of heavier English-speaking population.

VOTE GROWS

Professor Taylor, 36, who teaches political science at McGill and philosophy at University of Montreal, one of the NDP's most formidable candidates, placed second to Pierre Elliott Trudeau in 1965 in Mount Royal, where his vote increased markedly in three elections.

Two other McGill professors, C. G. (Giff) Gifford and Laurier LaPierre, represent the NDP in the Montreal constituencies of Notre-Dame-de-Grace and Lachine respectively.

Mr. Taylor and other NDP candidates — including Jussy Brainin, insurance broker and writer who is opposing Mr. Trudeau this time in Mount Royal — have hit a common theme:

The prime minister, once like themselves a man of the left in politics, now has adopted the outlook and policies of old-line politicians.

"In one respect he is not like the old party politicians," said Mr. Taylor in one speech. "He doesn't promise what he isn't going to carry out. He has simply told us he isn't going to carry out any major social and economic reforms."

But that, the NDP man added, is what the election is all about.

Crashed Plane Passenger Faces Charges

ALERT BAY (CP) — A pasenger aboard a light aircraft that crashed and burned Monday while attempting to take off was fined $100 Wednesday for obstructing police and $100 for resisting arrest.

Magistrate's court was told that Bernard McKay scuffled with police when they arrived at the scene of the accident and attempted to seize liquor being carried by McKay and pilot Terrance Reading.

The seaplane rammed the shoreline at Alert Bay, 200 miles northwest of Vancouver. Both men escaped serious injury.

Victoria Daily Times
VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1968—PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

Without half trying, I can remember a day when the presence of anybody under 20 at a political meeting was noted with uneasy concern. It was against nature: the lad must have been paid by a rival campaign manager to come and raise hell. But the times had begun to change even before Pierre Elliott Trudeau exploded upon our scene.

Let us not forget that the first all-candidate rally in Victoria's 1967 municipal election joust was student-organized.

With Mr. Trudeau came the landslide which may eventually result in a reduction of federal voting age from the present 21 years, and heaven knows what beside.

In fairness, Grits and Tories can both claim an increased number of youthful supporters. But the Liberals, who naturally lean heavy on the Trudeau name, seem to have a definite edge.

Come to think of it, David Anderson — billed as "the Trudeau man (and your man) for Esquimalt-Saanich" — is not precisely aged himself.

When I dropped in at his Cadillac Ave. headquarters to pick up a wife who hasn't been the same since Pierre Elliot took that rose between his teeth, the joint was jumping.

Along with men and women campaign volunteers were teen-agers in significant number.

One of them is sweet-faced Bonnie Ricketts of 2878 Parkview. Bonnie is 17. In a matter of weeks, she hopes to graduate from Esquimalt senior secondary school.

A few weeks ago, Bonnie dropped a note to Prime Minister Trudeau, offering her services in the election campaign.

"I didn't write to him just because he is cute," she explains. "I like his fresh outlook, and the way he does things."

Back came a letter from the PM's secretary. Offer accepted with thanks, and Liberal headquarters in Bonnie's riding would be notified.

So here she is, working as time permits in Mr. Anderson's headquarters, until Saturday, June 22.

Then she leaves for Ottawa, where she hopes to find work.

But that's only part of the story. Bonnie will arrive in the capital on June 25, which as you know, is election day.

With her, she plans to take a gift to Mr. Trudeau from the people of Victoria. This will be a little Vancouver Island dogwood tree, ready for planting.

But wouldn't that be an awkward present to take by train?

"I'm sure I'll manage all right," says Bonnie. What can make her assignment difficult, however, is the fact that the flowering dogwood, except where it occurs on private land, is strictly protected. You can't pick its flowers or uproot its saplings.

There's also some doubt whether our native dogwood can survive those stern back-East winters.

But it's a nice gesture, and I hope some knowledgeable horticulturalist in this city of trees and gardens will help Bonnie make good on it.

Talking to candidate Anderson, I learned that he has one claim to attention not listed in his campaign advertising.

He owns what may very well be the farthest-travelled Cowichan sweater in the world.

As an assistant government trade commissioner for Canada across the Pacific, he once warded off Peking's winter chill with that boldly-patterned sweater.

"A very useful garment," Mr. Anderson said. "I was glad of it in Manilla too — it's surprising how cold the nights can get down there at times."

Not to boast, but it was through this column that the Liberal candidate came to acquire this item of casual wear. Several years ago, I did a piece in which the Cowichan sweater's warmth and durability was extolled.

The candidate's mother, Mrs. J. W. Anderson of 3026 McAnally, saw the item, bought one of the Indian-knits, and shipped it off to her son.

So much for this day, and now off to bang the last remaining slats on a fence that has been under repair for much too long. Trouble is, I get one section mended and another falls over. Like dominoes.

WINDS CERTAIN FOR SWIFTSURE

The Swiftsure will live up to its name this year. Weather forecasts for the weekend predict wind, and lots of it.

Sadly, they also predict rain for the opening ceremonies.

Here is a blow-by-blow account of what the wind is expected to do over the next two days, with a weather front moving in today:

Friday Night—Winds from the east and southeast at 20 to 25 m.p.h., with rain and cloudy skies.

Saturday—The weather system will be through by then, leaving winds from the west at 25 m.p.h. and gusting before the race. By race time they will be from the southwest and south at about 20 m.p.h. Some gusting is expected during the morning.

Sunday—Winds to be lighter, but there will be a westerly component to them, helping the sailors back to Victoria. There may also be some widely-scattered showers.

Jockeying Starts Tonight in Dash For Harbor Spot

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

A "pre-race race" of yachts to get into the Inner Harbor is expected tonight for opening ceremonies of the Swiftsure.

A total of 137 yachts is entered — and they cannot all fit into the harbor. The only vessel assured of her position is HMCS Cowichan, the color ship for the ceremonies.

The roll call of yachts will be conducted at 7:50, followed by a sunset ceremony at the Legislative Buildings at 8:45.

Both races will start off Brotchie Ledge Beacon on Saturday, with the line set between HMCS Porte de la Reine, and HMCS Cowichan. Starting gun for the 136-mile Swiftsufe race goes at 9:30 a.m., followed by a 9:45 gun for the 75-mile Juan de Fuca race.

For the second year, the Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet from Washington State Clubs will start with the Juan de Fuca yachts.

MARA BACK

Among the many returning yachts will be last year's triple winner, Mara, raced by Seattle's Bill Buchan Jr. Mara took the 1967 Swiftsure Trophy as over-all winner on corrected time. She also won the RCNSA Trophy as the first boat to round Swiftsure light, and the Seattle Yacht Club Trophy as winner in Division III.

Other winners from previous years which will be back include the Seattle yawl Diamond Head, J. H. Long's Mary Bower, G. O. Smith's Bandit, Dr. Carl Jensen's Adios, and R. G. Page's Hussy.

UNPREDICTABLE

Skippers will be hoping for fresh breezes to clear them through Race Rocks before the tide changes in mid-afternoon.

(According to the official tide tables, the tide will be ebbing during the morning. But tides have been known to disregard the official book).

In fact, experienced skippers say that the tides through the "Race" are completely unpredictable.

Generally speaking, when the tide runs against the fleet, the yachts hug the shoreline, hoping to pick up favorable eddies.

Most helmsmen elect to go through "the Race" on the way out. Then, the major decision is whether to follow the Canadian or American shore for the long "beat" up the strait.

DEMANDING

Swiftsure is demanding. It constantly tests navigation and seamanship skills. And there is more than a little luck thrown in when guessing where the wind is, or will be blowing. A helmsman must know his boat's performance under any given combination of wind and sea conditions, and how much sail he can profitably, and safely, carry at all times.

As well as the wide variations of skill and luck, there are the great differences in boat sizes. These differences are compensated for with the C.C. of A. ratings, which are determined for each yacht by a complicated handicapping formula.

The factors involved are those which affect the potential speed of the boat; factors such as waterline length, weight, amount of sail carried, and propeller "drag," if any. Generally, a boat's rating is less than its over-all length.

But there are exceptions. One example is Rick Todd's relatively light 24-footer Kiwi, which rates 26.4. An example of a heavy, relatively slow boat is John Damgaard's 30-foot ketch Hanna, which rates 18.5.

RELATIVE THING

Performance during the course of the race, therefore, is a relative thing. Position only becomes meaningful when the finish times have been recorded and the handicapping applied.

As in previous years, the course will be well patrolled and communication channels available. Patrol vessels will include the HMCS Cowichan, HMCS Porte de la Reine, HMCS Porte Quebec, USCGC Henlopen, and the RCMP Victoria.

The Swiftsure Mark will be the HMCS Porte Quebec, anchored on the 19-fathom patch at 48 deg. 33' N, 125 deg. 00' W. RCMP Victoria, anchored in position 222 deg. Magnetic from the bell buoy off Slip Point, will be the Clallam Bay Mark.

Finish line will be a line running west (magnetic) across Victoria harbor entrance from the northwest end of Pier A, Ogden Point docks. (Approximately 300 yards inside the breakwater.)

WORK FORCE

The Swiftsure committee has been working under the direction of Royal Victoria Yacht Club's Frank Piddington. Swiftsure fleet captain is Dr. Doug Adams, also of RVYC.

Other members of the race committee ashore are Jim Rogers of RCNSA, and Harry Armstrong and Dick Fisher of RVYC.

Race committee afloat includes Jack Woodward, Duncan Coles, John Malleson, Bob Grant and Bob Metcalf, of RVYC.

On the Island Tug and Barge donated press tug will be Hector Alexander and Andrew Wright.

Eaton's window downtown will, as usual, have the Swiftsure Racecourse map, and provide a focus for direct news reports from the patrol vessels.

$102,538 Lowest Bid For Centre

A low bid of $102,538 was submitted Thursday by Herb Bate Limited for construction of a senior citizens activity centre near Hampton Park in Saanich.

The three other bids were: E. J. Hunter and Sons, $105,872; H. E. Fowler and Sons, $110,683; and G. H. Wheaton, $111,220.

The tenders were referred to project architect John De Castri who will make a report to the senior citizens committee Monday which is expected to make a recommendation to Monday night's council meeting, said comptroller-treasurer John Tribe.

A separate tender call for kitchen equipment brought bids of $13,255 from Terminal Sheet Metal Works and $13,542.86 from Alexander Food Equipment.

'NOTHING UNUSUAL'

Ferries Plugged Up By U.S. Holidayers

An American who came from New York to visit Vancouver Island was fuming at the B.C. Ferry Authority Thursday night.

He said it took him longer to get across the Strait of Georgia than to fly from New York to Vancouver.

And he wasn't the only Tsawwassen-Swartz Bay passenger to complain about delays caused by the influx of U.S. visitors on their Memorial Day holiday.

Another passenger—a Victorian—said he arrived at the Tsawwassen terminal just before 6 p.m. for the 7 p.m. ferry. He was told the ferry was full and had to wait for the 9 p.m. sailing.

It left the terminal at 9:45.

'NOTHING UNUSUAL'

"It was nothing unusual," the ferry authority said today. "This has happened every Memorial Day since we began service eight years ago."

No one thinks that the overload will occur, forgetting about the American holiday, the spokesman said.

"They're thunderstruck when it comes on a Thursday."

So thunderstruck that cars were left sitting at both terminals waiting for the next ferry, two hours later.

The ferry authority didn't put on extra ferries in anticipation of the rush.

They maintained regular weekly service during the day, with sailings from both ends of the line every two hours. But they did put an extra run on at each end at 11.

"There were only 32 cars out of Swartz Bay on the last ferry," the ferry spokesman said.

That was at 11, and the last ferry was scheduled for 9 p.m.

Did the authority consider putting extra ferries on for the holiday — like the increased service for weekends and Canadian holidays?

"We would have to be able to conjure up ferries at the drop of a hat every time there is an overload," he said.

"What is the economy involved in putting an extra ship on? We could run ferries on the hour every day of the year if people were prepared to face the cost.

"We are trying to run it (the ferry service) so it holds its own.

"Besides, some of our own people were caught in the overload. They had to wait too."

DESPERATE MEASURES TAKEN

Things Starting to Stir For Oak Bay's Tea Party

By ALAN WHITE

Word has slipped through the Tweed Curtain. And the word is ominous—there will be a day of civil unrest.

Perhaps two days, depending upon the reaction of the citizenry.

The tight rule of silence in the principality is slipping.

The agent who parted the wool of the curtain and barked his message through indicated invasion from neighboring principalities was imminent.

Fist anticipated move is partition.

Special guards have already been detailed in anticipation of the rush on Oak Bay's borders. They will check for passes and see that everyone crossing the border has only peaceful things in mind. No weapons, understand, not even sawed-off cricket bats or taped teapot handles.

What is it all about? Why such sudden and desperate measures? The Oak Bay Tea Party, of course. The area's annual breakout and anniversary celebration.

It starts at 10 a.m. Saturday with a show of martial strength.

Foot and mounted regiments will parade from Windsor Park.

The latest in short and long-wheel-based vehicles will be paraded, armored with streamers and paper.

Leading the parade will be Mr. and Mrs. Tweedie, heads of state, in their indefatigable limousine—a 1937 Phantom Three V-12 Rolls-Royce. Which goes to show that Oak Bay doesn't squander its foreign aid as some lesser sheikdoms are known to do.

The procession will move down Newport Avenue, along Oak Bay Avenue through the village to Foul Bay Road, then north along Foul Bay to Cadboro Bay Road, right on Hamiota through the Estevan shopping centre to Beach Drive.

This is known as Formal Procession and Show of Might Route No. 1.

Troops will break off for temporary bivouac, and judging of vehicles (basically bicycles) will be conducted.

There will be a display of Scottish country dancing and the baron of beef from noon to 5 p.m. The Tea Party will be formally opened by Acting Mayor Frances Elford, following a short luncheon for VIPs and visiting heads of state from Victoria, Saanich and Esquimalt.

There will also be an art contest for children during the afternoon in the park, to keep the populace peaceful. Easels and charcoal will be available on the spot.

And later in the afternoon a final display of might, with skydivers plunging to the beach. They will open parachutes at the very last moment to avoid jarring their teeth.

Other events for Saturday's uprising include an acrobatic display smuggled in by the YMCA and a rock band called the How About? There will be a free teen dance from 9 to 11 p.m.

Sunday the shock of partition and invasion should have worn off enough for the protective agency screen to warp. And the day will be one of full-scale celebration.

Beginning at 1 p.m. a water show will start off Willows Beach with water skiers, ski-jumpers, acrobatic skiers, skydivers, and what is cryptically referred to as "a surprise event."

Oak Bay's air force (rented from the Victoria Flying Club) will present a flypast and harbor tours will be offered from the beach by a two-vessel navy of tour boats.

The invasion force for the do is expected to be in excess of last year's 15,000. And according to the best of tactical advice, the best place to be is the front wave. The tea is fresher.

It is also wise to lead the retreat—because if the Tweed Curtain doesn't come completely unravelled by Sunday night, it will come back down with a tremendous thwoosh. Rather.

Seaman Killed As Sports Car Rams Into Pole

By PAUL WILLIAMSON

One man died and a second seriously injured early today when a sports car spun out of control and slammed sideways into a power pole on Esquimalt Road.

Gregory Dixon, 21, an able seaman at CFB Esquimalt, was pronounced dead on arrival at Naden Hospital.

A 22-year-old passenger, AB John McLaughlin, is in serious condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital with a fractured skull.

Police said the car was apparently travelling west from Victoria into Esquimalt about 12:30 a.m.

After rounding a curve to the left, the car spun out and crashed into a pole on the north side of the road in the 800 block.

FOLDED V-SHAPE

The pole hit in the middle of the driver's door. The door was torn off and the car folded itself in a V shape around the pole.

The car was demolished, but the pole damaged only slightly.

Naval authorities report both men worked at the CFB Esquimalt fleet school. Dixon comes from Ridgeway, Ontario, and McLaughlin from Grand Falls, New Brunswick.

McLaughlin was taken to Naden Hospital but transferred to Royal Jubilee Hospital early today.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said he has ordered a blood analysis and post mortem on Dixon.

ANOTHER ONE

A second sports car spun into a pole two miles away one half-hour later, but the driver received only minor injuries.

George Cormack, 26, of 541 Toronto, was treated for cuts and bruises and released from Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Saanich police said Cormack was driving east on the Trans-Canada Highway when the car went out of control as it approached Douglas.

The car careened into the pole supporting the railway crossing warning lights just west of Douglas.

Police estimated damage at $1,000 to the car and $400 to the signal lights.

NDP SIGNS OKAY WITH VICTORIA

New Democratic Party supporters who plan to defy the tough anti-sign bylaw in Saanich are on solid legal ground, it was confirmed today by a Victoria city official.

As far as Victoria is concerned a 1966 Supreme Court decision makes clear that municipalities have no power to regulate federal election campaign signs. City staffs have been told not to remove campaign posters or signs that appear to violate the city bylaw.

Acting Saanich Mayor Leslie Passmore was to confer with the municipal solicitor today to decide whether to prosecute NDP supporters who place campaign signs on their lawns.

Bit of Flair For Stores In Square?

Bastion Square will become a hive of activity this summer if merchants are given a freer hand in promotion programs.

City manager Dennis Young told city council Thursday afternoon there are two obvious areas of development for the square, both of which would give the area a lift.

"I think we should encourage merchants located in the square to expand on their promotional activities," he said. "And I think we should be fairly elastic in what we permit them to do.

"For example if one merchant wants to put a wandering gypsy in there, I think it should be permitted under the existing business licence for the store in question. I don't think a second business licence should be required for what is after all just an extension of the store's activities."

CONFINED TO SQUARE

Mr. Young told council any activities so promoted would have to be confined to the square and would not be permitted to encroach on other areas of the city.

A second plan to promote pedestrian traffic could come from what Mr. Young termed "spill-over activity."

"If the restaurants in the square want to put tables and chairs in the square, I think they should be allowed to do so as long as their activity is within reason and doesn't create an impediment for other square users," he said.

"In the same manner, if a dress shop in the Village Fair wants to stage an outdoor fashion show, it should receive our approval."

Medical Plan Transferred

The provincial government moved a step closer to implementing federal medicare Thursday by officially transferring the B.C. Medical Plan and its 450,000 subscribers to the Medical Services Commission.

A cabinet order approved the transfer under the agreement signed by Ottawa and B.C. to implement medicare July 1.

Other non-profit pre-paid medical plans in the province are expected to be transferred to the Medical Services Commission shortly to qualify for federal money under the medicare agreement.

On Wednesday at 6 p.m. the lieutenant-governor will receive Sir Henry Lintott, high commissioner for Great Britain, and Lady Lintott.

$1 MILLION MARINA

Building Boom Forecast For Sidney

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The town of Sidney is on the verge of a building boom — the biggest in its history.

A proposal to construct a $1,000,000 apartment-marina complex has been submitted to Sidney council.

Three other applications to construct apartments on Fifth Street and one on Second Street, are under consideration.

A public hearing has been set for June 14 to consider the apartment-marina complex because it is situated in a residential area.

The proposed development would be located on about five-acres of property in the vicinity of McDonald Park Road and Shoal Harbor, near Rest Haven Hospital.

There would be two apartment blocks consisting of about 80 suites with a private marina.

Developer is Northumbria Investment Ltd.

The three apartments on Fifth Street would have between 40 and 60 suites each.

The fifth project calls for a 42-suite complex in the vicinity of the present site of St. Andrew's Hall on Second Street.

HOLDS OPTION

The applicant is the Montreal Trust Co. which has an option on the property.

Mayor A. W. Freeman said if construction continues at the present rate it may give rise to a serious water and sewage problem.

"As things stand at present we can look after the needs of these apartments but sooner or later we are bound to run into a water problem," he said.

Sidney relies on wells, plus the Central Saanich waterworks system, for its water supply.

The mayor also said there was a limit to what the town's sewage system could take.

"This is not an immediate problem," he said, but it could become one with time."

You Can Make Your Own Odds . . . Politically

Ticket sales for The Odd Couple took an odd twist today.

As a promotion gimmick, the Bastion Theatre group which is presenting the play, offered campaign pictures of Robert Stanfield or Pierre Elliott Trudeau—"another odd couple"—to anyone buying a ticket.

This morning the NDP complained of political discrimination because no pictures of Tommy Douglas were being offered.

A players' spokesman said this would distort the effect of the gimmick, but that "you can make any odd couple you want."

It is expected that anyone asking for a picture of Mr. Douglas will be accommodated.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you tell me if the TV program Pig and Whistle actually originates from a pub in Toronto, and are there any statistics on the Scottish singer Billy Meek? C.B.

A. The Canadian Television Network informs us that the show is taped in studios of CFTO-Toronto, with persons who have requested tickets to the show as guests. Billy Meek, one of the feature singers on the show, was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and began his professional career with his parents at the age of 14. He toured the British Isles and was an army entertainer during the Second World War.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

A New You

by Emily Wilkens

If you're a lucky teenager who's about to graduate, you're also in line for a galaxy of big events — Class Night, The Class Dance, Parent's Night, Commencement, plus a party or two or three.

Granted, it's exciting to be on stage and under the spotlights but can you stand up to all this with well-groomed grace? It's a breeze if you post this list in a handy place to help you prepare for — and get through — your nerve-wracking activities with the greatest of ease.

ON SKIN CARE

Pay special attention to your skin well BEFORE the big events. Tension has its way of breaking out on your face . . . watch your diet carefully (no cola drinks, chocolate, nuts, or seafood) . . . be especially thorough about cleansing . . . it helps to be calm and collected — consider all the doings thrilling, not chilling

Don't panic if a blemish seems to crop up just before zero hour. Nip this blossom in the bud by dissolving a heaping tablespoon of boric acid crystals in two quarts of water. Soak a washcloth in this solution and hold it against your face for five to 10 minutes Keep rewetting the cloth several times to hasten absorption — that blemish may not rear its ugly head at all.

If, however, the 'worst' has already happened, twice daily apply just a drop of spirits of camphor to the blemish with a cotton-tipped swab to dry it up.

The class formal may require your to bare your shoulders — and back blemishes could be a real blight on your life at this special time. Start pronto to create a smooth scene by keeping shoulders scrupulously clean. Augment your regular bathing with twice-weekly use of a gritty type cleanser or medicated soap Always rinse and dry thoroughly and follow with an application of calomine lotion (with 5 per cent phenol added) or medicated lotion.

ON DAINTINESS

As the excitement mounts, excess perspiration may present an added problem. To be ultra-safe begin to use an antiperspirant well in advance of THE day. Have your druggist prepare a very effective solution of 25 per cent aluminum chloride mixed with 5 per cent urea. Use it three or four nights before, then every other day. When applying a depilatory or shaving, don't use ANY antiperspirant or deodorant product for at least 12 hours after hair removal.

Aside from daily bathing or showering, to be extra-fastidious during problem times take a "cat bath" several times daily —fill your sink with a handful of baking soda and sponge off worrisome areas.

ON HANDS AND FEET

Neglected hands and aching feet can spoil your mood when you're all dressed up! Massage your cuticles with cream or castor oil to make sure no raggedy edges are in sight. Trim your nails neatly. If you use polish, choose a pale, lady-like shade.

Since new shoes are undoubtedly on the agenda, a word to the wise: Never shop for them the first thing in the morning. Wait until mid-afternoon when your feet have expanded and you'll have a more realistic measure for a comfortable fit.

THE NEW YOU who follows these instructions to the letter will graduate with grooming honors.

JUST FOR YOU: If your hands tend to become cold and clammy under stress, rub a little antiperspirant on the palms — a deodorant pad is especially handy.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Mathilda Undertakes To Modernize Trifle

By PENNY SAVER

I must be much too young and not enough English. When I popped in to see Mathilda the other day I didn't recognize her latest project as a trifle. It was most impressive. Mathilda was departing from the time-tested recipe her mother had given her and was experimenting with modern jelly powders. Apart from the filling, however, she had stuck to the old trifle pattern pretty closely. Her own moist sponge cake lined the bottom of the dish and dainty sponge ladyfingers ringed the edges. "Did you make these yourself?" I asked Mathilda as I peered at these little cakes which were completely strange to me. "Heavens no," was her reply, "I wouldn't have the first idea of how to go about it."

Mathilda buys her ladyfingers at a shop that is new to me. They come in packages of 12 for 45 cents, each cut in half ready for use in a trifle or as a tea-time snack. These versatile cakes are delicious filled with jam or your own icing. They are wrapped fresh in cellophane, but take a tip from Penny and don't buy more than you can use. The cake is so delicate that it dries quickly once the package is opened. I bought some for tea and didn't use them all. By the next morning they had lost their moistness and I was forced to use them in a jelly dish.

It's the First Cousin to a Trifle

The tea cakes in this shop defy description. If you, like me, have never made a trifle, why not try its cousin, Charlotte Russe. This lady with the fancy name is a single serving trifle in a plasticized paper tub. Ladyfingers line the sides and cake the bottom. The creamy filling defies description. Whipping cream and a cherry top this 17-cent treat.

Strawberry tarts, made with a creamy strawberry filling, real strawberries and a glaze made with strawberries are 14 cents a piece. Fresh strawberry turnovers with whipping cream, as well as berries and glaze, are 17 cents a piece.

Assorted fancy cookies and meringues—just right for tea—are 55 cents a dozen or 40 cents a dozen. Assorted French pastries, bite-sized treats for parties and receptions, are 69 cents a dozen.

Lovers of shortbread will be pleased to know that this shop sells real Scottish shortbread, made with salt-free butter. This is the authentic recipe, made with no salt whatsoever, which is good news for those on a restricted salt diet. A "cake" of shortbread is 49 cents. Regular shortbread fingers are 45 cents a dozen.

I cannot finish without mentioning their cakes. This shop will decorate cakes for any occasion and to individual tastes. Each cake is made fresh and one or two days' notice is needed for a regular cake. For wedding cakes they like to have about a month's notice so that the fruit cake can mellow to its finest flavor. Birthday cakes start at $2.

Please call me at 382-3131 if you would like to know where these baked goods are found.

Asks Special Tax on Bachelors To Assist Sole-Support Mothers

By ROSEMARY SPEIRS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Bachelors should pay a special tax with the proceeds going to widows and divorcees who have children, a Winnipeg carpenter's wife said Thursday night.

"Some bachelors might be quite willing to pay as a salve to their consciences," Mrs. Frank Martin, 62, told the royal commission on the status of women.

A Winnipeg organization of deserted, divorced and widowed women, the Minus Ones, said that sole-support mothers, who head seven per cent of Canada's families, have a right to a basic assured income.

"They are making an economic contribution to this society by raising their children alone," said Mrs. M. W. Menzies, an economist. The government should recognize the contribution made by women forced to fill two adult roles.

PAY TO FUND

Mrs. Martin suggested that men who remain single past age 21 might pay special taxes which would go towards a fund used for paying such mothers a guaranteed income.

"We should make bachelors see they have a responsibility to society," she said.

Mother of a grown daughter, Mrs. Martin said later in an interview she did not think single girls should have to pay the special tax because they are usually saving up for marriage.

"I'm not bitter against bachelors," she said. "But there is discrimination between them and married women who have to shoulder so much responsibility."

She felt bachelors "are usually filling their sex requirements somewhere" and might find paying into a fund for mothers without husbands was one way of easing their consciences.

Earlier in the hearings, Mrs. Vera Richards, a part-Indian and Metis woman, said that Indian families find it difficult to obtain any other than slum housing in the city.

As a result Indian women, who were often good housekeepers, were forced to live in "impossible housing" where cockroaches, faulty wiring and fire dangers were common problems.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. How can I remove makeup without using soap and water or an expensive cream? I have dry skin and do not use soap, except occasionally.

A. Try a baby oil. I think you will find this effective.

Lowman

Q. When one is trying to lose weight can she eat fresh fruit late in the evening, as a snack, without putting on weight, or will she have to count these calories, too?

A. It doesn't matter WHEN you eat ANYTHING. It is just a question of holding your daily (every 24 hours) intake to the allowable number of calories, in order to lose pounds.

Many women like to save a glass of milk or juice or a portion of fresh fruit which is included in one of the three meals to enjoy as a bedtime or an in-between-meal snack. You do not have to count the calories in this instance because the items have already been included in the three menus.

However, any additional fruit or snack of any kind must be counted, no matter when it is eaten. This seems to confuse many women.

Q. What about weight-lifting for breast development?

A. This is helpful. Exercises for developing the underlying chest muscles (which is the only way to increase the bust measurement) are more strenuous with a weight in each hand. Begin with light weights and gradually increase the weight.

For instance, stand tall, take a weight in each hand and raise your arms sideward, shoulder height, palms facing forward. Move the arms forward at the same height and cross them in front of you. Return arms to sideward, shoulder height position. Continue with straight elbows. I think most women can begin with 3-pound weights.

Q. I am only 19 but sometimes I feel very much older because I have wrinkles across my forehead and on my neck. My skin is fair and I have never had acne at all. This makes me very self-conscious. Do you have any suggestions?

A. Yes. The horizontal lines on your forehead must come from the mannerism of lifting your eyebrows. Make it a project to stop this. Check on yourself all day. Also, massage cream along the lines with a rotary motion.

The lines on your neck are no doubt due to careless posture. Be sure to straighten your spine through the neck region, keeping the chin parallel to the floor, neither ducking it in nor sticking it out.

"Is Your Chinline a Pain in the Neck?" is a free leaflet Josephine Lowman has written to help you improve your chinline with exercise. To obtain your leaflet, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

IN CHURCH HALL

Holding Tea On Saturday

Mrs. H. P. McKeever, area commissioner for Victoria Girl Guides and Brownies, will open the Dunsmuir District Local Association annual tea on Saturday.

Brownies and Guides will provide entertainment during the tea, which will be held from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. at St. Alban's parish hall, 1468 Ryan Street. There will also be a home baking stall.

Wrong Date

Officers of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Salvation Army's Matson Lodge have asked that an announcement be made that their tea and home baking sale will be held on Saturday, and not on June 6 as stated in this morning's Colonist.

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: "Sold Out" had her say about dirty movies and you let Jack Valenti have his say. Now I'd like to have my say.

The movie industry isn't in business to lose money. They make dirty movies because people go to see them. (They also made "Sound of Music," "Mary Poppins," "Dr. Doolittle," and Walt Disneys, which didn't exactly put them in the hole, either.)

However, this is a free country, and I never yet saw a theatre manager standing outside with a gun, forcing people to go inside.

Furthermore, what is "dirty"? If they can show cold-blooded murder, torture, crime and violence in every conceivable form, for my money, they can show lovemaking.

LIKES THE MOVIES.

DEAR ABBY: My husband never graduated from high school but he has a very good job at the mill. His name keeps coming up for promotion as he is very smart, but here is the problem:

He never learned how to read and write. Somehow he managed to get by anyway. He's no dummy. He can figure out mathematical problems in his head and knows history dates and events like a college graduate. He listens to the news on the radio and is up on everything, but when it comes to reading, he doesn't know dog from cat.

I have tried to teach him, but it's hopeless. His boss keeps after him to take tests for advancement, but my husband keeps ducking them because he doesn't want anyone to know he can't read or write. I filled out the job application for him. That's how he got his job in the first place. How can I help him? He feels so ashamed because of his ignorance.

HIS WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: Your husband's problem is not as unusual as you think. He could have a "mental block" due to an emotional problem, which is nothing to be ashamed of. Find out what is available for adults through your local board of public education. If your husband is too self-conscious to attend classes, perhaps private tutoring can be arranged.

DEAR ABBY: Is it all right to ask for gifts back that were given a girl for a wedding that never took place?

The teen-age daughter of a friend of mine was going to be married rather suddenly four months ago, so to help out, some friends and I got together some blankets, linens, towels and dishes, so she could start housekeeping.

The wedding was called off as suddenly as it was announced and the girl is back in school again like nothing happened.

Naturally, we all expected our gifts to be returned right away, but they weren't. One of the other women who contributed said she asked the girl's mother for her gift back and all she got was a blank stare. Should I ask for mine?

PUZZLED.

DEAR PUZZLED: You may ask, but don't be surprised if you, too, are ignored. People who must be dunned aren't above ignoring their obligations indefinitely.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Housewife Transforms Them Into Modernistic Jewelry

COLLECTS MOOSE DROPPINGS

Win Robertson of Prince George prepares moose droppings prior to dipping them in molten glass fibre.

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — "Moose berries"—a delicate name for moose droppings—make great jewelry under the watchful eye of Win Robertson.

The Prince George housewife says the jewelry can be a vivid reminder of a visit to this north-central British Columbia city.

Mrs. Robertson collects the "berries" in the woods—the supply around here is almost inexhaustible — impales them on toothpicks and dips them in molten glass fibre.

The cooled berries then are fixed to cufflinks or tiepins.

The finished product gives off a slight odor—of glass fibre.

Mrs. Robertson says a moose berry is like a good whisky—it improves with age. But too much aging can mean some pretty crumbly jewelry.

"Actually, last year's crop is about perfect—not too fresh, and not too old.

"And a large bull moose is not really much good. We look more for the medium-sized products."

Mrs. Robertson says she is dickering with several stores here to take on a line of her new jewelry.

BILL INVENTS ANOTHER DEVICE

Little Black Box Can Save Your Life or Your Home

By HUMPHRY DAVY

William (Bill) Koculyn has done it again.

Five years ago the Admirals Road inventor developed a radio-controlled anchor for log carriers which can be dropped by pushing a button on a distant tow boat.

And now he has come up with a household emergency device which can save lives, prevent property damage and be used as a time-saver on countless jobs.

For example, as a fire alarm, the device is connected to the telephone system.

If a fire breaks out, it sends out a code which is first decoded at a substation and then relayed to the fire department.

It is so selective that it can give firemen information on whether it is smoke, flame or combustion fire. It also gives the location.

KOCULYN
. . . life saving device

"It's amazing what it can do," said the 43-year-old Polish-born inventor. "It works around the clock and requires no maintenance whatsoever."

He is negotiating with B.C. Telephone for rental of telephone lines

Mr. Koculyn also has an application before North Saanich council requesting permission to establish a laboratory on Mills Road.

CHECKS BEAT

"I have plans for making other equipment," he said, "but I need a building for testing and experiments."

His new high frequency device can also be used for the care of bed-ridden people. It can call an ambulance.

The patient is connected to the instrument by a strap around the wrist, which keeps a check on the heart beat and respiration.

The moment the heart beat drops beyond a certain point, the message is sent out to the ambulance centre.

For offices and industries, the device can act as a burglar alarm and as a guard for files.

"It is so sensitive that if a burglar broke a window in a house, it would report the break-in immediately," he said. "The change of atmosphere in the house would set off the signals.

"If the telephone wires were cut, it would also record this as the cut by a sharp instrument would be different from a break by natural causes, such as a tree," he explained.

Mr. Koculyn said his invention could be put to many other uses—even starting up a car from inside a house.

NOT EXPENSIVE

He says the device could be rented at $3 or $4 a month.

"It wouldn't be expensive," he said. "There would be extra small charges for additional attachments if the device was to be put to a variety of uses."

Mr. Koculyn is a remarkable man. Largely self-taught, he has over the years provided industry with many ideas for stepping up production. He originated the radio-controlled self-propelled aerial carriage for logs.

His last big invention was the radio-controlled anchor for barges which has been accepted by logging companies.

Mr. Koculyn foresees the day when all cargo ships will travel underwater controlled by radio.

"It won't need a crew and will be navigated by electronic devices which will permit it to stay clear of any natural obstacles," he said. "We won't see this—but it's coming. There will soon be no need to send men out to sea."

Forest Researchers To Get New Building

A Victoria firm, W. Campbell Ltd., has been awarded a $147,630 contract for a new building at the Forest Research Station near Victoria.

The work, scheduled to begin Monday, is expected to employ 12 men currently with the firm.

The highest tender on the project was submitted by Burns and Dutton at $163,000.

The 40x149-foot, 26-room building will take five months to complete. It will include three laboratories for starting plant growth as well as temporary office space until four new greenhouses are built.

Canada Faces Big Challenge, Bonner Says

PENTICTON (CP) —Robert Bonner, former British Columbia attorney-general, made his last public appearance as a government representative Thursday night and told Royal Canadian Legion members Canada is a "model society" dedicated to solving problems under rule of law.

"We are embarking on perhaps the most exciting period of our short history," said Mr. Bonner, who resigned his cabinet post this week to take a senior executive position with a forest products company.

He said a 25-per-cent increase in population is predicted for Canada in the next 12 years and Canadians have the opportunity and challenge to meet the problems that older societies and nations have encountered.

He was speaking to more than 1,700 veterans and guests who attended the closing banquet of the four-day 22nd biennial Legion convention.

A Saskatchewan lawyer, Bob Kohaly, 47, was elected Thursday to head the 300,000 member Legion for the next two years.

The Estevan, Sask. lawyer and former first vice-president, replaces outgoing President Ron MacBeath 57, of Moncton, N.B.

Veterans also re-affirmed loyalty to the Queen and to the Canadian anthem "O Canada"—although some delegates weren't sure what Canada's national anthem was.

The convention unanimously approved a resolution forwarded from the 1967 Manitoba executive convention expressing "100 per cent" support of the monarchy.

Court Quashes Morals Verdict

VANCOUVER (CP) — Conviction of a senior Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation executive on a charge of attempted gross indecency was quashed Monday and a new trial ordered by the British Columbia Appeal Court.

Jean Lupien, 44, of Ottawa, was convicted June 15 of attempted gross indecency with another male in a hotel room Feb. 3 of last year. During the trial, Lupien's lawyers contended he was drunk, tired and believed the other man involved who was dressed as a woman, was in fact a woman.

Judges E. B. Bull and Angelo Branca of the Appeal Court maintained the trial judge erred in not admitting psychiatric evidence that would have indicated Lupien's "normal personality and, defensive mechanisms in his makeup which would cause him to reject homosexual commerce."

Canada's forests had a major influence on early Canadian art as may be seen in the paintings of such as Tom Thomson, Emily Carr and the "School of Seven."

COMMUNIST party officials in Czechoslovakia announced Thursday that former president Antonin Novotny has been expelled from the central committee of the party. His party membership has also been suspended. Six other old guard members were ousted in a purge by the new liberal regime.

LBJ Accepts 'Reluctantly' $6 Billion Spending Cut

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson has reluctantly agreed to accept a $6,000,000,000 cut in government spending in order to get the tax increase he thinks vital to the U.S. economy.

His decision to bow to Congress' budget-cutting after nearly two years of battling for a 10-per-cent income tax surcharge was disclosed at a Memorial Day news conference at the LBJ Ranch.

The president said the tax increase was urgently needed to stave off economic chaos. But he previously contended any budget slash exceeding $4,000,000,000 would be against the national interest.

Now, the chief proponent of the $6,000,000,000 spending cut, Chairman Wilburg D. Mills (Dem. Ark.), of the House of Representatives ways and means committee, predicts the president's move assures quick passage for the tax bill when it comes up for House vote June 12.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford seemed to agree.

The Senate already has passed a bill packaging the president's tax bill with a $6,000,000,000 spending cut.

The presidential news conference also produced sobering reports about more heavy fighting ahead in Vietnam, along with continued propaganda, infiltration and terror by the North Vietnamese and no substantive progress so far as the Paris peace talks.

'Luxury Cruise' Vessel Proves to Be Happy Ship

By BERYL PROUDMAN

"Luxury Cruise," presented by the St. Luke's Players Thursday night, was competently produced and thoroughly entertaining.

The stock characters were discovered in typical situations but the dialogue was above average and sometimes remarkably funny.

The fact the play was written around three locations with no reference to time context added unnecessary confusion to the play. It was disturbing to mourn Drew Watson in one scene and then, with a change of location return to a prior occasion when he was alive.

This fault in construction played havoc with the ship's schedule and character development.

Sheila Reardon as an antiquated spinster was delightfully vital in her jovial role and well-contrasted by her sister Cecilia played by Linda Rodger.

Though Cissy's metamorphosis to momentary modernity was rather startling, her characterization was convincing and only lacked variety in the pitch of her voice to make it completely successful.

KERSHAW ASSET

Dennis Kershaw as an attractive philosophical lawyer was a real asset to the company. His lively performance influenced Helen Brens, who played his wife, Fran Watson, so that she played better with him than with any of the other characters.

Helen caught beautifully the essential sincere friendliness of the character she portrayed, but in the more superficial conversations a tendency to unnatural word emphasis was noticeable.

Betty Jeanpierre played the anxious, aspiring Corinne Foote with verve and was well-matched by her husband, Don Layman, aptly nicknamed "Ham."

The part of Lillian Gregory, a difficult one to bring off because it develops during the play, was acted with considerable success by Clodagh Dowding. Her nervousness was a little disjointed and some lines were insecure but her characterization was credible.

Sets were adequate, lighting was generally good except that upstage lights shadowed the faces of seated performers, and costumes were very good.

"Luxury Cruise," to be repeated tonight and Saturday at 8:15 p.m., is an amusing comedy which should prove entertaining to people of all ages.

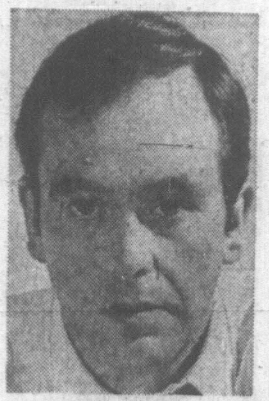
Dayliner, Freight Crash Injures 18

LUMSDEN, Sask. (CP) — Eighteen persons were injured early today when a Canadian National Railways dayliner and a slow-moving freight met head-on near here, 15 miles northwest of Regina.

Police said none of the 18 were seriously injured but some passengers suffered chest injuries and broken bones, and were taken to hospital in Regina. The dayliner was carrying 23 passengers and was bound for Regina.



PASSION for neatness is the destructive force in his relationship with other people for Felix the fusspot, played by Harry Hill in Robert Price's presentation of the hilarious comedy, The Odd Couple, which returned to the McPherson Playhouse for three nights, Thursday. First produced there last January, direction has been taken over by Helen Smith, but the cast is virtually unchanged with Mr. Price in the role of Oscar the slob and Dan Christian, Bill McColl and Joe Moore as his poker-playing friends. Repeated tonight and Saturday, the curtain goes up at 8:30.

Field Trip

The younger section of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Douglas and Hillside for a field trip to the Thetis Lake "panhandle" off Highland Road.

Conducted "Nature Walks" will be held on Sunday from the Nature House at Francis Park.

Royal Roads Work Load to Ease

"If class attendance were voluntary, would you spend your days polishing your boots instead of your minds?" cadets at Royal Roads Military College were asked Wednesday.

Dr. E. S. Graham, director of studies, put the question in an address to cadets and guests at the presentation of academic and sports awards.

He discussed current university unrest and sweeping changes in curriculum and teaching methods.

"Can new ideas penetrate that most conservative of institutions, the military university?"

Significant changes are being planned, probably to be introduced first at Royal Roads, he said.

Revisions involve relaxation of the heavy work-load carried by students at military colleges along with their military training.

"But we are conservative, too, and what we must conserve is the quality of the military college degree. Let me assure you that this is uppermost in our minds — you will not be short-changed. Your degree will be as good as, or better than, any in Canada.

"But we are beginning to admit that the degree we grant does not need to be twice as good as any other in Canada."

There should be, however, more sweeping changes, Dr. Graham said, to provide for "the really exciting, revolutionary ideas which are engulfing higher education in North America.

"We pride ourselves on the maturity of our cadets, but can we turn them loose, making attendance at all classes voluntary, or eliminating classes entirely?

"This is not a one-sided proposition. Have you cadets the courage to give up the comfort of the traditional ways — the spoon feeding? A polished mind is much more important than a polished boot.

"If you want to be an officer, you must first become an educated man.

"I hope we can work together to produce by evolution rather than revolution, a better military college system."

College registrar Michael Meiklejohn announced winners of academic prizes.

Second-year winners are A. M. Thickson, economics, mathematics and graphics; S. T. Ferguson, physics, chemistry and mechanics of materials; P. Vasdi, English; J. H. Laidler, French; N. B. Jeffries, history; R. D. Webster, surveying, and C. R. Skinner, psychology and military leadership.

First-year prizes went to D. S. Scott, English and physics; G. R. Peck, French; R. G. Allen, history; N. S. Cooper, mathematics; D. C. Ganley, chemistr A. H. Crosby, graphics, and R. H. Williams, psychology and military leadership.

WHAT ARE YOUR VALUES?
Do you measure it by how much you will pay or is it by the special bargain marked on the price tag? Do you measure it by how much you will use it, enjoy it and for how long? You only get what you pay for and time will tell the fair value of your merchandise. Don't fool yourself or let others fool you with price tag stoppers. Look for quality, which means lasting beauty.

Guild to Sell Old Theatre As Renovation Too Costly

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Langham Court Theatre, Victoria Theatre Guild home, will be sold soon.

The decision was made Thursday night at a general meeting. Of the 70 votes recorded, only two were negative.

It was not a decision thrust upon the Guild by bad times. The Guild's position, artistically and financially, has seldom been better, officials said.

But a ruling by Fire Chief Eric Simmons has made it economically impractical to continue.

The building would have to be re-wired and other improvements completed before the fall season.

Cost would be about $3,200.

But there are other maintenance crises looming and the organization could expect, over the next five years to spend $15,000 on the 70-year-old building off Rockland Ave.

The board of directors was given authority to proceed with the sale of the property and start seeking a new home.

Meanwhile, Jerry Gosley's Smile Show will go on as scheduled at Langham Court during July and early August.

President Allan Purdy outlined several alternatives to sale of the property, including assuming a mortgage of several thousand dollars to carry out all necessary work.

LONG LEASE

The plan ratified by the membership is to obtain a building on a long lease which could be converted to a small theatre using part of the proceeds of the sale of Langham Court.

A portion of the proceeds would be placed in a trust fund to provide an interest income as a basis for the continued operation of a fine theatre program.

Mr. Purdy said after a record season of high quality productions, the Guild is debt-free and has money in the bank.

CITY GRANT

Of nine productions undertaken since January 1967, four were maximum box office successes, three made moderate profit, one broke even and only one lost a small amount.

The Guild has just received for the first time a civic grant of $750.

It also expects a further $750 grant from another source.

FOUND DEAD in his Rome apartment Thursday was John Gilmour, 52, a Canadian citizen. Police said Gilmour, an English teacher in a home institute, was an apparent homicide victim. (CP Wirephoto)

Winners of the weekly game of the Allmasters Duplicate Bridge Club are: Marianne Powell and Derek Ward; Liliane LeButt and Molly Collins; Anne Dye and Marjorie Fortye; Earle Dye and Will Browne-Cave; Helen Van Der Vliet and Robina Peyton-Brown; Ethel Cleworth and Al Kallberg.

ANTIQUE AIRCRAFT AUCTIONED

$40,000 Paid for Sopwith

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — A Sopwith Camel, a First World War fighter, drew the top bid — $40,000 — at a sale of 30 antique planes. Almost $300,000 was realized.

Ten of the bids were in five figures, but by far the highest was that of J. W. Middendorf II, a private collector, of New York. His telephoned-in-advance offer for the humpbacked biplane, believed the last in repairable condition, beat out all competitors.

Among the disappointed rivals for the Sopwith was Gustav Hulkower of New York.

Hulkower stopped just short of $40,000, but went on to pay a total of $96,000 for six other First World War craft. He said they were for a museum soon to be opened by his firm Aeroflex Corp., in Andover, N.J.

Three planes brought $20,000: A Maurice Farman MF-11 two place pusher biplane, a Tokker DVII biplane, and a Curtis Gulfhawk biplane once owned by the late stunt flyer Al Williams.

The planes were part of a collection assembled by two movie stunt pilots, Frank Tallman and the late Paul Mantz. They were sold last year to two Nebraska firms.

Logger Dies

TERRACE (CP)—Logger Kurt Wiedeck, 47, a father of two who was severely injured when trapped under a tractor, died in hospital here Thursday as he waited for a mercy flight to Vancouver. The plane was grounded by bad weather at Prince Rupert.

PARK CONCERT BY STUDENTS

Lansdowne junior secondary school's band will present a concert Sunday at Beacon Hill Park at 2:30 p.m.

A wide variety of music ranging from classical to modern will be played under the direction of John Boel.

9 IN MEMORIAM

MacMILLAN—In loving memory of Ken, who passed away on May 31, 1967.

The rolling stream of life rolls on,
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile
Of the one who once sat there.

—Always remembered and sadly missed by sons, daughter, grandchildren.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

If you like to overbid, go right ahead provided you restrict your overbidding to good hands and have learned to play your dummies resourcefully.

Opening lead—♠ Q

Midge (Mrs. Sewall) Cutler of Dallas followed these precepts with today's hand. Her seven clubs was quite an overbid but she had become unduly encouraged when her partner had first bid diamonds and then followed with spades.

Midge did have a good hand but when she looked over dummy she didn't like what she saw. She had no chance to make seven unless the diamond finesse worked. On the other hand, if it did work she apparently was one trick short unless the king of diamonds would drop doubleton or unless a squeeze could develop.

There was no reason to cross the squeeze bridge until she got to it. In the meanwhile Midge started by drawing trumps with three leads and discarding one heart from dummy on the third trump.

She had decided that if there were a squeeze it would be in spades and diamonds. Next she took the diamond finesse. It worked and business was looking up.

She cashed dummy's remaining high spade and ruffed a spade in her own hand. When East dropped the nine things began to look as if West had started with five spades. If that were so the squeeze was there. Midge led a heart to dummy's king and a second heart back to her ace. Then she played out her last two trumps.

West was able to jettison a heart on the first of these trumps. On the second he had to let a diamond go in order to keep his high spade. A diamond to the ace dropped West's king and the jack of diamonds was the 13th trick.

1968 DATSUN SEDAN

The "more-for-your money car." If somebody ever tells you he drives an economy import with 96 h.p. engine that goes 100 m.p.h. has a safer, impact absorbing body, the safest suspension money can buy, a wrap-around air-flow system that keeps windows clear, that it looks great, handles like a dream and that he bought it from us for only $2,025, believe him. The new DATSUN sedan, the "more for your money car" from $1,895 at

YOU WILL LOVE ME!

I am a pretty nice guy and only 5 years old. Folks stop and admire my expensive shrubs and trees in my front yard. If they saw my fish pond and greenhouse and nice backyard they wouldn't want to leave. My owners sit in the enclosed porch patio and bird watch in the cool of the day. How relaxing — Oh yes! — I am cleaner than the day I was born. My large living room has an excellent dining room off. Loads of mahogany cupboards in my kitchen keeps my misses happy. 3 good size bedrooms are slumber specials. 4-pce. bath is convenient for everyone. My half basement has laundry room, rumpus room or fourth bedroom space and a drive-in garage. I am not too far from town and have top-notch neighbours. Come out and see me soon! Call my agent

The Deputy Minister of Recreation and Conservation, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C., will receive applications up to 3:00 p.m. on the 13th day of June, 1968, for the purpose of selecting a qualified person or persons to operate, under a Park Use Permit, a concession known as the Fort Steele Park Railway, in Fort Steele, approximately 10 miles east of Cranbrook.

Prospectus, sample Park Use Permit and application form may be obtained from the Provincial Parks Branch, Department of Recreation and Conservation, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C.; from the Government Agent, Cranbrook, B.C.; or from the Park Supervisor, Fort Steele, B.C.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS will be received by the undersigned for the construction of the G. R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children, Haro Road, Victoria, B.C.

Drawings, specifications, forms of tender and detailed instructions to bidders are available to General Contractors at the office of Wagg & Hambleton, Architects, 611 Courtney Street, Victoria, B.C., on or after 5th June, 1968.

A returnable deposit of Fifty Dollars ($50.00) is required for each set of drawings and specifications. Tenders must be accompanied by a bid bond in the form prescribed, which binds the tenderer and the surety in the amount of Thirty Thousand Dollars ($30,000) at the time of tendering. A performance bond and a labour and material payment bond, each in the amount of 50 per cent of the contract price in the form prescribed, must be provided by the successful tenderer prior to the award of the contract. Certified cheques will not be accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Tenders must be made out on the forms supplied by the Architect, addressed to the undersigned and delivered to the office of the Archcitect not later than 4:00 p.m. FRIDAY, July 5, 1968, where they will be opened in public.

WAGG & HAMBLETON,
Architects,
611 Courtney Street, Victoria, B.C.

SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 65 (COWICHAN)

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed tenders marked "Tender for Mt. Prevost Jr. Sec. School" are invited by the Board of School Trustees for the construction of 8 classrooms, 1 science laboratory, cafeteria, gymnasium addition and miscellaneous renovations and additions to the above named school at Duncan, B.C.

Working drawings, specifications, instructions to bidders, and form of tender may be obtained by general contractors only, from the School Board Maintenance Office, 2670 James Street, Duncan, B.C., on payment of a deposit of fifty dollars ($50.00) for each set of working drawings and specifications, which will be returned on receipt of said documents in good condition. Applications for refunds will only be received for thirty (30) days after award of contract.

Vancouver and Lower Mainland bid depository procedures and rules for subtrades will be used. To close Victoria, at the Amalgamated Construction Association, 543 Bastion Street, at 4.00 p.m. Tuesday, June 18, 1968. Plans are on view at Amalgamated Construction Association at Victoria and Vancouver, Nanaimo Builders' Exchange, and at the Industrial Construction Centre, Vancouver.

A certified cheque or a bid bond in the amount of $30,000.000 must accompany all tenders. A performance bond to bind the tenderer in the amount of 50 per cent of the contract price must be provided within fourteen days of a contract being accepted. This bond shall be aproved by and acceptable to the owner and made out to School District No. 65 (Cowichan) as owner.

If the tenderer defaults in executing the contract within six (6) days following notification in writing of the award of the contract then said certified cheque or bid bond will become the property of the Board of School Trustees, School District No. 65 (Cowichan).

Tenders must be in the hands of the undersigned by 2:00 p.m., Friday, June 21, 1968, at which time the tenders will be opened in public. The lowest or any tender will not necesarily be accepted, and the Board of School Trustees reserves the right to reject any or all tenders without explanation. No tender will be considered having any qualifying clauses whatsoever.

Even-Paced Disarming Rejected

PARIS (Reuters) — North Vietnam rejected today President Johnson's latest call for reciprocity in scaling down the fighting in Vietnam.

Xuan Thuy, chief North Vietnamese delegate, in a speech at the sixth full-scale session of the talks today, reiterated a demand he had made systematically since the meetings began 18 days ago for immediate and unconditional cessation of U.S. bombing of the North.

His speech was released to reporters at the end of the session, which lasted for about 3½ hours.

The two sides are scheduled to meet again next Wednesday.

Thuy talked for about two-thirds of the time, said U.S. chief negotiator W. Averell Harriman. Thuy told the meeting that "the American side obstinately persists in using outworn arguments about so-called 'reciprocity'—arguments which we have already rejected."

CONTINUE WAR

"By calling for reciprocal restraint, the U.S. does not altogether give up violence," he said. "In other words, they will continue to have recourse to war and violence in carrying out their aggression against Vietnam," Thuy said.

They told Harriman: "Once again we denounce before public opinion the obstinacy and perfidy of the American side in the Paris talks. We demand that the U.S. immediately and unconditionally cease the bombings and all other acts of war on the whole territory of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam in order to permit the talks to deal with other questions interesting the two parties."

Harriman told reporters when he arrived back at the U.S. embassy the U.S. had used the remaining third of the time for its formal statements.

"I can't say we have kept up our end in volume of words, but I think we have in terms of purport."

Asked if he was still optimistic about the talks, Harriman said he was "always an optimist," but this did not mean that "I have any particular comment on today or on the immediate future."

Harriman said he could not "help but feel world opinion will be brought to bear in such a way as to bring about a de-escalation in the war and eventually a sound peace for Southeast Asia."

Viet Cong Pressing Fight

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong troops pressed hard on two sides of Saigon today in a new outburst of fighting in the South Vietnamese capital, as other guerrilla forces trained big guns on Southern allied bases in the central highlands.

In a news conference, the second-highest Viet Cong ever to defect, Col. Phan Mau, 38, said the Communist strategy was to keep up attacks on South Vietnamese cities to improve the bargaining position in the Paris peace talks.

South Vietnamese bombers plasted Viet Cong troops trying to push into the city from the northeast. Aerial observers estimated the strikes killed as many as 200 guerrillas, but the figure was not confirmed by body counts.

More serious than the guerrilla surge from the northeast, however, was the infiltration of small squads of Viet Cong into Cholon, the Chinese quarter in Saigon's western sector.

After five days of skirmishing near the U.S. satellite communications station in Phu Lam, government troops appeared to have the situation in hand. But the infiltrators moved in, and several hundred frightened refugees treamed from their homes through a hail of crossfire. Some were wounded.

Ostler Ponders Quashing Bid On LSD Charge

Defence counsel Dermod Owen-Flood today moved to have a charge of possession of LSD "for sale" quashed.

Magistrate William Ostler was to decide later today on whether the charge against Harold Wood, 25, of Seattle, and Ivors Zarins, 29, of California, should be quashed.

Mr. Flood said the charge should be quashed because it is "not known to law."

He said the Food and Drug Act prohibits the sale of LSD, but not possession of the drug for sale.

"The definition of selling may include possession," he said, "but the definition of possession does not include to sell."

Magistrate Ostler said at first glance it appeared the point was valid, but that he wished time to consider it.

Wood and Zarins were arrested in Esquimalt May 22 after police seized what they said was an estimated $6,000 worth of LSD.

FIRST WINNER of $100,000 in Montreal's "voluntary tax" scheme, Mrs. Venetia Barrette, of a Montreal suburb, a widowed mother of 10, is flanked Thursday night by Mayor Jean Drapeau, right, and her son Denis. Some of her share of silver ingots, the form in which the prizes are awarded, is shown piled in front.

'CAN'T BELIEVE IT'

Lottery Winner Gets Silver Bars

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. Venitia Barrette, a bilingual widow and mother of 10 from suburban Longueuil, today has 3,150 pounds of shiny silver ingots on her hands as first winner of the $100,000 grand prize in Montreal's "voluntary tax" scheme.

"I still can't believe it," Mrs. Barrette said as a beaming Mayor Jean Drapeau led her towards her prize—two cartloads full of silver bars.

She qualified for the $100,000 grand prize under Montreal's scheme to raise $28,000,000 for civic coffers by being the last of 151 persons to have her name picked in a draw in an east-end arena Thursday night.

Included in the 151 names, which were chosen in a preliminary draw Monday night, were entries from all over Canada.

Mrs. Barrette had to answer four ou tof seven questions about Montreal before the 1½ tons of ingots were officially hers. The questions, taken from the 20 listed on the reverse side of the "tax receipts" mailed to each contributor of $2, were put to her by a panel of six judges.

She breezed through the first three questions, stumbled on the fourth and then triumphantly said Montreal is Canada's greatest metropolis in answer to the fifth.

HAD LONG WAIT

Mrs. Barrette said her worst moments came during the 4½-hour wait in an ante-room off the arena while the names were being drawn and the contestants called out one by one to answer "skill-testing" questions to win their silver bars.

Of the 142 other contestants who were on hand to undergo the questioning, none failed. Other persons drawn Monday and who were absent Thursday night will be tested at a later date.

Under contest rules, the first 100 names drawn were to receive prizes of $100 each; 20 names would receive $500 each; 30 prizes of $1,000 each and one the grand prize.

Runners-up, winners of $1,000 each, included four out-of province entries—Ena Hinds, Toronto: M. Ross, Don Mills, Ont.; N. M. Kruk, Don Mills; and E. A. Atkinson, North Surrey, B.C.

Wally Dezura of Vancouver and Peter Chenkie of Selkirk, Man., also had their names drawn for a chance at the $1,000 prize, but were no able to be present in Montreal to answer the questions.

There were five out-of-province winners of $500 each, all from Ontario. They were Edna Hall, Burlington; John and Tom Cecchetto, Sudbury; L. Hanford Lloyd, Espanola; Delma A. Hart, Washagami; and Alfred Litfius, Kitchener.

'Had Three Partners', Probe Told

EDMONTON (CP) — E. W. Hinman was verbally committed to a 10-per-cent share in a hotel, a judicial inquiry was told Thursday.

Edmonton businessman Jake Superstein told the Kirby commission a further 10-per-cent interest was to go to Arthur Arnold, then deputy public works minister, and 5 per cent to E. W. Tanner, a business associate.

The Edmonton Airport Hotel, planning for which started in 1960, was in almost constant financial difficulty and although it was begun as a personal venture of Mr. Superstein, he said a partnership came about after he was "reasonably sure" of financing from Credit-Foncier Franco Canadien Ltd.

The commission is investigating allegations that Mr. Hinman, when provincial treasurer, used or attempted to use his public office for personal gain.

The allegations were made in the provincial legislature last year by Garth Turcott, then New Democratic Party member for Pincher Creek-Crows Nest.

Mr. Turcott also alleged that Welfare Minister A. J. Hooke used or tried to use his office for personal gain. The portion of the inquiry dealing with Mr. Hooke has been completed and decision reserved by Mr. Justice W. C. J. Kirby.

Mr. Superstein said the verbal agreement was concluded during a drive to the hotel site.

"As far as I am concerned, I had three partners from that moment on."

Talks Collapse

KAMPALA, Uganda (Reuters) — Nigerian peace talks here collapsed today when the secessionist Biafrans walked out of the conference, saying they had no more time to waste. A federal Nigerian delegation official said his side was willing to keep talking.

Young Canadians' Director Giving Up?

OTTAWA (CP) — A dispute between field volunteers and headquarters staff in the Company of Young Canadians, already hit by a slashed budget, appears to be setting the stage for the resignation of Director Alan Clarke.

Mr. Clarke, 39, took the post in Lester Pearson's pet agency 17 months ago when William McWhinney resigned as executive director.

Informed sources said Thursday night Mr. Clarke probably will resign within days. He himself declined comment, saying only a formal statement will be issued soon.

Insiders said an internal dispute within the two-year-old company is driving Mr. Clarke out.

It came to a head Tuesday with the resignation of Martin Beliveau, associate director for Quebec, who said he was asked to leave by Mr. Clarke.

A company official in Montreal said in a telephone interview at least 40 of the 150 volunteers in Montreal oppose the Beliveau dismissal.

The company has run into caustic criticism almost from its outset. Its slow evolution, its training methods and its field work have been criticized.

Volunteers in Faust, Alta., and in Toronto raised hackles with their social programs among youth. In Eastern Ontario, a rural program collapsed, allegedly because of lack of direction.

The company's altruistic veneer was tarnished by reports that volunteers were being paid and given automobiles. The volunteers ranged from Louisburg, N.S., to Alert Bay, B.C.

The company's budget was cut this year to $1,900,000 from $2,400,000 in 1967.

Later projects in Toronto and Winnipeg were scrapped because of personality conflicts and lack of funds.

GREETERS TRY SAMPLE

Victoria Chamber of Commerce will hold a "get acquainted with Victoria" bus tour for business people in the tourist industry June 12.

The free tour is designed to acquaint those engaged in meeting the public and tourists with the various attractions offered by the city, a chamber official said.

Tour departure point is the Causeway and transportation is being donated by local buslines.

Youth Pleads Guilty To House-Breaking

A youth charged Tuesday with two house break-ins pleaded guilty Thursday to two similar charges.

Kenneth Clements, 18, of 740 Kings, pleaded guilty to all charges.

Court was told he broke into the home of Alan Stewart, 3933 St. Peter's, May 24, ransacked the house, and took $4.60.

Police said he broke into the home of Ethel King, 3425 Cadboro Bay Road, May 27. The home was ransacked but nothing taken.

He was accompanied by a juvenile on both occasions.

Shaughnessy Merger Seen

Exploratory talks on integration of Vancouver's Shaughnessy (veterans') Hospital facilities with the Fraser Burrard Hospital district opened Thursday.

Health Minister Loffmark said representatives of the federal government, the hospital and the hospital district met with him for "amicable" talks which will be resumed later. No statement was issued on progress made.

Grit Maverick Cowan Lonely but Undeterred

By CHARLES SVOBODA

TORONTO (CP) — Ralph Cowan once said he didn't mind being called a maverick.

"You can be a maverick and still be a member of the herd."

But the herd has left the controversial former Liberal MP for York-Humber behind—he was thrown out of the Liberal caucus and rejected as a candidate—and he now stands alone before about 50,000 voters in Toronto High Park.

Still, no one is counting him out of the June 25 federal election race, least of all himself.

Mr. Cowan's York-Humber riding disappeared in redistribution. The south half makes up about 60 per cent of the new High Park riding, with the other 40 per cent consisting of most of the old High Park.

CLAIMS SUPPORT

Mr. Cowan, 66, first elected to Parliament in 1962, claims support in both the old York-Humber area and the High Park area where his wife grew up and where lives a large part of the congregation of Victoria Presbyterian Church, of which Mr. Cowan is an elder.

The fiery MP was ejected from the Liberal caucus last March 15 after he voted against the government's income surtax bill.

His final rejection came May 10 when the High Park Liberal Association nominated Walter C. Deakon association president.

Still Mr. Cowan says he is a Liberal candidate.

"I've been a Liberal all my life and I suppose I'll die one," he said following his unsuccessful bid for nomination.

"Whenever people ask me I tell them I'm a straight Liberal, and they say 'What other kind is there?' "

VOLUNTEERS WORKING

The loss of party support doesn't bother him. He has 200 volunteer campaign workers operating out of three riding offices and with the exception of Mr. Deakon, the other candidates feel the veteran MP is still a force.

Don Stevenson, New Democratic Party candidate, regarded by Mr. Cowan as his strongest rival, says that to underestimate Mr. Cowan would be "very foolish."

Mr. Stevenson, 40, a labor reporter for The Telegram, polled 12,792 votes to Mr. Cowan's 17,172 in the 1965 election in York-Humber. The Conservative had 11,325.

The NDP "must inevitably gain" from the split in Liberal ranks, says Mr. Stevenson, and Mr. Cowan will also draw a lot of Conservative votes with his advocacy of free enterprise.

MAKING FIRST TRY

Winfield C. McKay, Progressive Conservative candidate making his first try, also has an eye out for Mr. Cowan.

After 21 miles—he carries a pedometer—of house-to-house canvassing, the 37-year-old president of a customs brokerage says he has encountered numerous Cowan supporters. He describes Mr. Cowan as "a very real threat."

Mr. Deakon, 44, a lawyer and graduate engineer, is also a rookie campaigner although he has been riding association president for six years.

He once thought Mr. Cowan posed a serious threat, but surveys conducted recently by his organization indicated Mr. Cowan's strength is falling off.

SPEAKS LANGUAGES

Mr. Deakon makes use of the five languages he speaks, including French, in his door-to-dor canvassing among the Polish, Ukrainians, Maltese, Italians, Germans and Lithuanians who make up a "large minority" in the riding.

The official Liberal candidate also has the support of A. J. P. Cameron, former Liberal MP in High Park who at 72 has retired.

The old High Park gave Mr. Cameron 11,298 votes in the 1965 election, 6,635 to the Conservative and 4,682 to the New Democrats.

Saturday: Gander-Twillingate.

Deaf-Mute Child Lost

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—The hunt for missing deaf-mute Duke Wilson, 5, last seen by his parents Tuesday, began again at dawn today. More than 150 fishermen, cannery workers and RCMP failed to locate the boy Thursday despite the find of a piece of green wool believed to be from his sweater.

SHOT by an unknown assailant today was Camille Chamoun, 58, former president of Lebanon. His condition is not serious. He was shot at his party's headquarters in Beirut.

OK Given School Addition

Greater Victoria school board has received government permission to call for tenders on a 22-room addition to Reynolds secondary school.

The bids will be opened in four weeks but in order for the project to go ahead it will have to meet the government-imposed price ceiling of $22,500 per classroom or $495,000. The school board had appropriated $560,000 for the addition in a referendum approved a year ago.

The addition is to include classrooms, laboratories, vocational shops, commercial rooms and library expansion.

Welfare Cut Sees Revolt By Labor MPs

LONDON (Reuters) — Forty-nine Labor members staged a parliamentary revolt Thursday night against a government cut in welfare state health benefits.

The rebels forced to a vote the government's decision, on economy grounds, to impose a charge of about 30 cents on medical prescriptions now filled free.

They failed to get the decision revoked. The government won the issue 129-to-52. The Conservative opposition abstained.

Prime Minister Wilson's majority remained fairly intact by the show of defiance that followed similar revolts against economy measures attacked as a desertion of socialist principles.

Leader of the backbench rebels in the Labor party, Laurence Pavitt, said he found it "absolutely incredible that a Labor government should tax the sick."

"This order is totally and horribly wrong."

Health Minister Kenneth Robinson said the charge was a regrettable economic necessity.

He said 20,000,000 people—40 per cent of the population of England and Wales—would be exempt from the charge. Among the exemptions are people under 15 and over 65 and the chronically sick.

Home Opened

SMITHERS (CP) — Minister without portfolio Isobel Dawson opened a $124,000 senior citizens' home here Thursday. The home, which accommodates 12 pensioners, was a centennial project of the people of Smithers.

An important announcement for all residents of British Columbia

BE SURE

you are covered under the British Columbia-Canada Medicare Plan before July 1, 1968

Monday, July 1, 1968, will mark the beginning of a new era in medical coverage for all residents of British Columbia.

On that date, the British Columbia-Canada Medicare Plan will begin operating under a scheme by which, for the first time, the Federal Government will contribute a share of the costs of services performed for you by a physician or surgeon.

What you must do right away

If you are now a contributor to a non-profit medical insurance organization that is licensed to operate under the Plan, your name will be automatically registered as of July 1. But it is your responsibility to see that your name is or will be registered.

If you are not currently a member of such an organization, or are in doubt as to whether or not the medical services plan to which you contribute is a licensed one, you are obliged to make sure now.

It is to your advantage to have your name and the name of your dependents registered with a licensed medical plan without delay. An application may be made by you, your employer, or a person acting on your behalf. If you wish, you can apply immediately to join the British Columbia Medical Services Plan in Victoria.

If your medical care coverage is with an insurance company, it does not qualify. It will be necessary for you to apply to a licensed medical plan or have your employers apply for you.

A medical plan that is not licensed will not be in business in British Columbia after July 1st due to the Federal Government Medicare Act.

The new regulations do not interfere with any agreement or arrangement between an employer and his employees regarding the proportion or percentage of the gross premium shared, nor with any arrangement for the collection and remittance of premiums by payroll deduction.

Under the British Columbia-Canada Medicare Plan, the range of medical services and the schedule of monthly rates will be the same for all qualifying medical plans. However, provision is made for other benefits provided by any such plan to continue as a separate sector of that plan's business.

Schedule of rates

(a) Basic Premium Rate
for a subscriber with no dependents	$ 5.00 per month
for a subscriber with one dependent	10.00 per month
for a subscriber with two or more dependents	12.50 per month
(b) For a person who qualifies as an "eligible person" under the Medical Grant Act and who had no taxable income for the immediately previous taxation year for a subscriber with no dependents	$ .50 per month
for a subscriber with one dependent	1.00 per month
for a subscriber with two or more dependents	1.25 per month
(c) For a person who qualifies as an "eligible person" under the Medical Grant Act and whose taxable income for the immediately preceding taxation year did not exceed One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00)
for a subscriber with no dependents	$ 2.50 per month
for a subscriber with one dependent	5.00 per month
for a subscriber with two or more dependents	6.25 per month

NOTE: for the purpose of administration, the Plan year for which premiums under (b) and (c) listed above are paid shall be July 1 to June 30 and changes in status from year to year shall be effected in accordance with that twelve month period.

Do not delay. Make sure your name is registered in a non-profit licensed plan.

If it is not, apply now.

HOME GARDEN

Soak It to Plants Now

By HILDA BEASTALL

Gardeners should prepare now if they are leaving town for their vacation. This is the sensible approach because apart from protecting the investment in flowers and vegetables the garden will provide a real welcome home.

Hilda

Preparation in this particular area consists mainly of supplying the moisture needs of the permanent plants, for we cannot rely on summer showers.

This planning starts in May and will use less water if the moisture content of the soil is maintained from now until vacation time.

Assuming that the soil contains adequate humus for holding moisture around the roots, water either with soil-soakers or a sprinkler putting down "rain-drop" moisture which all soaks into the ground with little loss to evaporation.

Before applying the next watering, test the soil for dampness at shovel's depth between the shrubs or perennials. Be guided by conditions there as to watering again or to wait half a week.

In some retentive soils, thorough waterings lasting six hours or so are given once every three or four weeks.

With care such as this, shrubs and other permanent plantings will go through any normal vacation period with little extra attention.

Bedding annuals and vegetables are not so deeply rooted; these normally may need a good watering every 10 days, again depending on the humus added to the soil before sowing or planting.

Mulches of half-rotted compost applied after watering and then dampened down will aid enormously in preventing loss of moisture. They must be loosely laid so that air can get into the soil for continuance of root action.

YOUR HEALTH

Some Humans Real Good Barometers

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Forty years ago, when I was at the Mayo Clinic, Professor Leonard Rowntree made a big effort, trying to find out what element of weather change causes the joints of certain arthritic persons to cry out in pain when a storm is approaching, perhaps 100 miles away. Unfortunately, not much came from the study, and about all he learned was that it was not a change in the temperature or the barometric pressure or anything else which he could measure.

Alvarez

Later, some men built special small rooms in which they could keep the temperature, barometric pressure, moisture or dryness of the air and other details constant. Then they modified one of these items at a time to see which one would make an arthritic person's joints cry out, but still, as I remember, no definite answer was found.

I got to thinking of this today when a women wrote to say that her boy gets a sort of eczema when the weather changes in certain ways. I can believe this because for many years now, when perhaps in October the first night of frost come the skin below my knees itches badly.

My impression has been that this is due to the dryness of the air that comes when great cold freezes the moisture out of the air. Then if one reaches out to touch something a spark will jump across the small air gap. I can always get much relief from the itching just by rubbing into the skin a good hand lotion, or better, an ointment that contains a local anesthetic like novocaine, or a little carbolic acid.

I had an interesting experience one winter afternoon and evening when by train I went from sea level in Oakland, California, over the high mountains to Reno, Nevada. In Oakland, the temperature was 65 degrees, but at the top of the grade, around 8,000 feet, it was below freezing. Up there my shins itched terribly, in spite of the fact that the temperature in the car was kept around 75 degrees. When the train came down to Reno, the itching left.

When I was a boy in Hawaii, I knew of migrainous women who complained much when the normal rain-bearing "trade-winds" flowing down from the north stopped coming, and were replaced by the dry Kona wind that came up from the south. Many people felt uncomfortable when the Kona wind came. Similarly, Swiss scientists have told me that when in their country the "foehn" wind comes (a dry and warm wind in Alpine valleys) their migraine flares up.

Some "human barometers" have told me that their joints do not ache unless a storm brings rain. I am sure that if a few dozen human barometers would write, telling me of their experiences, I could write a much better column on the influence of weather on several types of human discomfort. Incidentally, ranchers have told me that their animals often seem to know when a storm is coming.

School Principal Made Supervisor

Alan Newberry, principal of Saseenos elementary school, has been named to fill the newly-created post of supervisor of intermediate instruction in the Sooke school district.

Dr. James Portelance, vice-chairman of the school board, said the appointment was made after consideration of a number of applications.

Mr. Newberry is also a Saanich alderman.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas

Andy sends a complete, 20 volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Jeanne Dwyer, age 12, of Rochester, New York, for her question:

Why does tickling make us laugh?

A gentle tickle in the ribs provokes the human body to respond with a wriggly giggle. Even a baby responds to a tender toe tickling with chuckles and chortles and cuddlable contortions. This mechanical type of laughter is not well understood, but it certainly seems related to the many other types of mirthful merriment that tend to spice up our lives.

The body's nervous system is an astoundingly complex organization. Compared with it, a man-made super-computer is a mere ticker toy, and it is easy to forgive our scientists for being unable to explain this biological super-system down to the last detail. They can explain what happens when someone gives you an unexpected gentle tickle in the ribs. But at present they cannot explain why the playful poke starts off a helpless seizure of giggles.

The nervous system is a complex network of nerve threads that flash information. The flashes are triggered by prodding stimuli, such as hot pokers and onion smells, indigestible dinners and ice cold showers. The swift reactions to most of these prods are sensible and dependable. But the flash response from a gentle tap on the dangling knee or tender tickle of the toe seem to serve no useful purpose. Nevertheless, the body keeps them in working operation along with its army of more sensible fast reactions to sudden stimuli.

A tickle in the ribs starts a nervous response in the diaphragm in the midriff. The flustered diaphragm flutters up and down and its agitated acrobatics shake up the lungs that rest upon it. The jerking lungs gasp for quick breaths of air, and the whole body goes into a writhing spasm of laughter. The vocal cords in the windpipe give forth a breathless series of merry chuckles and chortles. Even the face gets into the act. This is what a tickle triggers the nervous system to do. But we cannot say why this mechanical stimulus provokes the body to laugh rather than something else, such as standing on its head.

Joyful Laughter

Non-mechanical laughter is trigggered by things we see and hear. This takes us into the immense topic of human that is related to the higher systems of emotion and intellect. The fancy may be the unexpected, such as a parrot flying out of a lunch box, or a switcheroo such as a bird with biniculars, or a misfit such as a scarecrow driving a limousine. The ten-foot trout belongs with truth-stretching or hyperbole humor. Blunders and boo-boos, mistakes and mimics trigger laughter, so do funny puns and witty word plays, cavorting clowns and dozens of other out-of-the-ordinary situations. When something tickles the fancy, the body reacts just as it does to a mechanical toe tickle.

Bubbling joy tends to be forgotten by most people who try to analyze human humor. Sometimes a person laughs or wants to laugh for no other reason than inner happiness. This deep, secret feeling of joyful well-being wells up from the emotional nature and occurs in people who face the trials of life with a general attitude of cheerful courage. If laughter is a tonic, this joyous type is mankind's best medicine—and best of all, it happens to be slightly infectious.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Ronald Rago, aged 11, of Wichita, Kansas, for his question:

How high is the stratosphere?

Gases are more fluid than water, more restless and changeable than liquid and solid substances. The gases of the earth's atmosphere reached hundreds of miles above our heads, getting thinner as they go. At certain levels, they change in character. The densest, most turbulent layer is the troposphere that hugs close to the surface of the globe. Its upper boundary averages five miles above the poles and reaches up to 11 miles above the equator. At the top is a slim, calm layer called the tropopause. It marks the lower limit of the layer called the stratosphere.

The floor of the stratosphere, then, is from 10 to 11 miles above the earth at the tropics and about five miles above the polar regions of the global surface. The upper boundary of the stratosphere averages about 50 miles above the surface level all around the globe.

CONFIDENTIAL 'RED BOOK' OUTLINES LIBERAL PLATFORM

Trudeau Places His Faith in 80 Promises

Newman

OTTAWA — Liberal candidates across the country have received a confidential document listing 80 promises with which Pierre ("ask me no promises and I'll tell you no lies") Trudeau hopes to win a majority mandate on June 25.

Bound in red leather. Couched in grandiose terms, the document is a dramatic attempt by the Liberals to counteract the image of Trudeau as the hero of a screaming cult of teen-agers and to portray him instead as a prime minister with a carefully thought out program for his country.

While further planks and the expansion of those listed below will be enunciated by the Liberal leader between now and election day, this is essentially the platform which forms the basis of the government's hopes for victory.

Meetings to draft this document began about a month ago under the chairmanship of Jim Davey, a Montreal management consultant who was a key figure in the Trudeau leadership campaign and is now employed in the prime minister's office.

The drafting committee which was recruited to write the actual document consisted of Lloyd Axworthy (as former executive assistant to John Turner who is now running against Stanley Knowles in Winnipeg North Centre), Bill Lee (the former executive assistant to Paul Hellyer who is now principal policy advisor and tour manager of the Trudeau campaign) and Dan Coates (research director of the National Liberal Federation of Canada).

Marc Lalonde, the prime minister's chief policy advisor, sat in on most of the sessions and Trudeau himself edited the final doucment.

Paul Hellyer headed the cabinet steering committee which studied the proposals before they were approved by the full cabinet. Key Liberals across the country were also consulted at every stage of the process.

The platform, which reads more like a speech from the Throne, includes few items which might call for major govenment expenditures. When contrasted with the Liberals' 1965 platform (which promised medicare, a war on poverty, technical training programs, help to farmers, more social security programs, and $100 millions in renewable scholarships) it's difficult to remember that this is the same party.

Probably the most interesting aspect of the 1968 Liberal platform is its omissions. There is not a word about agriculture, though the PM and two of his ministers are known to have had a long discussion on possible approaches, particularly to the wheat problem.

Apart from the government's already announced plans to make the federal administration more bilingual, there is nothing in the platform designed to appeal to Quebec.

The Canada development Corp., which won Trudeau's approval before the Liberal leadership convention, has significantly been omitted, as has every other item in previous Liberal platforms that might sound the least bit nationalistic.

The document is introduced by an emotional call to colors which reads in part: "Our people have come alive with pride in themselves and their nation. We indeed accomplished near miracles with Expo and our other centennial celebrations. And we are determined to keep our nation together and working toward the goals of a just society, with a prosperous economy in a united Canada, contributing to a peaceful world . . . All of us who will stand and work for the Liberal party in this election must dedicate ourselves to earning the mandate we need from the people to forge our new nation. United we can and will earn that mandate."

Including the policies on bilingualism and a changed foreign policy which the prime minister has already announced in some detail, there are some 80 planks in the Liberal platform, of which these are the main features:

To bring about "The just society" the Liberals pledge to incorporate a charter of human rights in the constitution and reform the processes of justice by naming more judges, revising expropriation methods, doing away with abuses of the bail system changing the juvenile delinquency laws, and modernizing the federal prisons system.

To help the city dwellers, the Lierals intend to establish a task force on urban issues, to promote urban research centres in universities, to curb land speculation, to attract more private money into housing, to use existing federal lands for revitalizing cities, to introduce a coordinated program of advancing the techniques of urban mass transportation, and to implement a major airport expansion plan.

For the consumer, a code is in the works that will ensure

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's first heart transplant patient is awake and his condition "remains hopeful," Dr. Pierre Grondin reported today eight hours after the operation was completed.

Dr. Grondin, chief surgeon in the world's 18th heart transplant operation, told a press conference the patient, Albert Murphy, a 59-year-old French-Canadian butcher, is aware of what is going on around him and is able to obey commands.

Montreal Heart Institute, where the operation was performed, made available an official bulletin shortly after noon today which said:

"Mr. Murphy's progress remains satisfactory. However, the transplanted heart has some difficulties in maintaining an adequate blood pressure and requires the administration of supportive agents.

"The patient is fully conscious and the heart rate is stable. A respirator is still in use to assist pulmonary functions."

Another bulletin would be issued in six hours, a hospital spokesman said.

NOT WITHOUT DIFFICULTY

Dr. Grondin said the operation went smoothly but not without difficulty in maintaining the patient's blood pressure and cirserver recently at a Houston

Dr. Grondin had been an observer recently at a Houston heart transplant by Dr. Denton Cooley which was conducted according to techniques developed by Dr. Norman Shumway of New York in 1961.

Dr. Grondin indicated that heart transplant procedures now have been somewhat "standardized."

Earlier, Dr. Paul David, the institute's medical director, said Mr. Murphy's heart was beating at a "satisfying rhythm" following the operation, which began at 12:20 a.m.

Mr. Murphy, father of two from suburban Laval, received the heart of Mrs. Gerard Rondeau, 38, a mother of four.

Dr. David said the woman died of a "massive cerebral hemorrhage" after she had been transferred to the institute from Jean Talon Hospital Wednesday night.

Another institute spokesman said that Mr. Murphy is five feet, six inchs tall and weighs 124 pounds. "When well," the spokesman said, "he weighed about 175."

WIRE BRIEFS

Rain Dampens Fire

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Saskatchewan forestry officials were breathing easier Thursday night as rain fell over northern regions of the province and improved the forest fire situation.

Forestry director F. H. Hewett said in a telephone interview conditions were "greatly improved."

Not Leaving NATO

TORONTO (CP)—Canada is considering repatriating Canadian army and air force units stationed in West Germany, but has no intention of withdrawing from NATO, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Thursday.

Victim From Ottawa

LONDON (CP)—Mrs. Alastair Buchan flew to Italy today after she was advised that her brother, John King Gilmour of Ottawa, had been stabbed to death in his small Rome apartment.

Protest Rejected

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The Cambodian government rejected today an American protest against imprisonment of two U.S. soldiers captured aboard a Philippine tugboat in the Mekong Delta May 20.

SFU President Ousted by Board

Pupils, Faculty Demanded Move

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — Dr. Patrick McTaggart-Cowan, president of Simon Fraser University, was asked today to take an indefinite leave of absence, said SFU Chancellor Dr. Gordon Shrum.

He said the university board of governors met today and asked Dr. McTaggart-Cowan to take the absence effective immediately.

Dr. Shrum said the board will appoint a temporary acting president.

The move followed a faculty and student demand Thursday night for the president's resignation.

See Earlier Page 17

Dr. McTaggart-Cowan declined to fire himself when he met student and faculty representatives but promised to take the demand to the board meeting today.

About 800 students went further than asking for the resignation, but drew up a list of demands including that control of the university be turned over to faculty and students.

The group set a 1 p.m. deadline for indication the demands were to be met.

Dr. Shrum, co-chairman of the B.C. hydro, said the board did not have time to consider the demands other than that of the resignation.

He said Dr. McTaggart-Cowan asked him to make it clear to students the president was not backing down under any pressure. Dr. Shrum said the president is a "fighter and not a quitter."

SUB-SHAPED OBJECT FOUND BY SEARCHERS

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The United States Navy reported today locating what it described as a metallic object the size of a submarine, off Virginia, but a top admiral said chances are almost "nil" it may be the Scorpion.

Vice-Admiral Arnold F. Schade, commander of the over-all search for the missing nuclear-powered Scorpion and its crew of 99, said the vast sea hunt which has been going on four full days has turned up nothing significant.

The metallic object was detected about 70 miles from Cape Henry, Va., and navy divers are trying to find it.

"It is not one of the registered and known hulls," Schade said.

The object is resting at about 180 feet down on a bearing of 065 degrees from Cape Henry.

PRESSURE ON IWA?

'Gov't Bending To Wishes Of Industry'

By ROGER STONEBANKS

The three-member Bill 33 commission will take up their appointments June 15—the first day a legal strike can occur in the coast forest products industry.

But the sections of the government's new labor legislation which could stop a strike by the International Woodworkers of America have yet to be proclaimed by the cabinet.

Another dispute which could be referred by the cabinet to the mediation commission for a binding decision involves 61 hospitals and 4,100 registered nurses.

The nurses have turned down pay increases of between 21 and 27 per cent in an 18-month contract and the Registered Nurses Association of B.C. has asked the labor department to conduct a strike vote.

Section 18 of the legislation — not yet proclaimed by cabinet — gives the cabinet power to refer disputes to the mediation commission and order its finding binding where "it is necessary in order to protect the public interest and welfare."

Section 21 says that where such an order is made, and a strike or lockout is in effect, the action shall cease in 24 hours and work resume.

Where no strike or lockout is in effect, unions are not allowed to declare a strike, no employee shall strike, no company shall declare a lockout or lockout employees.

'GOV'T BENDING'

The only sections of Bill 33 which are law at the moment are those relating to the establishment of the mediation commission, whose membership was announced Thursday by Labor Minister Leslie Peterson.

The president of the Victoria IWA local, Murray Drew, said it "appears" the government is "bending to the wishes of the forest industry and trying to put pressure on the IWA membership."

"I wouldn't view it as a coincidence," he said.

"Why not make the appointments effective emmediately? And it (June 15) is on a Saturday of all times."

Mr. Peterson was en route from Vancouver to Victoria this morning and could not be reached for his comment.

Argentina Transplant

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) — Argentina completed its first human heart transplant operation successfully today at a private clinic near Buenos Aires.

A surgical team, led by Dr. Miguel Bellizi, 42, took about four hours for the operation.

A spokesman at the Modelo Clinic identified the recipient as 47-year-old Enrique Serrano.

The donor, Emilio Tomasetti, was pronounced dead early today at the Ramos Mejia Hospital here and his body was hurried by ambulance to the Modelo Clinic for extraction of the heart.

French Workers Return to Jobs

PARIS (CP) — The wave of strikes in France seemed to be receding today under the counter-measures of President de Gaulle. The chief of state, following up his dissolution of the National Assembly, named a new government with Georges Pompidou back as premier.

Reports of a back-to-work movement flowed in from all parts of the country except the Riviera. These covered mostly small plants or partial resumption of activity in other fields.

However, Automobiles Peugeot S.A. announced it will resume work Tuesday at all its plants in the Paris area, in Mulhouse and Vesoul.

Other big key industries showed no signs of a break, but the solidarity of the strikers had been broken and the movement was toward normalcy. Union leaders said they were ready to reopen talks on wage increases for still-idle millions.

Military units which had been on manoeuvres returned to their bases and were reported on alert status.

In the cabinet shift, Maurice Couve de Murville became minister of finance and economic affairs. Michel Debre, outgoing finance minister, succeeded Couve de Murville as foreign minister.

Pierre Messmer was returned as defence minister and former premier Edgar Faure remains as minister of agriculture.

There were five notable changes. Christian Fouchet, interior minister, was dropped. So were Louis Joxe, justice minister; Georges Gorse, minister of information, and Francois Missoffe, minister for sports and youth affairs. Alain Peyrefitte, education minister, resigned last week.

VOTING STARTS JUNE 23

The first round of elections for a new National Assembly was set for June 23. The second round will take place June 30.

Rene Capitant, a left-wing Gaullist who criticized Pompidou and said he would vote against the government in the censure vote last week, was named justice minister. At the last minute, Capitant had resigned his seat as a deputy and did not vote the censure motion, which the government survived.

Raymond Marcellin, an independent Republican who had been minister for economic planning, was named interior minister with control over the police.

Couve de Murville had been foreign minister since de Gaulle returned to power 10 years ago —an all-time record for one man in the job. Debre had been finance minister since January, 1968. Couve de Murville was an inspector of finance before he moved into diplomacy.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Firm prices and some bouyance in oilseeds were the features of light trade at the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Export buying of oilseeds augmented commission house transactions, creating activity in both commodities. Farm deliveries of rapeseed have dropped off, contributing to rallying prices.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Gains at Toronto, N.Y.

Gains were posted today on both the Toronto and New York stock markets in moderately active trading. Wall St. resumed trading after a one-day holiday for Memorial Day observance.

At Toronto speculative industrials were strong.

Brokers at both Toronto and New York attributed today's strength to President Johnson's statement that he would accept a $6 billion spending cut.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1968—PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

Without half trying, I can remember a day when the presence of anybody under 20 at a political meeting was noted with uneasy concern. It was against nature: the lad must have been paid by a rival campaign manager to come and raise hell. But the times had begun to change even before Pierre Elliott Trudeau exploded upon our scene.

Let us not forget that the first all-candidate rally in Victoria's 1967 municipal election joust was student-organized.

With Mr. Trudeau came the landslide which may eventually result in a reduction of federal voting age from the present 21 years, and heaven knows what beside.

In fairness, Grits and Tories can both claim an increased number of youthful supporters. But the Liberals, who naturally lean heavy on the Trudeau name, seem to have a definite edge.

Come to think of it, David Anderson — billed as "the Trudeau man (and your man) for Esquimalt-Saanich — is not precisely aged himself.

When I dropped in at his Cadillac Ave. headquarters to pick up a wife who hasn't been the same since Pierre Elliot took that rose between his teeth, the joint was jumping.

Along with men and women campaign volunteers were teen-agers in significant number.

One of them is sweet-faced Bonnie Ricketts of 2878 Parkview. Bonnie is 17. In a matter of weeks, she hopes to graduate from Esquimalt senior secondary school.

A few weeks ago, Bonnie dropped a note to Prime Minister Trudeau, offering her services in the election campaign.

"I didn't write to him just because he is cute," she explains. "I like his fresh outlook, and the way he does things."

Back came a letter from the PM's secretary. Offer accepted with thanks, and Liberal headquarters in Bonnie's riding would be notified.

So here she is, working as time permits in Mr. Anderson's headquarters, until Saturday, June 22.

Then she leaves for Ottawa, where she hopes to find work.

But that's only part of the story. Bonnie will arrive in the capital on June 25, which as you know, is election day.

With her, she plans to take a gift to Mr. Trudeau from the people of Victoria. This will be a little Vancouver Island dogwood tree, ready for planting.

But wouldn't that be an awkward present to take by train?

"I'm sure I'll manage all right," says Bonnie. What can make her assignment difficult, however, is the fact that the flowering dogwood, except where it occurs on private land, is strictly protected. You can't pick its flowers or uproot its saplings.

There's also some doubt whether our native dogwood can survive those stern back-East winters.

But it's a nice gesture, and I hope some knowledgeable horticulturalist in this city of trees and gardens will help Bonnie make good on it.

Talking to candidate Anderson, I learned that he has one claim to attention not listed in his campaign advertising.

He owns what may very well be the farthest-travelled Cowichan sweater in the world.

As an assistant government trade commissioner for Canada across the Pacific, he once warded off Peking's winter chill with that boldly-patterned sweater.

"A very useful garment," Mr. Anderson said. "I was glad of it in Manilla too — it's surprising how cold the nights can get down there at times."

Not to boast, but it was through this column that the Liberal candidate came to acquire this item of casual wear. Several years ago, I did a piece in which the Cowichan sweater's warmth and durability was extolled.

The candidate's mother, Mrs. J. W. Anderson of 3026 McAnally, saw the item, bought one of the Indian-knits, and shipped it off to her son.

So much for this day, and now off to bang the last remaining slats on a fence that has been under repair for much too long. Trouble is, I get one section mended and another falls over. Like dominoes.

WINDS CERTAIN FOR SWIFTSURE

The Swiftsure will live up to its name this year. Weather forecasts for the weekend predict wind, and lots of it.

Sadly, they also predict rain for the opening ceremonies.

Here is a blow-by-blow account of what the wind is expected to do over the next two days, with a weather front moving in today:

Friday Night—Winds from the east and southeast at 20 to 25 m.p.h., with rain and cloudy skies.

Saturday—The weather system will be through by then, leaving winds from the west at 25 m.p.h. and gusting before the race. By race time they will be from the southwest and south at about 20 m.p.h. Some gusting is expected during the morning.

Sunday—Winds to be lighter, but there will be a westerly component to them, helping the sailors back to Victoria. There may also be some widely-scattered showers.

Jockeying Starts Tonight in Dash For Harbor Spot

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

A "pre-race race" of yachts to get into the Inner Harbor is expected tonight for opening ceremonies of the Swiftsure.

A total of 137 yachts is entered — and they cannot all fit into the harbor. The only vessel assured of her position is HMCS Cowichan, the color ship for the ceremonies.

The roll call of yachts will be conducted at 7:50, followed by a sunset ceremony at the Legislative Buildings at 8:45.

Both races will start off Brotchie Ledge Beacon on Saturday, with the line set between HMCS Porte de la Reine, and HMCS Cowichan. Starting gun for the 136-mile Swiftsufe race goes at 9:30 a.m., followed by a 9:45 gun for the 75-mile Juan de Fuca race.

For the second year, the Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet from Washington State Clubs will start with the Juan de Fuca yachts.

MARA BACK

Among the many returning yachts will be last year's triple winner, Mara, raced by Seattle's Bill Buchan Jr. Mara took the 1967 Swiftsure Trophy as over-all winner on corrected time. She also won the RCNSA Trophy as the first boat to round Swiftsure light, and the Seattle Yacht Club Trophy as winner in Division III.

Other winners from previous years which will be back include the Seattle yawl Diamond Head, J. H. Long's Mary Bower, G. O. Smith's Bandit, Dr. Carl Jensen's Adios, and R. G. Page's Hussy.

UNPREDICTABLE

Skippers will be hoping for fresh breezes to clear them through Race Rocks before the tide changes in mid-afternoon.

(According to the official tide tables, the tide will be ebbing during the morning. But tides have been known to disregard the official book).

In fact, experienced skippers say that the tides through the "Race" are completely unpredictable.

Generally speaking, when the tide runs against the fleet, the yachts hug the shoreline, hoping to pick up favorable eddies.

Most helmsmen elect to go through "the Race" on the way out. Then, the major decision is whether to follow the Canadian or American shore for the long "beat" up the strait.

DEMANDING

Swiftsure is demanding. It constantly tests navigation and seamsnship skills. And there is more than a little luck thrown in when guessing where the wind is, or will be blowing. A helmsman must know his boat's performance under any given combination of wind and sea conditions, and how much sail he can profitably, and safely, carry at all times.

As well as the wide variations of skill and luck, there are the great differences in boat sizes. These differences are compensated for with the C.C. of A. ratings, which are determined for each yacht by a complicated handicapping formula.

The factors involved are those which affect the potential speed of the boat; factors such as waterline length, weight, amount of sail carried, and propeller "drag," if any. Generally, a boat's rating is less than its over-all length.

But there are exceptions. One example is Rick Todd's relatively light 24-footer Kiwi, which rates 26.4. An example of a heavy, relatively slow boat is John Damgaard's 30-foot ketch Hanna, which rates 18.5.

RELATIVE THING

Performance during the course of the race, therefore, is a relative thing. Position only becomes meaningful when the finish times have been recorded and the handicapping applied.

As in previous years, the course will be well patrolled and communication channels available. Patrol vessels will include the HMCS Cowichan, HMCS Porte de la Reine, HMCS Porte Quebec, USCGC Henlopen, and the RCMP Victoria.

The Swiftsure Mark will be the HMCS Porte Quebec, anchored on the 19-fathom patch at 48 deg. 33' N, 125 deg. 00' W. RCMP Victoria, anchored in position 222 deg. Magnetic from the bell buoy off Slip Point, will be the Clallam Bay Mark.

Finish line will be a line running west (magnetic) across Victoria harbor entrance from the northwest end of Pier A, Ogden Point docks. (Approximately 300 yards inside the breakwater.)

WORK FORCE

The Swiftsure committee has been working under the direction of Royal Victoria Yacht Club's Frank Piddington. Swiftsure fleet captain is Dr. Doug Adams, also of RVYC.

Other members of the race committee ashore are Jim Rogers of RCNSA, and Harry Armstrong and Dick Fisher of RVYC.

Race committee afloat includes Jack Woodward, Duncan Coles, John Malleson, Bob Grant and Bob Metcalf, of RVYC.

On the Island Tug and Barge donated press tug will be Hector Alexander and Andrew Wright.

Eaton's window downtown will, as usual, have the Swiftsure Racecourse map, and provide a focus for direct news reports from the patrol vessels.

$102,538 Lowest Bid For Centre

A low bid of $102,538 was submitted Thursday by Herb Bate Limited for construction of a senior citizens activity centre near Hampton Park in Saanich.

The three other bids were: E. J. Hunter and Sons, $105,872; H. E. Fowler and Sons, $110,683; and G. H. Wheaton, $111,220.

The tenders were referred to project architect John De Castri who will make a report to the senior citizens committee Monday which is expected to make a recommendation to Monday night's council meeting, said comptroller-treasurer John Tribe.

A separate tender call for kitchen equipment brought bids of $13,255 from Terminal Sheet Metal Works and $13,542.86 from Alexander Food Equipment.

'NOTHING UNUSUAL'

Ferries Plugged Up By U.S. Holidayers

An American who came from New York to visit Vancouver Island was fuming at the B.C. Ferry Authority Thursday night.

He said it took him longer to get across the Strait of Georgia than to fly from New York to Vancouver.

And he wasn't the only Tsawwassen-Swartz Bay passenger to complain about delays caused by the influx of U.S. visitors on their Memorial Day holiday.

Another passenger—a Victorian—said he arrived at the Tsawwassen terminal just before 6 p.m. for the 7 p.m. ferry. He was told the ferry was full and had to wait for the 9 p.m. sailing.

It left the terminal at 9:45.

'NOTHING UNUSUAL'

"It was nothing unusual," the ferry authority said today. "This has happened every Memorial Day since we began service eight years ago."

No one thinks that the overload will occur, forgetting about the American holiday, the spokesman said.

"They're thunderstruck when it comes on a Thursday."

So thunderstruck that cars were left sitting at both terminals waiting for the next ferry, two hours later.

The ferry authority didn't put on extra ferries in anticipation of the rush.

They maintained regular weekly service during the day, with sailings from both ends of the line every two hours. But they did put an extra run on at each end at 11.

"There were only 32 cars out of Swartz Bay on the last ferry," the ferry spokesman said.

That was at 11, and the last ferry was scheduled for 9 p.m.

Did the authority consider putting extra ferries on for the holiday — like the increased service for weekends and Canadian holidays?

"We would have to be able to conjure up ferries at the drop of a hat every time there is an overload," he said.

"What is the economy involved in putting an extra ship on? We could run ferries on the hour every day of the year if people were prepared to face the cost.

"We are trying to run it (the ferry service) so it holds its own.

"Besides, some of our own people were caught in the overload. They had to wait too."

DESPERATE MEASURES TAKEN

Things Starting to Stir For Oak Bay's Tea Party

By ALAN WHITE

Word has slipped through the Tweed Curtain. And the word is ominous—there will be a day of civil unrest.

Perhaps two days, depending upon the reaction of the citizenry.

The tight rule of silence in the principality is slipping.

The agent who parted the wool of the curtain and barked his message through indicated invasion from neighboring principalities was imminent.

Fist anticipated move is partition.

Special guards have already been detailed in anticipation of the rush on Oak Bay's borders. They will check for passes and see that everyone crossing the border has only peaceful things in mind. No weapons, understand, not even sawed-off cricket bats or taped teapot handles.

What is it all about? Why such sudden and desperate measures? The Oak Bay Tea Party, of course. The area's annual breakout and anniversary celebration.

It starts at 10 a.m. Saturday with a show of martial strength.

Foot and mounted regiments will parade from Windsor Park.

The latest in short and long-wheel-based vehicles will be paraded, armored with streamers and paper.

Leading the parade will be Mr. and Mrs. Tweedie, heads of state, in their indefatigable limousine—a 1937 Phantom Three V-12 Rolls-Royce. Which goes to show that Oak Bay doesn't squander its foreign aid as some lesser sheikdoms are known to do.

The procession will move down Newport Avenue, along Oak Bay Avenue through the village to Foul Bay Road, then north along Foul Bay to Cadboro Bay Road, right on Hamiota through the Estevan shopping centre to Beach Drive.

This is known as Formal Procession and Show of Might Route No. 1.

Troops will break off for temporary bivouac, and judging of vehicles (basically bicycles) will be conducted.

There will be a display of Scottish country dancing and the baron of beef from noon to 5 p.m. The Tea Party will be formally opened by Acting Mayor Frances Elford, following a short luncheon for VIPs and visiting heads of state from Victoria, Saanich and Esquimalt.

There will also be an art contest for children during the afternoon in the park, to keep the populace peaceful. Easels and charcoal will be available on the spot.

And later in the afternoon a final display of might, with skydivers plunging to the beach. They will open parachutes at the very last moment to avoid jarring their teeth.

Other events for Saturday's uprising include an acrobatic display smuggled in by the YMCA and a rock band called the How About? There will be a free teen dance from 9 to 11 p.m.

Sunday the shock of partition and invasion should have worn off enough for the protective agency screen to warp. And the day will be one of full-scale celebration.

Beginning at 1 p.m. a water show will start off Willows Beach with water skiers, ski-jumpers, acrobatic skiers, skydivers, and what is cryptically referred to as "a surprise event."

Oak Bay's air force (rented from the Victoria Flying Club) will present a flypast and harbor tours will be offered from the beach by a two-vessel navy of tour boats.

The invasion force for the do is expected to be in excess of last year's 15,000. And according to the best of tactical advice, the best place to be is the front wave. The tea is fresher.

It is also wise to lead the retreat—because if the Tweed Curtain doesn't come completely unravelled by Sunday night, it will come back down with a tremendous thwoosh. Rather.

Seaman Killed As Sports Car Rams Into Pole

By PAUL WILLIAMSON

One man died and a second seriously injured early today when a sports car spun out of control and slammed sideways into a power pole on Esquimalt Road.

Gregory Dixon, 21, an able seaman at CFB Esquimalt, was pronounced dead on arrival at Naden Hospital.

A 22-year-old passenger, AB John McLaughlin, is in serious condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital with a fractured skull.

Police said the car was apparently travelling west from Victoria into Esquimalt about 12:30 a.m.

After rounding a curve to the left, the car spun out and crashed into a pole on the north side of the road in the 800 block.

FOLDED V-SHAPE

The pole hit in the middle of the driver's door. The door was torn off and the car folded itself in a V shape around the pole.

The car was demolished, but the pole damaged only slightly.

Naval authorities report both men worked at the CFB Esquimalt fleet school. Dixon comes from Ridgeway, Ontario, and McLaughlin from Grand Falls, New Brunswick.

McLaughlin was taken to Naden Hospital but transferred to Royal Jubilee Hospital early today.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said he has ordered a blood analysis and post mortem on Dixon.

ANOTHER ONE

A second sports car spun into a pole two miles away one half-hour later, but the driver received only minor injuries.

George Cormack, 26, of 541 Toronto, was treated for cuts and bruises and released from Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Saanich police said Cormack was driving east on the Trans-Canada Highway when the car went out of control as it approached Douglas.

The car careened into the pole supporting the railway crossing warning lights just west of Douglas.

Police estimated damage at $1,000 to the car and $400 to the signal lights.

LOCAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORT

Camsell, Douglas in for refit; Estevan in port; Racer, Quadra in port; Ready in Sandheads patrol area; Vancouver on Station Papa.

NAVY

Saskatchewan, Qu'Appelle enroute to Hong Kong; Yukon sailing Sunday for Patricia Bay; Laymore in Barkley Sound; Endeavor at sea; Columbia, MacKenzie at sea, in Sunday; Oriole at sea for Swiftsure race; Cowichan, Porte Quebec, Porte de la Reine at sea for Swiftsure duties.

NDP SIGNS OKAY WITH VICTORIA

New Democratic Party supporters who plan to defy the tough anti-sign bylaw in Saanich are on solid legal ground, it was confirmed today by a Victoria city official.

As far as Victoria is concerned a 1966 Supreme Court decision makes clear that municipalities have no power to regulate federal election campaign signs. City staffs have been told not to remove campaign posters or signs that appear to violate the city bylaw.

Acting Saanich Mayor Leslie Passmore was to confer with the municipal solicitor today to decide whether to prosecute NDP supporters who place campaign signs on their lawns.

Bit of Flair For Stores In Square?

Bastion Square will become a hive of activity this summer if merchants are given a freer hand in promotion programs.

City manager Dennis Young told city council Thursday afternoon there are two obvious areas of development for the square, both of which would give the area a lift.

"I think we should encourage merchants located in the square to expand on their promotional activities," he said. "And I think we should be fairly elastic in what we permit them to do.

"For example if one merchant wants to put a wandering gypsy in there, I think it should be permitted under the existing business licence for the store in question. I don't think a second business licence should be required for what is after all just an extension of the store's activities."

CONFINED TO SQUARE

Mr. Young told council any activities so promoted would have to be confined to the square and would not be permitted to encroach on other areas of the city.

A second plan to promote pedestrian traffic could come from what Mr. Young termed "spill-over activity."

"If the restaurants in the square want to put tables and chairs in the square, I think they should be allowed to do so as long as their activity is within reason and doesn't create an impediment for other square users," he said.

"In the same manner, if a dress shop in the Village Fair wants to stage an outdoor fashion show, it should receive our approval."

Medical Plan Transferred

The provincial government moved a step closer to implementing federal medicare Thursday by officially transferring the B.C. Medical Plan and its 450,000 subscribers to the Medical Services Commission.

A cabinet order approved the transfer under the agreement signed by Ottawa and B.C. to implement medicare July 1.

Other non-profit pre-paid medical plans in the province are expected to be transferred to the Medical Services Commission shortly to qualify for federal money under the medicare agreement.

Foreign Envoys Paying Respects

Five distinguished envoys will call on Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George Pearkes at Government House next week.

The Consul General of Japan, Hon. Tomihiko Kambara, will call Monday morning; the Danish ambassador to Canada, Hon Bogh Andersen at noon; the Netherlands ambassador, Hon. Theodorus Bot, at 3 p.m.

Tuesday at 11 alm. the Polish ambassador to Canada, Hon. Marian Stradowski, will call at Government House.

On Wednesday at 6 p.m. the lieutenant-governor will receive Sir Henry Lintott, high commissioner for Great Britain, and Lady Lintott.

$1 MILLION MARINA

Building Boom Forecast For Sidney

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The town of Sidney is on the verge of a building boom — the biggest in its history.

A proposal to construct a $1,000,000 apartment-marina complex has been submitted to Sidney council.

Three other applications to construct apartments on Fifth Street and one on Second Street, are under consideration.

A public hearing has been set for June 14 to consider the apartment-marina complex because it is situated in a residential area.

The proposed development would be located on about five-acres of property in the vicinity of McDonald Park Road and Shoal Harbor, near Rest Haven Hospital.

There would be two apartment blocks consisting of about 80 suites with a private marina.

Developer is Northumbria Investment Ltd.

The three apartments on Fifth Street would have between 40 and 60 suites each.

The fifth project calls for a 42-suite complex in the vicinity of the present site of St. Andrew's Hall on Second Street.

HOLDS OPTION

The applicant is the Montreal Trust Co. which has an option on the property.

Mayor A. W. Freeman said if construction continues at the present rate it may give rise to a serious water and sewage problem.

"As things stand at present we can look after the needs of these apartments but sooner or later we are bound to run into a water problem," he said.

Sidney relies on wells, plus the Central Saanich waterworks system, for its water supply.

The mayor also said there was a limit to what the town's sewage system could take.

"This is not an immediate problem," he said, but it could become one with time."

You Can Make Your Own Odds . . . Politically

Ticket sales for The Odd Couple took an odd twist today.

As a promotion gimmick, the Bastion Theatre group which is presenting the play, offered campaign pictures of Robert Stanfield or Pierre Elliott Trudeau—"another odd couple"—to anyone buying a ticket.

This morning the NDP complained of political discrimination because no pictures of Tommy Douglas were being offered.

A players' spokesman said this would distort the effect of the gimmick, but that "you can make any odd couple you want."

It is expected that anyone asking for a picture of Mr. Douglas will be accommodated.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you tell me if the TV program Pig and Whistle actually originates from a pub in Toronto, and are there any statistics on the Scottish singer Billy Meek? C.B.

A. The Canadian Television Network informs us that the show is taped in studios of CFTO-Toronto, with persons who have requested tickets to the show as guests. Billy Meek, one of the feature singers on the show, was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and began his professional career with his parents at the age of 14. He toured the British Isles and was an army entertainer during the Second World War.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

CONFIDENTIAL 'RED BOOK' OUTLINES LIBERAL PLATFORM

Trudeau Places His Faith in 80 Promises

Newman

OTTAWA — Liberal candidates across the country have received a confidential document listing 80 promises with which Pierre ("ask me no promises and I'll tell you no lies") Trudeau hopes to win a majority mandate on June 25.

Bound in red leather. Couched in grandiose terms, the document is a dramatic attempt by the Liberals to counteract the image of Trudeau as the hero of a screaming cult of teen-agers and to portray him instead as a prime minister with a carefully thought out program for his country.

While further planks and the expansion of those listed below will be enunciated by the Liberal leader between now and election day, this is essentially the platform which forms the basis of the government's hopes for victory.

Meetings to draft this document began about a month ago under the chairmanship of Jim Davey, a Montreal management consultant who was a key figure in the Trudeau leadership campaign and is now employed in the prime minister's office.

The drafting committee which was recruited to write the actual document consisted of Lloyd Axworthy (as former executive assistant to John Turner who is now, running against Stanley Knowles in Winnipeg North Centre), Bill Lee (the former executive assistant to Paul Hellyer who is now principal policy advisor and tour manager of the Trudeau campaign) and Dan Coates (research director of the National Liberal Federation of Canada).

Marc Lalonde, the prime minister's chief policy advisor, sat in on most of the sessions and Trudeau himself edited the final document.

Paul Hellyer headed the cabinet steering committee which studied the proposals before they were approved by the full cabinet. Key Liberals across the country were also consulted at every stage of the process.

The platform, which reads more like a speech from the Throne, includes few items which might call for major government expenditures. When contrasted with the Liberals' 1965 platform (which promised medicare, a war on poverty, technical training programs, help to farmers, more social security programs, and $100 millions in renewable scholarships) it's difficult to remember that this is the same party.

Probably the most interesting aspect of the 1968 Liberal platform is its omissions. There is not a word about agriculture, though the PM and two of his ministers are known to have had a long discussion on possible approaches, particularly to the wheat problem.

Apart from the government's already announced plans to make the federal administration more bilingual, there is nothing in the platform designed to appeal to Quebec.

The Canada development Corp., which won Trudeau's approval before the Liberal leadership convention, has significantly been omitted, as has every other item in previous Liberal platforms that might sound the least bit nationalistic.

The document is introduced by an emotional call to colors which reads in part: "Our people have come alive with pride in themselves and their nation. We indeed accomplished near miracles with Expo and our other centennial celebrations. And we are determined to keep our nation together and working toward the goals of a just society, with a prosperous economy in a united Canada, contributing to a peaceful world . . . All of us who will stand and work for the Liberal party in this election must dedicate ourselves to earning the mandate we need from the people to forge our new nation. United we can and will earn that mandate."

Including the policies on bilingualism and a changed foreign policy which the prime minister has already announced in some detail, there are some 80 planks in the Liberal platform, of which these are the main features:

To bring about "The just society" the Liberals pledge to incorporate a charter of human rights in the constitution and reform the processes of justice by naming more judges, revising expropriation methods, doing away with abuses of the bail system changing the juvenile delinquency laws, and modernizing the federal prisons system.

To help the city dwellers, the Liberals intend to establish a task force on urban issues, to promote urban research centres in universities, to curb land speculation, to attract more private money into housing, to use existing federal lands for revitalizing cities, to introduce a coordinated program of advancing the techniques of urban mass transportation, and to implement a major airport expansion plan.

For the consumer, a code is in the works that will ensure

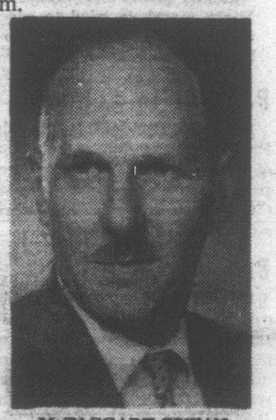
Pupils, Faculty Demanded Move

BURNABY, (CP) — Dr. Patrick McTaggart-Cowan, president of Simon Fraser University, was asked today to take an indefinite leave of absence, said SFU Chancellor Dr. Gordon Shrum.



McTAGGART-COWAN
. . . resisted move

He said the university board of governors met today and asked Dr. McTaggart-Cowan to take the absence effective immediately.

Dr. Shrum said the board will appoint a temporary acting president.

The move followed a faculty and student demand Thursday night for the president's resignation.

See Earlier Page 17

Dr. McTaggart-Cowan declined to fire himself when he met student and faculty representatives but promised to take the demand to the board meeting today.

About 800 students went further than asking for the resignation, and drew up a list of demands including one that control of the university be turned over to faculty and students.

SHRUM
. . . made announcement

The group set a 1 p.m. deadline for indication the demands were to be met.

Dr. Shrum, co-chairman of the B.C. hydro, said the board did not have time to consider the demands other than that of the resignation.

He said Dr. McTaggart-Cowan asked him to make it clear to students the president was not backing down under any pressure. Dr. Shrum said the president is a "fighter and not a quitter."

SUB-SHAPED OBJECT FOUND BY SEARCHERS

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The United States Navy reported today locating what it described as a metallic object the size of a submarine, off Virginia, but a top admiral said chances are almost "nil" it may be the Scorpion.

Vice-Admiral Arnold F. Schade, commander of the over-all search for the missing nuclear-powered Scorpion and its crew of 99, said the vast sea hunt which has been going on four full days has turned up nothing significant.

The metallic object was detected about 70 miles from Cape Henry, Va., and navy divers are trying to find it.

"It is not one of the registered and known hulls," Schade said.

The object is resting at about 180 feet down on a bearing of 065 degrees from Cape Henry.

PRESSURE ON IWA?

By ROGER STONEBANKS

The three-member Bill 33 commission will take up their appointments June 15—the first day a legal strike can occur in the coast forest products industry.

But the sections of the government's new labor legislation which could stop a strike by the International Woodworkers of America have yet to be proclaimed by the cabinet.

Another dispute which could be referred by the cabinet to the mediation commission for a binding decision involves 61 hospitals and 4,100 registered nurses.

The nurses have turned down pay increases of between 21 and 27 per cent in an 18-month contract and the Registered Nurses Association of B.C. has asked the labor department to conduct a strike vote.

Section 18 of the legislation — not yet proclaimed by cabinet — gives the cabinet power to refer disputes to the mediation commission and order its finding binding where "it is necessary in order to protect the public interest and welfare."

Section 21 says that where such an order is made, and a strike or lockout is in effect, the action shall cease in 24 hours and work resume.

Where no strike or lockout is in effect, unions are not allowed to declare a strike, no employee shall strike, no company shall declare a lockout or lockout employees.

'GOV'T BENDING'

The only sections of Bill 33 which are law at the moment are those relating to the establishment of the mediation commission, whose membership was announced Thursday by Labor Minister Leslie Peterson.

The president of the Victoria IWA local, Murray Drew, said it "appears" the government is "bending to the wishes of the forest industry and trying to put pressure on the IWA membership."

"I wouldn't view it as a coincidence," he said.

"Why not make the appointments effective emmediately? And it (June 15) is on a Saturday of all times."

Mr. Peterson was en route from Vancouver to Victoria this morning and could not be reached for his comment.

Argentina Transplant

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) — Argentina completed its first human heart transplant operation successfully today at a private clinic near Buenos Aires.

A surgical team, led by Dr. Miguel Bellizi, 42, took about four hours for the operation.

A spokesman at the Modelo Clinic identified the recipient as 47-year-old Enrique Serrano.

The donor, Emilio Tomasetti, was pronounced dead early today at the Ramos Mejia Hospital here and his body was hurried by ambulance to the Modelo Clinic for extraction of the heart.

Montreal Man Gets Heart of Woman

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's first heart transplant patient is awake and his condition "remains hopeful," Dr. Pierre Grondin reported today eight hours after the operation was completed.

Dr. Grondin, chief surgeon in the world's 18th heart transplant operation, told a press conference the patient, Albert Murphy, a 59-year-old French-Canadian butcher, is aware of what is going on around him and is able to obey commands.

Montreal Heart Institute, where the operation was performed, made available an official bulletin shortly after noon today which said:

"Mr. Murphy's progress remains satisfactory. However, the transplanted heart has some difficulties in maintaining an adequate blood pressure and requires the administration of supportive agents.

"The patient is fully conscious and the heart rate is stable. A respirator is still in use to assist pulmonary functions."

Another bulletin would be issued in six hours, a hospital spokesman said.

NOT WITHOUT DIFFICULTY

Dr. Grondin said the operation went smoothly but not without difficulty in maintaining the patient's blood pressure and circulation.

Dr. Grondin had been an observer, recently at a Houston heart transplant by Dr. Denton Cooley which was conducted according to techniques developed by Dr. Norman Shumway of New York in 1961.

Dr. Grondin indicated that heart transplant procedures now have been somewhat "standardized."

Earlier, Dr. Paul David, the institute's medical director, said Mr. Murphy's heart was beating at a "satisfying rhythm" following the operation, which began at 12:20 a.m.

Mr. Murphy, father of two from suburban Laval, received the heart of Mrs. Gerard Rondeau, 38, a mother of four.

Dr. David said the woman died of a "massive cerebral hemorrhage" after she had been transferred to the institute from Jean Talon Hospital Wednesday night.

Another institute spokesman said that Mr. Murphy is five feet, six inchs tall and weighs 124 pounds. "When well," the spokesman said, "he weighed about 175."

WIRE BRIEFS

Rain Dampens Fire

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Saskatchewan forestry officials were breathing easier Thursday night as rain fell over northern regions of the province and improved the forest fire situation.

Forestry director F. H. Hewett said in a telephone interview conditions were "greatly improved."

Not Leaving NATO

TORONTO (CP)—Canada is considering repatriating Canadian army and air force units stationed in West Germany, but has no intention of withdrawing from NATO, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Thursday.

French Workers Return to Jobs

PARIS (CP) — The wave of strikes in France seemed to be receding today under the counter-measures of President de Gaulle. The chief of state, following up his dissolution of the National Assembly, named a new government with Georges Pompidou back as premier.

Reports of a back-to-work movement flowed in from all parts of the country except the Riviera. These covered mostly small plants or partial resumption of activity in other fields.

However, Automobiles Peugeot S.A. announced it will resume work Tuesday at all its plants in the Paris area, in Mulhouse and Vesoul.

Other big key industries showed no signs of a break, but the solidarity of the strikers had been broken and the movement was toward normalcy. Union leaders said they were ready to reopen talks on wage increases for still-idle millions.

Military units which had been on manoeuvres returned to their bases and were reported on alert status.

In the cabinet shift, Maurice Couve de Murville became minister of finance and economic affairs. Michel Debre, outgoing finance minister, succeeded Couve de Murville as foreign minister.

Pierre Messmer was returned as defence minister and former premier Edgar Faure remains as minister of agriculture.

There were five notable changes. Christian Fouchet, interior minister, was dropped. So were Louis Joxe, justice minister; Georges Gorse, minister of information, and Francois Missoffe, minister for sports and youth affairs. Alain Peyrefitte, education minister, resigned last week.

VOTING STARTS JUNE 23

The first round of elections for a new National Assembly was set for June 23. The second round will take place June 30.

Rene Capitant, a left-wing Gaullist who criticized Pompidou and said he would vote against the government in the censure vote last week, was named justice minister. At the last minute, Capitant had resigned his seat as a deputy and did not vote the censure motion, which the government survived.

Raymond Marcellin, an independent Republican who had been minister for economic planning, was named interior minister with control over the police.

Couve de Murville had been foreign minister since de Gaulle returned to power 10 years ago —an all-time record for one man in the job. Debre had been finance minister since January, 1968. Couve de Murville was an inspector of finance before he moved into diplomacy.

'Luxury Cruise' Vessel Proves to Be Happy Ship

By BERYL PROUDMAN

"Luxury Cruise," presented by the St. Luke's Players Thursday night, was competently produced and thoroughly entertaining.

The stock characters were discovered in typical situations but the dialogue was above average and sometimes remarkably funny.

The fact the play was written around three locations with no reference to time context added unnecessary confusion to the play. It was disturbing to mourn Drew Watson in one scene and then, with a change of location return to a prior occasion when he was alive.

This fault in construction played havoc with the ship's schedule and character development.

Sheila Reardon as an antiquated spinster was delightfully vital in her jovial role and well-contrasted by her sister Cecilia played by Linda Rodger.

Though Cissy's metamorphosis to momentary modernity was rather startling, her characterization was convincing and only lacked variety in the pitch of her voice to make it completely successful.

KERSHAW ASSET

Dennis Kershaw as an attractive philosophical lawyer was a real asset to the company. His lively performance influenced Helen Brens, who played his wife, Fran Watson, so that she played better with him than with any of the other characters.

Helen caught beautifully the essential sincere friendliness of the character she portrayed, but in the more superficial conversations a tendency to unnatural word emphasis was noticeable.

Betty Jeanpierre played the anxious, aspiring Corinne Foote with verve and was well-matched by her husband, Don Layman, aptly nicknamed "Ham."

The part of Lillian Gregory, a difficult one to bring off because it develops during the play, was acted with considerable success by Clodagh Dowding. Her nervousness was a little disjointed and some lines were insecure but her characterization was credible.

Sets were adequate, lighting was generally good except that upstage lights shadowed the faces of seated performers, and costumes were very good.

"Luxury Cruise," to be repeated tonight and Saturday at 8:15 p.m., is an amusing comedy which should prove entertaining to people of all ages.

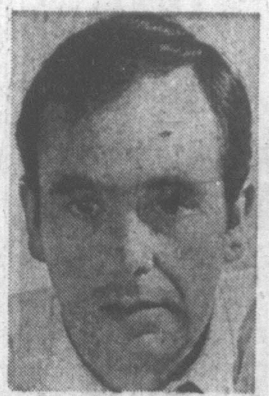
Dayliner, Freight Crash Injures 18

LUMSDEN, Sask. (CP) — Eighteen persons were injured early today when a Canadian National Railways dayliner and a slow-moving freight met head-on near here, 15 miles northwest of Regina.

Police said none of the 18 were seriously injured but some passengers suffered chest injuries and broken bones, and were taken to hospital in Regina. The dayliner was carrying 23 passengers and was bound for Regina.



PASSION for neatness is the destructive force in his relationship with other people for Felix the fusspot, played by Harry Hill in Robert Price's presentation of the hilarious comedy, The Odd Couple, which returned to the McPherson Playhouse for three nights, Thursday. First produced there last January, direction has been taken over by Helen Smith, but the cast is virtually unchanged with Mr. Price in the role of Oscar the slob and Dan Christian, Bill McColl and Joe Moore as his poker-playing friends. Repeated tonight and Saturday, the curtain goes up at 8:30.

Field Trip

The younger section of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Douglas and Hillside for a field trip to the Thetis Lake "panhandle" off Highland Road.

Conducted "Nature Walks" will be held on Sunday from the Nature House at Francis Park.

Royal Roads Work Load to Ease

"If class attendance were voluntary, would you spend your days polishing your boots instead of your minds?" cadets at Royal Roads Military College were asked Wednesday.

Dr. E. S. Graham, director of studies, put the question in an address to cadets and guests at the presentation of academic and sports awards.

He discussed current university unrest and sweeping changes in curriculum and teaching methods.

"Can new ideas penetrate that most conservative of institutions, the military university?"

Significant changes are being planned, probably to be introduced first at Royal Roads, he said.

Revisions involve relaxation of the heavy work-load carried by students at military colleges along with their military training.

"But we are conservative, too, and what we must conserve is the quality of the military college degree. Let me assure you that this is uppermost in our minds — you will not be short-changed. Your degree will be as good as, or better than, any in Canada.

"But we are beginning to admit that the degree we grant does not need to be twice as good as any other in Canada."

There should be, however, more sweeping changes, Dr. Graham said, to provide for "the really exciting, revolutionary ideas which are engulfing higher education in North America.

"We pride ourselves on the maturity of our cadets, but can we turn them loose, making attendance at all classes voluntary, or eliminating classes entirely?

"This is not a one-sided proposition. Have you cadets the courage to give up the comfort of the traditional ways — the spoon feeding? A polished mind is much more important than a polished boot.

"If you want to be an officer, you must first become an educated man.

"I hope we can work together to produce by evolution rather than revolution, a better military college system."

College registrar Michael Meiklejohn announced winners of academic prizes.

Second-year winners are A. R. Thickson, economics, mathematics and graphics; S. T. Ferguson, physics, chemistry and mechanics of materials; P. Vasdi, English; J. H. Laidler, French; N. B. Jeffries, history; R. D. Webster, surveying, and C. R. Skinner, psychology and military leadership.

First-year prizes went to D. S. Scott, English and physics; G. R. Peck, French; R. G. Allen, history; N. S. Cooper, mathematics; D. C. Ganley, chemistr A. H. Crosby, graphics, and R. H. Williams, psychology and military leadership.

Profits Gain Reported By Thomson

TORONTO (CP) — Thomson Newspapers Ltd. had consolidated net income of $5,701,936 or $1.14 a common share for the year ended Dec. 31 compared with $4,708,164 or 96 cents a share in 1966, the company's annual meeting was told.

Lord Thomson of Fleet, honorary chairman, attended the meeting for the first time since Thomson Newspapers became a public company three years ago.

He said later there is no doubt the company will continue its policy of acquiring newspapers, which it has been doing at the rate of four a year.

"We're always on the pra "We're always on the prowl," he said. "But it will take a while to digest the big gob we acquired last year."

He was referring to the company's purchase of the Brush-Moore newspapers in the United States for $72,000,000.

Lord Thomson said his company's largest acquisitions will probably be in the United States.

"There aren't many Canadian newspapers left for us to buy."

The company now owns 41 newspapers in Canada and 42 in the US.

Toronto-Dominion Earnings Higher

TORONTO—In its report for the six months ended April 30, the Toronto-Dominion Bank reports an expansion in deposits, loans and earnings.

Deposits show an increase of $277 million to $3,450 million in the six-month period. As compared with April, they are $542 million dollars higher.

As compared with October 31, 1967, loans show an increase of $202 milion to $2,267 million. Cash resources are $67 million higher and holdings of securities at $682 millions are up $18 million.

Earnings, after all charges, were equivalent to 42.5 cents a share as compared with 37.7 cents a share in the half year ended April 30, 1967.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Firm prices and some bouyance in oilseeds were the features of light trade at the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Export buying of oilseeds augmented commission house transactions, creating activity in both commodities. Farm deliveries of rapeseed have dropped off, contributing to rallying prices.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Gains at Toronto, N.Y.

Gains were posted today on both the Toronto and New York stock markets in moderately active trading. Wall St. resumed trading after a one-day holiday for Memorial Day observance.

At Toronto speculative industrials were strong.

Brokers at both Toronto and New York attributed today's strength to President Johnson's statement that he would accept a $6 billion spending cut.

CARAVAN TRAILER LODGES OF B.C. LTD.

300,000 CLASS "A" COMMON SHARE OFFERING—
$1.00 PER SHARE

This primary stock issue is for the construction of four de luxe trailer parks, each consisting of 100 trailer spaces. The parks to be constructed in the first phase will be located at Ladner, Parksville, Kelsey Bay and Cache Creek. Phase 1 is the first of five phases that the company's directors have proposed in establishing a "WELL LAID OUT" chain of 25 trailer parks throughout British Columbia all bearing the name "CARAVAN".

All parks to consist of restroom, shower, laundry and concession facilities and will have from 100 to 500 trailer sites. Each site will have electrical, sewerage and water hook-ups, with a campsite fireplace, and picnic table. All courts to be situated for prime recreational use, fishing, hunting, swimming, etc.

Shares Available Only To B.C. Residents

"If private industry does not provide Travel Trailer space in B.C. this year the Government will be forced to invest in Travel Trailer parks. One thousand units needed within the Lower Mainland of B.C.," says Recreational Minister Kiernan.
